STRIKE IN CRIPPLE CREEK IMMINENT

Miners and Business Men Call Mass Meeting of Citizens to Avert Threatened Trouble.

President Moyer of the Western Federation of Miners conferred with officers of the organization in Denver and has now gone to Cripple Creek to meet the unions. Seventy-eight per cent of the working miners in the district are opposed to a strike and this sentiment was developed at several meetings held over the district yesterday. From 1[illegible] is expected from the Coeur d'Alene element and Sheriff Robinson of Teller county is quoted as saying he will call upon the governor for troops if he finds he cannot maintain law and order.

State Troops Are in Readiness to Meet Any Emergency Which May Arise.

At the mass meeting to be held this evening in the opera house at Cripple Creek a determined effort will be made to [illegible] before it comes to the declaration of a strike.

At Victor last night the Miners union at that place held a [illegible] of officers and the strike situation was not [illegible] to the statement of officers. Neither President Moyer nor any member of the executive committee was present and no [illegible] action be taken until tomorrow when a general meeting will be held.

FEDERATION MEN IN CAMP WORKING AMONG THE MINERS

Every indication points to a general strike being declared in the Cripple Creek district by the Western Federation of Miners, as a result of the refusal of the Mine Owners association to recognize the demand of the federation that they should not ship ore on or after March 8 to the three Colorado City mills. This, it was stated on authority will be the ostensible reason for the strike declaration the direct reason is the struggle now on between the Western Federation of Miners and the mine and mill owners.

The contemplated action on the part of the federation is due to the conferences between President Moyer and the head officers of the miners organization. President Moyer returned from Denver yesterday and with D. C. Copley member of the executive committee went to Cripple Creek. Meetings of the executive boards of the unions in the district have been called and it is expected that by Tuesday it will be known positively whether a strike will be declared.

The miners in the large mines of the district were meeting throughout the day yesterday and, as a result, the military authorities who have been watching the growing feeling and the situation very closely were assured last evening that 78 per cent of the miners of the district are opposed to a strike. This is regarded as a conservative estimate. The miners at the Mary McKinney, which is now working a force of 75 to 100 men, met early in the day in one of the levels of the property and decided that they had no grievance and placed themselves on record as opposing a strike. The reports of similar meetings were received until late last evening.

An announcement was placed before the meetings of the miners, without authority being given however, that if a strike was declared Cripple Creek ultimately will be a nine-hour day and a $3.50 wages camp instead of the prevailing scale of $3 for eight hours work.

Sherman Holl, who takes office as adjutant general of the Colorado National guard next month and who has handled much of the work of the guard in the preservation of order and the maintaining of information of value in operations at Colorado City, gave interviews bearing directly upon the situation at the miners in the district. Last evening General Bell said:

"I got it on the best of authority that Sheriff Robinson of Teller county called by telephone citizens alarmed over the situation that if he cannot maintain law and order and protect the union miners opposed to striking that he will make the request upon Governor Peabody for troops."

The agitation for a strike comes from the element of Western miners in Cripple Creek as we understand it. These men represent from 10 to 1[illegible] per cent of the working miners. It seems only a dispute between the Coeur d'Alene men and the union miners and the Coeur d'Alene element is being watched for trouble.

The right of the Western Federation in calling out all men is being disputed. While it is true that a referendum vote was taken some time ago among the miners in the district which put the Cripple Creek district on record as sympathizing with Mill and Smelter men's union No. 1[illegible] of Colorado City in the fight of that branch of the federation against the mill owners, it is held that this cannot be taken as authority by the federation to call a general strike, as stated by officers of the Western Federation who claim the right is expressly given by the vote. A meeting of the miners unions is called for tomorrow when the question will probably be settled.

Committees from the [illegible] unions in conference with business men yesterday decided to call a general mass meeting for tonight at 7:30 o'clock at the Cripple Creek opera house to devise ways and means to avoid strife, trouble and violence if it is wise to send a committee to the governor to propose arbitration.

At Colorado City the military are awaiting action at Cripple Creek. The scene of trouble has been transferred to the gold camp and everything is in a state of quiet, contingent upon what action may be taken tomorrow at Cripple Creek.

MINERS ARE [illegible] WAITING

Special to the Gazette.

Cripple Creek, March 7. — Developments in the strike situation in this district are very quiet. Yet. While it seems that a few of the properties are making their necessary arrangements so that if they are called upon to close down or force into a close down by a strike or are deprived of a place to send their ore they will be ready.

It is understood that many lessees who are leasing from the big mining companies have been notified to make arrangements so that if necessary they need not send out any ore after the 9th of this month. While some of the larger properties it is believed are getting ready to close if it becomes necessary, the Portland today notified their ore sorters not to come to work tomorrow night, but to come Monday tomorrow, being the long change of shifts on this property.

One well-known miner said today in reply to the question of whether President Moyer of the Federation had the right to order the men out or not that he had been positively informed that it would have to be put to a referendum vote of the miners if taking a two-thirds vote of the membership for a strike to be declared. He further said that from what he could learn a strike would be voted down if it came to the vote of the miners.

All the large properties in the district are now in better shape for a close-down than for a long time as the water situation is not bothering them nearly as much as it has in the past and they are also well aware of the fact that the ore is in the property and it will not run away during a shut-down, but nothing in regard to either miner or mine owner can be definitely stated at this time.

Committees from the miners union and business men held a joint meeting this afternoon and decided to call a general mass meeting to be held tomorrow night at 7:30 o'clock in the Cripple Creek opera house to discuss the general strike situation also to devise ways and means to obviate further trouble.

[illegible] SWEPT BY FIRE EARLY [illegible]

Sheriff Gilbert yesterday withdrew all deputy sheriffs who had been on duty at Colorado City and Gladstone, now in the hands of the military authorities. This is due to the rapidly brought by hopes on the special train were returned to Denver at 5 o'clock in the evening on the Rio Grande. Lieutenant Dickerson was in charge. Arrangements have been made for other and better horse [illegible] conditions seem to warrant [illegible] the troops.

There are no picket lines around any point in Colorado City or around the plants and officers of the union state that they have decided to abide by the orders of General Chase. The only break in the quiet of the city yesterday was when two men, Eli Remmer and Jim Hayes became ugly while in the Hoffman house saloon and indulged in loud language saying they were going to shoot up the town. They were talking about the strike and became abusive. Deputy Sheriffs [illegible] have arrested Ramoyn and Deputy Sheriff C. F. Parker placed Hayes in custody at the county jail.

The sheriff's office was notified that Mayor Dunkeson of Colorado City had been issuing permits to citizens to carry concealed weapons within the city limits. [illegible] Edward [illegible] President of the Millmen's union was found with a gun in his possession and when asked by a deputy sheriff by what authority he was carrying a repeating pistol he said he had been given him by the union.

There has been a notable thinning in the ranks of strikers loafing on the street corners and around the Reed building. There is much [illegible] at the troops on duty on the [illegible]

COMPANY ASSUMES RESPONSIBILITY FOR NEWARK TROLLEY ACCIDENT

(By Associated Press Exclusively to the Gazette in Colorado Springs.)

Newark, N. J., March 7.—The coroner's jury that has been investigating the trolley accident, in which nine school children were killed, returned a verdict today. The jury finds the North Jersey Street Railway company, which operates the trolley line, responsible for the accident. The jury says:

"We find that there was ice and snow to the depth of two or more inches on the trolley rails, and we find no evidence of salt or sand having been used.

"We find there were at least 120 passengers on the car. Eight or ten of these were on the front platform and undoubtedly interfered with the motorman in controlling his car. Had the rule been enforced in regard to keeping the front platform clear there might have been no accident.

"We find that the New Jersey Railroad company did not use modern methods to protect the public inasmuch as they might have placed a derailing switch at the crossing.

"We find the officials of the New Jersey Railroad company guilty of gross negligence and hold them responsible for the accident.

"We find also that the Lackawanna railroad is in the habit of running trains at a higher rate of speed than allowed by the ordinances but we cannot hold the company responsible as contributing to this accident.

"The board of works and the police we find have not performed the whole of their duty and we call on them to enforce the ordinances in future."

[illegible] CONVERSATION AFTER [illegible]

(By Associated Press Exclusively to the Gazette in Colorado Springs.)

Omaha, March 7.—At midnight officials of the Union Pacific railroad and the members of the joint committee of conductors and brakemen reached an agreement whereby the salaries of 3,500 of the employes are increased from 12 to 15 per cent.

Negotiations looking to an advance in wages of the trainmen has been in progress for two months. During all the deliberations the trainmen daily met with the officials of the railroad and the negotiations were conducted in the most friendly and harmonious manner. A horizontal advance of 20 per cent was asked by the men. This the company refused to grant and concessions were made by both sides. No grand lodge officers were called into the conference and at no time was there any talk of a strike. Each side simply tried to drive the best bargain possible.

In the agreement reached all freight conductors get a 15 per cent increase which will raise their wages to a point on the mileage basis ranging from $125 to $150. The freight brakemen get two-thirds of the conductors scale so that they will share in the increase. Passenger conductors get 12 per cent increase which will make their wages $140 per month. The passenger brakemen get the same percentage of increase which by their graded scale makes their wages range from [illegible] to $85 per month. In addition to the increase of the wages an agreement was entered into by the Union Pacific Railroad company that no double-headers shall be used except on trains of 30 axles or less except in instances of heavy grades where helpers are habitually required or in case of an accident where the need of a second engine is obvious.

Los Angeles, Cal., March 7.—Wallace Hardin president and general manager of the Los Angeles Herald company and General Harrison Gray Otis president and general manager of the Times-Mirror company had a personal encounter with Otis at the Theater Yesterday afternoon. The difficulty arose over an item printed in this morning's Times announcing Mr. Hardin's engagement to be married. The item bore a heading at which Mr. Hardin took offense. The two editors met at a matinee performance and Mr. Hardin demanded an apology be printed in the Times. General Otis refused and blows followed. They were separated by friends.

THE NEW Y. M. C. A. BUILDING.

THE NEW building of the Young Men's Christian association in Colorado Springs is a credit to the town and a monument to the generosity and public spirit of our citizens. It is probably the best-appointed building of its kind between Chicago and the Pacific coast, and no city in the country of the size of Colorado Springs has a better Y. M. C. A. building than this. It represents, including ground, building and furnishings, an investment of nearly $100,000.

Already the association is occupying temporary quarters in the basement. Next week the members will move to the permanent rooms prepared for them on the first floor of the building. The building and the occupancy of this new Y. M. C. A. is an important event in the history of Colorado Springs, for here are to be found not only all the modern appurtenances of an association of this kind, which include lecture rooms, reading rooms, gymnasium, bath rooms and so on, but in addition about fifty sleeping rooms for young men. The association thus combines the spiritual, the mental and the physical, but endeavors, also to give young men some of the comforts of home.

This is a large and important undertaking, and the association and its directors deserve the financial support and encouragement of every citizen of the city regardless of race or creed or previous affiliations. One of the immediate ways in which this can be done is in furnishing rooms. About half of these 50 sleeping apartments are still without furniture. The association has had applications from young men for practically all of its rooms but unless the way is opened for furnishing these apartments, the young men must necessarily find quarters elsewhere.

The formal opening of the new building will not take place until the latter part of March, when all departments will be ready for inspection. At that time a general invitation will be extended to the people of Colorado Springs to visit the building, and we are very sure that there is not one who makes the trip but will be proud of the success which has crowned the efforts of the directors of the association.

DEAN HART'S IDEA.

DEAN HART of Denver, always alert for the betterment of mankind, has issued a pamphlet upon "The Ten Commandments," which is exciting considerable interest. The dean believes that these commandments are "the only bulwark against the avalanche of national immorality." In his pamphlet he goes somewhat into statistics to show that crime of all kinds is steadily increasing, and that inasmuch as the Ten Commandments are the only invariable moral standard the world has ever possessed, there should be a resort to those precepts in order to set the world again upon the highway of truth and soberness.

Inasmuch as the character of the people of the country is often developed for good or ill during the period of youth, Dean Hart's plan is to have the commandments often repeated and thoroughly taught in the public schools. He would also publish a book of extracts from the Bible. He would have the pupils thoroughly master other subjects, such as history, geography, literature, etc. He would stop public education at the sixth or seventh grade, and take the money now expended on high schools and universities and spend it on lower education. In order that pupils might be thoroughly taught, he would have one teacher for each 12 children.

We do not agree with Dean Hart in his view of the seriousness of the situation as regards public morality at the present time. There is, of course, an increase in crime due in large measure to the congestion of the population in large cities, and to the fact that a certain portion of the daily press finds profit and satisfaction in heralding that sort of thing.

We question seriously, however, whether there is more crime per capita than there was 50 years ago. Nevertheless, though we may not all agree with Dean Hart in his forebodings, we shall not question his sincerity nor his disinterested efforts to promote the study of the highest and best literature, including the Bible, and to bring about a higher and nobler standard of life in the nation.

Mark Hanna has not been so busy with his senatorial duties as to neglect politics at home. He is going to make a desperate effort in the coming election in Cleveland to detach the title of "mayor" from the name of Tom L. Johnson.

A Captain Taylor has announced that the president is "half Irish." Inasmuch as Mr. Roosevelt has often said that he is half Dutch, it doesn't leave much for the Scotch, English and a few other claimants.

LET IT BE A PRIVATE JUNKET.

THE GAZETTE'S Washington dispatches indicate that an attempt is to be made to postpone the launching of the new cruiser Colorado until the adjournment of the Colorado legislature so that its members may attend the event in a body. These members have an undoubted right to go individually or collectively, but it should be at their own expense. The state of Colorado ought not to be asked to pay the expenses of a junket such as this will undoubtedly be. As a matter of fact, the state has no interest in this proposition other than that which follows from the use of the name. It is a government enterprise exclusively, to be paid for out of the national treasury, and the taxpayers of Colorado should not be asked to provide the funds in order that the legislature or any other body of citizens may go east and have a good time.

A novel departure in a political way is evidenced by the acceptance of a Citizens nomination for mayor of Cincinnati by Mr. M. E. Ingalls, president of the Big Four railroad. Should Mr. Ingalls be elected he would undoubtedly bring to bear in conducting the various departments of the city those business methods which are so successful in his railroad work. They would not find favor with the politicians at all, and these worthies would begin a career of obstruction from the very first, but Mr. Ingalls' well-known ability and forcefulness would undoubtedly bring about sweeping changes, if not a complete reform.

The action of General William J. Palmer in giving free for the use of the city the services of an experienced landscape gardener to superintend the work of trimming the trees along the public highways is a thoroughly commendable one. It is our understanding that the work is to be done in a manner wholly different from the method hitherto employed, and in such a way that the symmetry and beauty of the trees will be retained and that the appearance of our public highways will not be marred. The council was wise in promptly accepting the offer made to it.

It is to be hoped that the Colorado assembly will not be so foolish as to enact an initiative and referendum law—or rather give an opportunity for the passage of such a law through the medium of a constitutional amendment. The people do not attend sufficiently to their duties as voters now, and to add to those duties would be useless. Moreover, it is much better that we elect safe and substantial lawmakers to the assembly and let them attend to the business of statute making, after due and careful consideration.

That the principle of local option in dealing with the liquor question does not necessarily mean free and unlimited whisky is found in the results from Vermont and Massachusetts, in which nearly three-fourths of the smaller towns and cities voted "no license." In fact, where towns have a chance to decide this thing for themselves, they appear to be on their good behavior.

The Rev. Dr. Horr of the Watchman pays a fine tribute to the trolley car. He says it is doing more to improve the morals tone of rural New England than the bible colporteur or tract distributor. It is not the car itself, however, but the rapid transit to church centers which brings the happy result.

The Gazette cannot undertake to print letters from persons who are unwilling to confide in the editor to the extent of sending in their names. As has so often been stated, these names are not necessarily for publication, but as a guarantee of good faith. No anonymous communication receives consideration in this office.

New magazines have often had various excuses for making their appearance, but here is one that is absolutely original. It is called The Smiths—A Magazine for People Named Smith. If the publisher receives the earnest support of his constituency, he will soon have Mr. Rockefeller distanced.

The good sense of the legislature asserted itself when a vote was taken on the proposed censure of Governor Peabody for sending troops to Colorado City. Before voting to censure the governor, the legislature should at least know the facts of the situation as well as he does.

The president is reported to be reaching out for Mr. Robert Bacon, one of the partners in the J. P. Morgan firm, for treasurer of the United States. No doubt Mr. Roosevelt would like to get a little of that celebrated financial acumen work in behalf of the country.

The Prohibition party in Colorado Springs on Friday night nominated candidates for all municipal offices except that of city attorney. There seems to be a point concealed about this somewhere.

The interesting information is conveyed by wire that Mr. Bryan and Mr. Hanna will be "upon the same platform" at the Lisbon, Ohio, centennial. This does not necessarily mean a fist fight.

The Jones family have wholly disappeared from the United States senate. They will be replaced by the Clarks, of whom there are three.

A great hue and cry was raised over Tom Reed's "billion dollar congress," but nowadays it's nearer two billions than one.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

Aids to American Trade.

Persons who suppose that our export trade is suffering from lack of transportation facilities may be partially reassured by a consular report from Jamaica that the trade in American shoes has increased so much as to lead to an official investigation, and it was found that there was quicker and cheaper transit of goods from the United States than from England. Other reasons were the excessive charges by British manufacturers for cases, the better appearance of American shoes and their better adaptation to the Jamaican trade, and greater promptness of American manufacturers in filling orders.—(Philadelphia Record.

An Unnecessary Fear.

While it is still true that manufacturers are chief beneficiaries of the protective system, it is by no means true that all of them are benefited. There are a great many, like the shoe manufacturers, who feel that they are hampered by the tariff far more than they are benefited. They have come to realize that the alarm that has often been created by threats of free trade is purely fictitious. They need foreign markets and know that they are shut out of them, or their trade limited in a number, by reason of the tariff for the benefit of others. They have the sagacity to perceive that they are not damaged by the tariff for business, and even the threat that revision will disturb business—that is, business, which still dominates the leader of party, is beginning to lose its influence.—(Louisville Courier Journal.

The Greeting to the Baron.

The new German ambassador, Baron Speck von Sternburg, arrived during the most critical period of the Venezuelan controversy, and his influence became operative at once. It is related that he called at the White house during a reception of the diplomatic corps, and when his name was announced to the president the latter shouted, with characteristic enthusiasm: "Hello, baron! Delighted to see you. We feel you here already." It is affirmed that the ambassador considered this a high compliment, as well he might.—(Waterbury American.

Can General Funston Wait

An officer who has just returned from the Philippines has brought with him a new version of General Funston's swimming feat, and it corresponds with General Corbin's former opinion of the Kansas soldier. But why attempt to open the case again? The general has his promotion, has been induced to quit talking for publication, and the public should be given an opportunity to forget. Besides, General Funston is not the only one whose services during the latest wars have been overrewarded.—(Washington Post.

Guardsmen and Union.

Odd news comes from Scranton, Pa., to the effect that the Painters union has decided to allow William Potter to retain membership in the union and at the same time to be a member of the National guard. Our readers are familiar with the controversy. Potter was dismissed from the union because he took part as a militiaman in the demonstration against striking voters in a strike there and a boycott was instituted against his employers. The affair caused a hard fight and had many ramifications. First Vice President Hedric of the International Painters union is quoted as saying at a meeting of a conference committee yesterday that the affair had "hurt the union more than anything that could happen to it. The outcome is a great victory for Potter and his employers and for the old-fashioned notion that an organization that forbids its member to join the National guard is not patriotic or commendable.—(Hartford Post.

Boss Butler on Education.

That the people were against him appeared in only one sign, that of the special juries, carefully chosen to keep out men privately known to be implicated. These juries had invariably convicted the boodlers. Butler asked to be tried in some other town. Mr. Folk suggested Columbia, the university town of the state of Missouri.

Columbia was chosen, and Butler's sons went up there with their heelers to "fix the town." They spent money freely, and because the loafers drank with them plentifully, the Butlerites thought they "had the town right." But they did not know Columbia; neither did Butler. When he stepped off the train, he asked genially what the business of the town was.

"Education," was the answer.

"Education," he blurted. "That's a—of a business!"—(Lincoln Steffens in March McClure's.

SHORT STORIES

The belated senator, hurrying to his lodgings through the semi-darkness, was confronted by one of those unofficial hold-up men that still infest the capital.

"Throw up your hands!" commanded the footpad.

The senator slowly elevated one of his arms.

"That's the best I can do," he said. "Why is that?" sternly asked the robber.

"Because," replied the belated statesman, with bitter sarcasm, "Senator Morgan has talked the other one off!"—(Chicago Tribune.

A Sad Blow to Ten Men.

The Rev. Sam Jones on one occasion delivered his sermon, called "Wives and Husbands," before an immense gathering in Birmingham, Ala. He dwelt particularly on the beauty and utility of mutual forbearance between husbands and wives and then, as though desirous of showing the rarity of that quality, said:

"If there is a woman in this vast gathering who has never said an unkind word to her husband, she will please stand up."

A woman arose, as though she had been challenged, and Jones, beckoning her with both arms, called out:

"Come here, sister! Come right up here to the platform."

The woman did as bidden, and when she reached the preacher's side was presented to the throng as the "most beautiful woman in Birmingham." Jones, continuing his address, asked any man who had never spoken an unkind word to his wife to make himself known. Promptly arose ten big, strapping, self-conscious chaps, who started for the platform without further bidding and with an air that suggested the anticipation of praise from the preacher, who, as they neared him, said:

"That's right, my men! Come right up! I want everybody here to gaze on ten of the most helpless liars in the United States."—(Baltimore Herald.

A Remarkable Verdict.

John Ward tells this story of an incident that happened in Barton county just after the civil war:

A man named Harrington had stolen a sawmill down on one of the creeks. A sawmill is a rather unusual thing for a man to steal, but the defendant in this case had deliberately taken his team and hauled the mill away. After hearing the evidence, the jury retired and in a short time they came in, the foreman handing to the court a verdict which read something like this: "We, the jury, believe from the evidence that the defendant, Harrington, took the sawmill, but since it appears that he took it from a lot of damned rebels, we acquit him." Judge Ward is said to have the exact written words of the verdict in his possession.—(Lamar (Mo.) Democrat.

Col. Church's Story.

Col. Church of the Army and Navy Journal tells a story of the days when the people lavishly welcomed home the heroes of the Spanish-American war, says the New York Times. At that time a big man who had been behind a great gun was riding up town on a Broadway car. Seated next to the sailor was an important looking individual, who, in the way of introduction and with evident pride, said:

"I am a sailor man myself in a way, but not exactly of the navy. You see, I am the man who supplied the cheese you had on your battleships."

"You are, are you?" queried the sailor man as he struck him a blow that knocked his neighbor clear across the car. "And now," he asked, "will you tell me where I can find the man who supplied us with our butter?"

A VEIN OF HUMOR

Even when he was a boy, Jackson Tight
Knew just what he was
Liked to orate when he would,
Didn't care what 'twas about, all he
Wanted was to shout,
When he shouldn't, when he should!
John was talkin'.

Grown a man, he thought he'd mix in a little politics—
Saw a chance to talk some more.
Every spring and every fall John went round from hall to hall,
Spittin' all the good things o'er,
Talkin', talkin'.

Tellin' how to run the town, how to turn the rascals down—
That's where John shone. Yet
People that he talked at up always somehow seemed to win;
Friends of John lost many a bet
Through his talkin'.

Now, John's friends have got a scare,
'cause he wants to run for mayor—
Thinks that I'll pay;
While he's at it night and day, some are mean enough to say
That's what's standin' in his way
It's just his talkin'!

Arranging It Satisfactorily.

Master Ross Edwards, 4 years of age, living in Irvington, N. J., was very fond of his grandmother, and spent most of his time at her home. One afternoon he came home from play so very tired that he could eat no dinner, and asked his mother to put him to bed. She took him upstairs, and when he was ready for bed said:

"Now my little boy must say his prayers."

"I can't—I am so tired."

"You want to go to heaven, don't you? Then you must say your prayers."

"Are you doin' to heaven, mamma?"

"I hope to, and want to see my little boy there."

"Is papa goin' to heaven?"

"He hopes so."

"Well, you and papa go to heaven, and I'll go around and see grandma."—(Philadelphia Public Ledger.

A Dictionary Joke.

Certainly no one would think of reading a dictionary for pleasure, as the Irishman said, he would lose the thread of the story in the great mass of detail. Nor would one expect to find jokes in such a book, except the one of Mark Twain's about the carbuncle. But that learned and otherwise staid dictionary, the Century, contains at least one laughable entry.

Under the word "question" is the following:

"To pop the question—see pop."

There was a Schoolmistress named Beauchamp,
Her pupils 'twas hard work to teauchamp;
Though instruction was plain,
There was always the cane,
And that never once failed to teauchamp.

Made Him Ashamed.

The Chicago man had been talking boastfully, after the manner of his species, but the New York man took him down several pegs very neatly by observing:

"My dear sir, do you know that Chicago time is actually one hour slower than New York time?"

As for the Chicago man, he was covered with confusion, and presently stole away.—(Smart Set.

MR. DOOLEY READS A LENTEN SERMON...

By F. P. Dunne

(Copyright, 1903, by Robert Howard Russell.)

"O-ho," said Mr. Hennessy, "twinty-wan days to Saint Pathrick's day."

"Ar-re ye keepin' Lent?" asked Mr. Dooley.

"I am," said Mr. Hennessy. "I put th' pipe back iv th' clock day before yisterdah night. Oh, but th' las' whiff iv th' ol' clay was plisint. Ar-re ye keepin' Lent?"

"I am that," said Mr. Dooley. "I'm only smokin' me seegars half through an' I take no sugar in me tay. Th' Lord give me strenth to last till Patrick's day! I'm keepin' Lent but I'm not go'n' up and down th' sthreet tellin' people about it. I ask'd anny prouder iv keepin' Lent thin I am iv keepin' clean. In our fam'ly we've always kept it. I raymimber ach me father tuck away th' pipe, cork up th' bottle an' put it in a thrunk with something between a moan an' a cheer an' begin to find fault with th' wurruld. F'r us Ris Len was no gr-reat hardship. It on'y meant not enough iv something besides meat. I don't raymimber much about it, except that on Ash Winsdah everybody had a smudge on his forehead; an' afther awhile th' house began to smell a little iv fish an' about th' thirtieth day th' eggs had thrown off all disguise an' was jus' plain, yellow eggs.

"Yes, sir, in our fam'ly we all kep' Lent but me Uncle Mike. He started wi th' rest an' f'r a day or two he wint up an' down th' road whippin' butchers. 'Twas with gr-reat difficulty, Hinnissy, that he was previnted fr'm marchin' into th' neighborin saloons an' poorin' out th' sthrong waithers on th' flur. F'r a sport distance me Uncle Mike was th' most famous man I have iver met. At such times he organized th' Uncle Michael th' Good s'ciety an' wint ar-round inityatin' mimbers. To hear him talk about nine o'clock on Ash Winsdah mornin', ye'd think he was jus' goin' into th' area to fight a line before th' onholy Roman popylace. He take down 'Th' Lives iv th' Saints' an' set r-read n' it with a condescendin' smile on his face like a champeen athlete goin' over th' ol' records. 'Oh, yes,' he sed to be sayin', 'they were all r-right, very good in their day, no doubt, but where wud they be now? They'se no mention iv Saint Jerome goin' without his smoke an' tebacky sinve twelve o'clock jis' Choosda night an' here it's nine-o'clock Winsdah morn'n' th' thin I'm wud look casilly to'rd th' back iv th' book to see whether p'raps some thing mighn't 've been put in about him at th' las' moment an' thin he wud throw it down an' say to himself: 'Th' Lives iv th' Saints' f'r eighteen hundred an' fifty ain't out yet,' an' march savagely fr'm th' room, kickin' his nieces an' nevvews as he went. At ten o'clock in th' afthernoon he was discovered be me father settin' on a saw horse in th' woodshed, puffin' away at a pipe with a bowl like a small-stove that he took away fr'm a fireman, an' singin' to himself.

"But me Uncle Mike thought a gr-reat warryor in his day an' th' soul iv s'ciety was not a model f'r a long-distance Christyan champeen. He started with th' rest iv us but he always pulled up lame. Th' throuble with him an' th' throuble with th' rest iv us is that we expect to be canonized in time to show th' brief to th' fam'ly at dinner. So I say I don't go ar-round cillybrailin' Lent. I don't expect Father Kelly will send down th' Father Macchow Fife an' Dhrum corps to serenade me because I left that lump iv sugar out iv me tay an' put in twice as much milk. Whin th' postman comes to th' door with the usual line iv bills an' love letters fr'm th' tailors, me hands don't thremble expectin' a note fr'm th' pope tellin' me I've been canonized. No sir, I congrathylate mesilf on me sthrong will power an' I reflect that sugar makes people fat. I am never goin' to place anny medals on annywan fr' bein' vaccinated. Hinnissy, f'r if vaccination ain't always necessary, me boy, it's th' nex' thing to it. I'm tin'prate because too much shrink doesn't agree with me; niodest because I look best that way, sin'rous because I don't want to be thought stinky, honest because iv th' polis force, an' brave whin I can't run away.

"Dock Grogan, who's an ol' pagan, don't agree with Father Kelly on more thin two things, though they're th' frindliest iv inimies; an' wan iv thim is Lent. Father Kelly says 'tis good f'r th' soul an' Dock Grogan he says 'tis good f'r th' body. It comes at th' r-right time iv th' year, he says, whin ivrybody has had a winther iv stuffin' themsivlves an' floodin' their intervyors an' settin up late at night. It's a kind iv a thank off f'r th' Christmas holidays. We quit atin' meat because 'tis Lent, an' we've had too much meat. We quit smokin' because 'tis Lent an' we have a smokers' heart. We quit drinkin' because 'tis Lent an' we want to see if th' brakes are wurrukin. We quit going to th' theaytre because it's Lent an' we're sick iv th' theaytres. 'If it wasn't f'r Lent thr March nemo iv us wud live till th' Fourth iv July. In Lent,' says Father Kelly, 'I get me congregation back.' 'In Lent,' says Dock Grogan, 'I lose mine.' 'Lent,' says Father Kelly, 'brings thim nearer hiven.' 'An' brings away,' says Dock Grogan. 'It's hard wurruk f'r me but I like it,' says Father Kelly. 'It's my vacation time,' says Dock Grogan, 'but I don't care f'r it.' 'It makes thim think iv th' nex' wurruld,' says Father Kelly. 'An' gives thim a better hold on this,' says Dock Grogan. 'It's medicinch,' says Father Kelly. 'It's med'cine,' says Dock Grogan.

"So I says no medals, plaze, f'r me on account iv the jump iv sugar. I done me poety an' no more. Whin th' divvle tempted me to put in th' jump I sayd 'Get thee behind me, Satan. I'm too fat now.' That was all I done what was r-right because it was r-right an' prove an' a good thing f'r me to do. I don't claim no gr-eatchood. I don't ask f'r any admiration fr me poety. But don't I look better, Hinnissy? Don't ye see I'm a little tinner?

"'Not an ounch,' said Mr. Hennessy. 'A're th' same hippopotamus ye was.'

"Well, well," said Mr. Dooley. "That's sthrange. P'raps I'm a better man nither all. How long did ye say it was to Pathrick's day?"

SENATOR TELLER'S REPLY TO SENATOR DEPEW

(Special Correspondence.)

WASHINGTON, March 4.—Senator Chauncey M. Depew has not added to his reputation as an orator by his career in the senate. He has made number of set speeches since his incumbency, none of them very good and most of them very bad. His worst effort was his two days' speech against the omnibus statehood bill, in which he voiced at second hand the eastern prejudices against the west, he maligned New Mexico and Arizona, he attacked the Mormons and the Spanish born citizens of New Mexico; he belittled the resources of the west, but his greatest object on to crucify statehood to western territory was his fear that the thinly populated states might gain control of the senate and invite attacks upon our form of government and lead to amendments to the constitution directed against minority representation which would be little short of revolutionary. Senator Teller, in a two minute talk demolished the oratorical structure which Depew had been piling up for two days and left him with nothing but a string of words to show for his long winded effort, Senator Teller said:

FRAMERS OF GOVERNMENT ORGANIZED IT WISELY.

"I do not wish to interrupt the senator, yet I must confess that after a quarter of a century's service, most of the time in this body, I can not look with much patience the threat of revolution in this country; that the government organized by our fathers is to be destroyed because the original plan by which the small states were to have in this body the same power as the large states have is now objectionable to the senator from New York. It is not any small thing to roll back and changing the politics conditions of this country, changing the form of government under which we have lived and grown so great and strong. You cannot maintain in this country a government upon the theory upon which this government was established if you concentrate all the power in the hands of the great states.

"The United States was organized by the wisest men who ever lived on this continent, at least, and I think should not exaggerate if said up in any other. They organized it wisely. They provided that the smaller states should have in this body the power that the great states have, and now, after more than one hundred years, is there any reason for any man to stand in this chamber and condemn that system of government?

"New England, with its twelve senators in this body, has not as many people as has the state of New York. Has this government ever suffered? Mr. President, by the small states of New England being represented in this body? I say here, and I want to say it to the senator, that he does not represent anybody in this country when he talks about breaking up the form of government which our fathers established, and which the experience of more than a hundred years has shown to be the wisest of any government ever established under the face of the sun.

"I have listened to a good deal of nonsense, and I have listened without protest during this debate to a good deal that I considered beneath the dignity of the senate, but I could not listen to what the senator from New York has said without saying here as a senator from one of the sovereign states of this union and as a citizen of the United States, that I resent the insult and I think the American people will resent it as much from the senator from New York."

SENATOR BEVERIDGE HAS SCALPS OF TWO BILLS.

Senator Beveridge [illegible] credited with killing two bills during the last session of congress. He was the leading spirit in the fight against the Hepburn railroad bill and he led the forces opposed to the passage of the bill which had passed the house by a vote of 346 to 7. Texas sent a delegate to the house bill provided for a delegate to be elected by the residents of Alaska and provided some qualifications for the election in those [illegible] which could be [illegible] Beveridge [illegible] the bill [illegible] and was [illegible] [illegible] of which Mr. Beveridge is a member, on account of [illegible] the selection of the delegate in the hands of the governor and United States district judges of Alaska. While this bill was under consideration by the committee, but Mr. Beveridge forgot, or surprised, that Alaska was not a territory and [illegible] delegate at all. It may be said for Mr. Beveridge's credit that a number of Alaska citizens died of [illegible] in [illegible] either by starving or by [illegible] [illegible] Beveridge's [illegible] in the delegate bill.

MORE LIFE AT WHITE HOUSE SIMPLE AND METHODIC.

The home-life of the Roosevelts is [illegible] like that of thousands of families, as the following schedule of the routine at the White house shows. The rising bell rings at 7 o'clock in the morning when everybody must get out of bed. The breakfast bell rings at 8 o'clock and all are expected to breakfast together. At 9 o'clock the children are all off to school, and no excuses are accepted. At 12 o'clock noon, luncheon is served, and the entire family is present. At 7 o'clock in the evening dinner. The children eat at the family table. At 10 o'clock the children all go to bed. No sitting up to play or read books is allowed. The school hours are as sacred and inviolable days for the children of the president as they are for any of the million children of the land. Bedtime also is a fixed law, as inflexible as the laws of the Medes and Persians. It is a strict rule that no one must be late for breakfast, and the president and Mrs. Roosevelt set a model example in this. No matter how heavy may have been their official duties the evening before, they never break the family rule which demands their presence at 8 o'clock at the breakfast table. Mrs. Roosevelt is the strictest martinet, who sees that the children leave for school to get their breakfast.

The children are very fond of pets, and at times the White house grounds might be taken for a zoological garden. Quentin has a sheep and Archie a pony, and frequently there are other animals, the gifts of adjoining friends. Last week the boys were presented with an elephant presented to Mr. Jesse Overstreet, a former Wyoming man, who has just returned from Nicaragua. One of the presents not out of life was the first night he was quartered in the White house and made shreds of a rich hand some lace curtain. The presents found their way to the zoo the next day, much to the distress of the boys who wanted to keep them in the White house, even on a lace curtain.

COLORADO COMMENT

[illegible] the president because of the removal of the White house and the erection of a new and [illegible] office building in the White house grounds. While there may be some ground for complaint on account of people who have stood for hours in the cold [illegible] for admission to the White house [illegible] protest that the presence of employees [illegible] improvement [illegible] for the comfort and convenience of the public.—(Denver Mail.

A Sabbath Measure.

The Colorado senate has [illegible] the statutes so far as it could with another [illegible] measure, a [illegible] prohibition of Sunday entertainments. Such bills serve no good purpose and are aimed really against the good of the people. The theater [illegible] little that is not elevating, much that is pleasing and broadening. And does no harm. We have closed the saloon on Sunday so as to stimulate church attendance. The rest of the day after the morning service should be a day of relaxation for the thousands of good people of the cities and the most decent amusements the better for them.—(Boulder Camera.

New Phone Company.

Colorado Springs capitalists threaten to lose $2,000,000 for telephone service. New company, Chicago Inter-Ocean.

Penniless Carnegie.

When Andrew Carnegie was compelled to borrow a dollar to place in a contribution box the other night it must have been the happiest moment of his life. At last his great ambition had been realized. He was penniless.—(Pittsfield Cheshire News.

Good Reports.

Lately most encouraging reports come from out mining men who have spending the winter outside and in the eastern money centers. These reports indicate an active, prosperous summer for the mining industry of San Miguel county. Some new properties have received capital for development, some equipment and others that have been idle or indifferently operated for a few years past promise quite extensive operations.—(Telluride Journal.

WHO

I ... be free! For ... is all fair,
... is like the ... of
Who raise, rings out like trumpet on the air,
And ... rise up and fly ... the high road.
Be all ... known on ... to understand,
They treat it ... Freedom's hand.

I would be free! The little spark of heaven
Set in my soul when life was breathed in me
Is like a flame, this way and that way! driven
By ever-wavering winds, which ceaselessly
Kindle and blow till all my soul is hot,
And would consume if liberty were not

I would be free! But what is Freedom, then?
For widely various are the shapes she wears
In different ages and to different men!
And many titles, many forms she bears—
First an revolution, sword and flame—
All called in turn by Freedom's honored name.

I would be free! Not free to burn and ...
To trample down the weak and smile the strong,
To seize the larger share of wine and oil
And rob the sun my daylight to prolong,
And rob the night of sleep while others wake,
Feast on their famine, barely free to take

I would be free! Free in a deeper way
Free to become all that I may or can;
To be my best and utmost self each day
Not held or bound by any chain of man
By dull convention or by foolish sneer
Or love's mistaken clasp of feeble fear

Free to be kind and true and faithful free
To do the happy things that makes life good,
To grow as grows the goodly forest-tree
By none gainsaid, by none misunderstood
To taste life's freshness with a child's delight,
And find new joy in every day and night

I would be free! Ah! so may all be free
Then shall the world grow sweet at core and sound
And, moved in blest and ordered circuit ...
The bright millennial sun rise fair and round
Heaven's day begin, and Christ, whose service is Freedom all perfect rule the world as His

THAT it is not in any sense a "flowery beds of ease existence, that of the first lady of the land," one can easily infer. Still it is a subject that the other women of the land do not think much about, unless it be some envious one who would gladly take part in Washington social life if permitted to do so. The report is circulated that Mrs. Roosevelt is in danger of breaking down under the too great strenuosity of the social life at the White House. Since November 1, 700 guests have been kept over night, 36 dinner parties given, 325 guests entertained at luncheon, 50 at breakfast, there have been three state dinners, six musicales, five state receptions and three afternoon receptions by Mrs. Roosevelt.

In addition President and Mrs Roosevelt have attended eight cabinet dinners and dined with Senators Hanna and Lodge. Commenting on the statistics just mentioned, the Woman's Journal says, "Our anti-suffrage ladies think a woman is too fragile to cast a ballot, yet any one of them would be delighted to assume the duties of the president's wife."

The "fine and sublime art of entertaining" is responsible for entirely too many cases of "nervous prostration" in fashionable life. It begins in the executive mansion and in its widening circles sweeps in every home, large or small. Still in the truly hospitable homes where liberal culture and broad views of life, with its manifold issues, receives the merited attention affairs, social, are simply conducted. In those homes where the entertainers never try to be "elegant" it will be noted that the friends seem to enjoy coming again. Universally, too such people are easy and delightful to entertain. They do not overrate externals, they look for, and find the heart of things.

With the gigantic struggle for money and high place, a number of things have crept into our lives unconsciously to ourselves. Not only is a point strained, but many points more, every available point, in the effort to appear finer and richer than one really is. The simple, comfortable ways of life no longer satisfy and forsooth, lest the "stranger within our gates" may catch a glimpse of our everyday life for the sake of maintaining appearances the privilege of our "latch string" is denied. When housekeepers learn the fine art of entertaining thoroughly, there will be no more of the despicable trying to appear what one is not, in the home or out of it. It is the unpretentious people who do the best, be it in the line of hospitality, or in a multitude of the little amenities of human existence.

WOMEN AND TOWN.

Since the city council has tacitly ignored the lengthy petition signed by several hundred taxpayers protesting against the present mode of pruning the trees along our beautiful streets, the suggestion may not be amiss that the women of the city are actively interested in the matter.

The work of women's clubs in city and town betterment is attracting a great deal of attention throughout the country. The Woman's club of Lowell, Mass., is conducting a regular campaign against the Locks and Canal company in favor of a more attractive river front. In Lincoln, Ill., the club women have taken entire charge of the railway station park and the public school yards.

Boise, Idaho has became an oasis of living green in the midst of that vast stretch of sage brush plain. The possibilities of irrigation in that vicinity are unlimited and the women's clubs have done much to improve the city. The small sum of $25 long been an eye sore and the $25 sent to Salt Lake City for an expert to plat the ground and inaugurate improvements. At the same time the best landscape effects were lost for the town in general. It is regretted that the city council has so far nullified the efforts made in this direction by not appropriating money to pay all the money necessary to carry out the plans and has asked the women to take charge of the cemetery entirely and "in perpetuity." Yet the earth is all cumbered with both men and women who hold that women have no place for work in the line of civic improvement, who are opposed to having the "burdened with the ballot" and "the city beautiful" is a subject particularly near to women's hearts their natural longing toward all things of grace and beauty in nature. The pernicious and wholesale lopping off of the fine trees, ... assist in making Colorado ... the handsome city that it is, cannot be suffered without a strenuous protest from the women.

DIRECTORY OF CLUB SPEAKERS.

Miss Helen A. Whittier, first vice president of the Massachusetts Federation of Women's Clubs, writes that the fourth annual edition of the directory of club speakers and entertainers will be issued in time to be of service to club committees in arranging programs for the season of 1908-9.

Having received the indorsement of the board of directors of the General Federation of Women's clubs, the directory of club speakers will this year have a greatly extended circulation of a national character. It will be sent free to every club of 50 members or over, in the general federation, and to smaller clubs on application.

It will also be sent to all federated clubs of states so it will virtually reach every federated club in the United States which requires the services of a lecturer, reader or musician.

The directory contains the names and announcements of those subscribers who desire to lecture, etc. It enjoys the patronage of Redpath's lyceum bureau, of several educational organizations and of many of the most eminent lecturers and musicians in the field.

As Colorado has so many talented women speakers, readers and musicians who are worthy of more than local fame undoubtedly a list of names can be obtained to insert in this excellent medium for reaching all the clubs in the union. Those desiring information concerning space etc. may obtain circulars by prompt application to Miss Helen A. Whittier 50 Chelmsford street, Lowell, Mass.

KINDERGARTEN WORKERS.

What promises to be one of the largest conventions of kindergarten workers ever held in this country is set for April 15, 16 and 17, 1908 at Pittsburg, Pa. It is the meeting of the International Kindergarten union which consists of all of the kindergarten associations in the country. A similar meeting held in Boston last year, resulted in much of profit and pleasure to those in attendance. Interest in the subject has been of rather slow growth, but that shown here in the Springs during the past few months is an augury of phenomenal advance in the direction of the establishment of free kindergartens within a comparatively short space of time. Altogether too long has this vitally important branch of our educational system been allowed to languish for lack of organized effort. Now that a fine working force has espoused the free kindergarten proposition there should be no delay in pushing it along.

When the spring comes the oak tree with its thousands upon thousands of leaves blossoms all over. The great heart of the oak tree remembers every remotest tip of every farthest branch and sends to each the message and the power of new life. And yet we do not think of the heart of the oak tree as if it were burdened with such multitudinous remembrance or as if it were any harder work for it to make a million leaves than it would be to make one. It is simply the thrill of the common life translated into these million forms. The great heart beats and wherever the channels of a common life are standing open the rich blood flows and out on every tip the green leaf springs. Somewhat in that way it seems to me that we may think of God's remembrance of His million children.—Phillips Brooks.

Margery's cousin Cecilia was 18 and pretty, relates the New York Times. She was also devoted to music and spent hours practicing on a large pipe organ. This together with the fact that she invariably wore a rapt expression when so engaged earned for her the nickname of Saint Cecilia.

It happened that Margery's mamma was called to town and left her 5-year-old daughter in charge of an obliging neighbor. This woman undertook to amuse her young guest by showing her a collection of prints among which was a copy of the familiar presentation of the patron saint of music seated at the organ.

"This, my dear," said the obliging hostess, "is a picture of Saint Cecilia."

"It doesn't look a bit like her," spoke up the tiny visitor.

"Why, how do you know?" inquited the astonished owner of the print.

"How do I know?" returned the equally astonished Margery. "Why, Saint Cecilia is my own first cousin. She teached me my prayers an' how to play jackstones."

There is always a possibility that the person whom we regard as a proper object for sympathy may look upon himself in another light. This interesting and instructive surprise often awaits the well meaning bearer of condolence.

When Mrs Hastings learned that her old friend Mrs Warren had become "stun deef" she went with a long face to see her.

"It must be an awful cross, Laving," she wrote, on the slate which Mrs Warren presented to her as she was seated.

"Taint either," snapped "the afflicted one who though deaf was by no means dumb. "Folks that have got anything to say can write it on that slate. And Henry Warren, thats had to put a curb on his tongue for upwards o' thirty years on account of the high temper he took from his mother's folks, is now able to say anything he likes and no feelings hurt. I count my deafness a blessing. How's your rheumatism?"—(Youth's Companion.

Beauty for Ashes.

Now the work of my hands it is only
And the sight of my eyes is not fair
But, oh bliss! my free thoughts need not tarry,
They fly swifter than swallow wings dare

They're away to the gardens of beauty
And they gather the lilies so pure
Blow the fragrance of life's orchard blossoms,
Dream dreams of a fruitage that's sure

There are wings to the tops of the mountains,
Though my feet, they be hobbled so short,
There are flights to the far-away starland,
And swift ... is to the heavenly port

O the work of my hands need not hinder,
And the sight for my eyes is a foil
For my heart-life does revel in beauty
Though my hands are so hardened with toil

TESTIMONY FROM COLORADO.

UNDER the heading, "More Good Testimony From Colorado," "F. M. A." writes in the Woman's Home Journal of February 28 in regard to one of the Springs most highly respected citizens.

Mrs. Ella L. C. Dwinell, who was born, educated and married in Charlotte, Mich., has been a resident of Colorado for about 18 years. She is soon to return to her native place, and the Charlotte Tribune, in making note of the fact, gives a sketch of her life and work, and of her views with regard to the results of equal suffrage.

Mrs Dwinell took an active part in the suffrage campaign in Colorado, being secretary for her county. She was the first woman in Colorado to be appointed a notary public, and she served for six years on the state board of trustees of the Deaf and Blind school. She has been department president of the Colorado and Wyoming Woman's Relief corps and is also a member of the Dastech Sta.

She says: "I have voted for 10 years, never failing except when in Michigan, where women are not counted as voters. I sometimes hear it said there that equal citizenship is a failure, but Colorado men do not say so. Voting is by no means considered a disgrace to a woman, neither is she by so doing, any the less a true woman. I have yet to hear of domestic trouble growing out of the right of the women to vote. In Colorado it is just as much a matter of course for husband and wife, son and mother, brother and sister to go to the polls to vote as for them to attend the church together, or to the theater and cases of starvation because dinner was late sometimes on election day have never been reported. It is by no means an uncommon thing for husband and wife to belong to different parties. Children are as plentiful and well cared for as in Michigan and no dire calamity has befallen our commonwealth. No state has better laws and it has prospered no less because the women care for its honor as a state, and lend a hand in its upbuilding.

"In fact in the pioneer full suffrage state of Wyoming with a record covering over a third of a century there is a less percentage of crime of divorce, of insanity, of pauperism than in most other states of the union.

"In Colorado the women do not care for the offices except for the service they can render the state. Since suffrage was granted in Colorado some woman has always been elected state superintendent of public instruction. The merely political offices are not wanted by women. Women are represented on nearly all the state boards.

"When Mr Dwinell's health began to fail, Mrs Dwinell entered his real estate and insurance office and for several years was the main support of the family. He died in Colorado Springs in 1898. Of their four children only died in infancy. The eldest son, Rollin Cushing Dwinell was captain of company L, Roosevelt's rough riders and was seriously wounded in the left shoulder in the famous charge at Santiago July 2, 1898. He was mustered out at Montauk Point the September following, re-enlisted in the Thirty fourth United States volunteers as a first lieutenant in 1899, and served on General Funston's staff at San Isidro, Luzon until June 30 1901 when he was again mustered out and appointed treasurer of the province at San Isidro. There he served until April 1, 1902 when he died of consumption caused by his wound.

There are Daughters of diverse names who seek to foster pride of family and to perpetuate the memory of hardships endured by pioneers and of service rendered by soldiers and who because of their affiliations and endeavor are coming to have an influence in the life of today. This Daughter of Michigan whose record as a woman, wife, mother and citizen is so worthy, will stand beside honored graves when she comes home. There lie her grandfather, a first settler, who fought in the war of 1812 and carried to his dying day a rifle ball received in battle, her grandmother, who in a community without a doctor was called upon in all cases of sickness and accident, her father, whose marriage was the first in the township and whose housekeeping began in a log-house, and her husband, a veteran of the civil war. There beside his father will she lay the body of her soldier son when it comes across the sea and continent. Surely her testimony should carry weight.

To the Workers

Shall you complain who feed the world?
Who clothe the world?
Who house the world?
Shall you complain who are the world
Of what the world may do?
As from this hour
You use your power
The world must follow you

The world's life hangs on your right hand
See to it what you do
Or dark or light,
Or wrong or right
The world is made by you!
Then rise as you never rose before
Nor hoped before
Nor dared before
And show as never was shown before
The power that lies in you
Stand all as one
Till right is done
Believe and dare to do

Is your husband a strong willed man? asked Mrs Simpson of her neighbor Mrs Towne. After a moment's reflection Mrs Towne replied:

"I don't know, she said dubiously. I always thought he was but the other day he went into a department store to get a new rug for the sitting room because he said he wouldn't go another day with our old shabby one.

He happened to get off on the wrong floor and he came home with four new fangled flat-irons and a porcelain bottle and no sign of the rug. So you see I don't quite know what to say about him since then.

All he told me was that you never knew just what you needed till you saw it right before you."—(Youth's Companion.

A Thought From the German.

Joy and Sorrow form a part
Of each pulsing human heart
These two sisters side by side
In the soul's deep caverns' bide,
So near are they

Blithsome, gladsome, gay is Joy
Ever seeking to decoy
Sorrow from the heart's dark aisles
To the light of her own smiles
So bright are they.

Sometimes Sorrow falls asleep,
Joy on tiptoe watch doth keep
Lest her footfall near Grief's door,
Rouse her ere her nap is o'er
To sleep no more

The Latest Fashions

ARTIFICIAL flowers have played an important part in the decorating of evening gowns this season, and have played it with distinct success. French dressmakers have used the dainty blossoms lavishly, and in a multitude of ways, in sprays, in lattice work, in stiff little pompadour bunches, in trailing garlands, in fringes, in appliques, in any and every way that the fertile French fancy could devise, and American dressmakers have followed the lead.

But the clever girl who wants to freshen a frock that she has worn too often need not wait for the assistance of an expensive dressmaker. If she has taste and deft fingers she can change her old bodice miraculously with the help of carefully selected blossoms and a little time and patience.

Flower fringes are simple enough to be carried out by anyone who has a modicum of artistic taste. In one instance, the fringe is long and irregular, and is made of narrow, double-faced pink satin ribbons, to which tiny pink roses are fastened, while thickly clustered pink roses form a heading for the fringe and edge the decolletage.

For the other fringe, shaded violets were used, and were not allowed to fall far below the heading. This heading, instead of being formed of flowers, was made of satin ribbons shading from white to deepest violet and braided together, the ribbon and flower fringe coming out from beneath the heavy braiding.

Any other flowers may be used for such fringes, though the very small roses and the violets lend themselves particularly well to the effect. Butter cups, pink-tipped English daisies, and a long list of other flowers may be pressed into service, and almost any color scheme desired may be carried out.

Roses are to the fore again in the trimming which is adjusted in deep pointed garlands over a simple shirred bodice of white chiffon. The roses are the wide open tea roses this time and are fastened with a few of their leaves and stems upon a white satin ribbon that keeps them in place.

One loop of roses falls off the shoulder and over the arm. One falls on either side of the bodice front and there are three in the back. Beneath the open points a soft scarf of chiffon folds round the decolletage and it fastens in a knot and long floating ends in the middle of the bodice front.

Graduated garlands of tiny pink roses hang in chain-like loops over the front of another corsage, the long loops falling quite to the waist line and little garlands of the same flowers drop over the puffed sleeve.

A deep collar of lace of lattice form, shrouded by a scarf of blue tulle has little blush roses appliqued at its angles and a bertha of black net the frill edged over plaitings of rose color chiffon is showered with pink rose petals, in varying sizes but each holding a dewdrop brilliant.

All sorts and conditions of floral corsage sprays and ornaments are in vogue, many of the bunches of flowers having a shower of tiny buds or blossoms dangling from them by narrow ribbons. Shower bouquets are used also to finish the girdle. Garlands, tiny bunches of flowers, floral fringes, head skirt flounces. Blossoms are sewn on the gown in wreaths encircling lace medallions.

The new century girl goes shopping or to the matinee with a silver chain wound about her wrist or attached to her belt from which dangle a variety of silver implements. They include a tiny looking glass which closes into a lozenge-shaped case, a powder box about the size and thickness of a dollar, a writing and pencil tablet, a penknife with three blades, a cylinder for a cigarette holder, a coin purse and a cigarette case with monogram and an enameled clover leaf in one corner.

In place of the cigarette case and holder there may be a bonbonniere for the special comfits most affected, a vinaigrette, a dainty tube for holding the face cream that is a preventive against chapped or roughened lips.

For long automobile trips and similar excursions there are other appliances for the chatelaine which are made in wonderfully small compass. There are curling tongs of toy-like dimensions made of aluminum or silver, magic little dressing combs that shut away in cases which betray no evidence of their commonplace service, little vials just big enough to hold the dash of cordial drops that may be needed.

Among the repairing implements to be carried along in the club bag on excursions which may involve damage are needle books of leather or tapestry furnished with small-bodied large-eyed needles that admit of speedy threading and service, rubber-lined thimbles that can be flattened into small compass, the lightest of diminutive thread clippers and cunning little reels of sewing silk of various shades. The whole outfit is about one quarter the ordinary size.

For a woman who is a health faddist come little gold and silver tablets are cases for holding her chosen nostrums. And if she is prejudiced in favor of one certain brand of soap or complexion cream it may be borne about with her in a dainty gem-studded case, each furnished with chain and monogram or emblem which have much the character of match or cigarette cases.

Exquisite jewel boxes and portemonnaies are made of shark skin that has been bleached to extreme whiteness and glistens like satin on which the sun is allowed to play. Only lately have the artists in leather discovered the secret of doing this, and therefore these articles come high, says the Inter Ocean.

A jewel box of the white substance will have cover and sides inlaid with the scales of a long pike, the Florida fish which dip pearls material preferred for inlaying to mother of pearl. The bone pike scales bear quaint markings, not unlike Chinese characters. They are set in overlapping sections and the pale brown and lustrous tints are an interesting foil to the highly polished dark skin.

Fashion demands jewel holders of light cheerful hue so many skins are being experimented with to produce light pearl or cream tinted leathers of requisite strength and quality. The sea lion's skin is used for costly articles and gold-bound calfskins. All the tanning, rubbing and polishing are resorted to full to obliterate those curious wavy lines on the surface of a sea lion's skin, caused by the animal's wiggling round over the ice. Hence it is stamped forever with an intended decoration. However raw the article it always presents the aspect of an antique because of these odd markings. And this distinction makes it sought after.

Other jewel cases and beautiful aportemonnaies of leather were made derived from pike skin, alum cured, a material so difficult to work in right condition that the manufacturers guard it jealously in locked compartments. The same snake skin cured with a preparation of bark instead of alum makes another variety of material, the one smooth and glossy, the other lustreless. Lava species from 10 to 20 feet long contribute skins of bluish tint. The alum cured skins have a mottled appearance that makes a charming lady with borders of bill gold and formal designs of interlining napery, boards in glazed material and with fine emerald studded heads.

Horizontal tucks in the waists are one of the favorite trimmings for the full plain skirt, and when it is simulated a group of deep flat tucks constitute the trimming which has been mentioned in the Paris fashion journals.

Tucks in the skirt are with a very deep hem, stitched out in soft muslins, or usually trimmed with bands of dark violets and bows and draperies of soft taupe or fawn colored silk ribbon. A large and very fashionable toque, useful in almost every condition has a quantity of tiny tucks composed of three back shaped pieces of soft black taffeta, and in the most becoming fashion possible. In front three small black ostrich tips are placed over the brim which is composed of alternate stripes of taffeta and tucked chiffon.

A charming trimming is made in a mixed white and cream lace with the brim coaxing down on one side and up on the other. Under the brim and resting on the hair are large clusters of shaded violets.

Miss Rose Peterson, Secretary Parkdale Tennis Club, Chicago, from experience advises all young girls who have pains and sickness peculiar to their sex, to rely on Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

How many beautiful young girls are dropping into graves, hopeless invalids, simply because sufficient attention has not been paid to their physical development. No woman is exempt from physical weakness at the time of the pain, and young girls just budding into womanhood should be carefully guided physically as well as morally.

If you know of any young lady who is sick, and needs motherly advice, ask her to write to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., who will give her advice free, from a source of knowledge which is unequaled in the country. Do not hesitate about stating details which one may not like to talk about, and which are mean ful or a full understanding of the case.

Miss Hannah E. Hershon, Collingswood, N. J., says:

"I thought I would write and tell you that, by following your kind advice, I feel like a new person. I was always tired and depressed, and so weak that I could hardly do anything. Menstruation was irregular.

I tried a bottle of your Vegetable Compound and began to improve right away. I continued its use and am now well and strong and menstruate regularly. I cannot say enough for what your medicine did for me."

How Mrs. Pinkham Helped Fannie Kumpe.

The pains in my back and womb have all left me and my menstrual troubles are corrected. I am very thankful for the good advice you gave me and I shall recommend your medicine to all who suffer from female weakness."—Miss FANNIE KUMPE, 1922 Chester St., Little Rock, Ark. (Dec. 16, 1906)

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will cure any woman in the land who suffers from womb troubles, inflammation of the ovaries, kidney troubles, nervous irritability, nervous prostration, and all forms of woman's special ills.

CONSTITUTED NEWS

A NEW game of authors is proposed by a writer in the Christian Endeavor World. It has real educational value, assisting both children and grown people in familiarizing the great names of literature and impressing these upon their memories. It is adaptable to either large or small gatherings and will afford a very pleasant evening entertainment. Give each person a pencil and a list of the conundrums with spaces for the answers opposite. At the end of half an hour, or after a longer time, if desired, read a list of authors, and have the guests correct their papers. Pupils can be exchanged while the list is being read, if desired, and special mention or an inexpensive prize can be awarded.

Another excellent way is to write the conundrums on small cards tied with narrow ribbon, and pin them on the guests. Then let them try to discover which author each represents. The list of conundrums is as follows:

1. Pilgrims and flatterers have knelt low to kiss him. (Pope.)
2. A famous murderer. (Caine.)
3. A city in Texas. (Austin.)
4. A name that means such fiery things
I can't describe its pains and stings (Burns.)
5. A burial and twenty thousand pounds. (Walton.)
6. The man who laughs. (Smiles.)
7. What a small boy said when he finished his piece of cake. (Moore.)
8. In a low musical key. (Longfellow.)
9. The dwellings of civilized men. (Holmes.)
10. Virtuous but wealthy. (Goodrich.)
11. Put an edible grain between an ant and a bee
And a much-loved poet you will see. (Bryant.)
12. Not in need of eyeglasses. (Bewell.)
13. Not one of the four points of the compass, but inclining toward one of them. (Southey.)
14. A sailor, a ruler, a measure of weight. (Tarkington.)
15. A shy animal. (Jarman.)
16. What a rough man said to his son to make him manicure his food. (Chaucer.)
17. A metal and a valley. (Lyndale.)
18. Always it. (Everett.)
19. An emotion and a motion. (Lovelace.)
20. Mends and makes for first-class customers. (Taylor.)

A Page for Women

Edited By ELLA CHRISTIE ADAMS

I — will be free! All else here is all fair,
And her city — it is like the realm of Grif.
Her vales ring out the tre[illegible] on the air,
And [illegible] rise up [illegible] through the rain
In all unknown and hard to understand.
They tra[illegible] it [illegible] Freedom's hand.

I would be free! The little spark of heaven
Set in my soul when life was breathed in me
Is like a flame, this way and that way driven
By ever-wavering winds, which ceaselessly
Kindle and blow till all my soul is hot,
And would consume if Liberty were not.

I would be free! But what is Freedom, then?
For widely various are the shapes she wears
In different eyes and to different men:
And many times, many forms she bears—
Priest and revolution, sword and flame—
All called in turn by Freedom's honored name.

I would be free! Not free to burn and spoil,
To trample down the weak and smite the strong,
To seize the larger share of wine and oil,
And rob the sun my daylight to prolong,
And rob the night of sleep while others wake,
Feast on their famine, barely free to take.

I would be free! Free in a dearer way—
Free to become all that I may or can;
To be my best and utmost self each day,
Not held or bound by any claim of man,
By dull convention, or by foolish sneer,
Or love's mistaken clasp of feeble fear.

Free to be kind and true and faithful; free
To do the happy things that makes life good,
To grow as grows the goodly forest-tree,
By none gainsaid, by none misunderstood;
To taste life's freshness with a child's delight,
And find new joy in every day and night.

I would be free! Ah! so may all be free.
Then shall the world grow sweet at core and sound,
And, moved in blest and ordered circulation
The bright millennial sun rise fair and round,
Heaven's day begin, and Christ, whose service is
Freedom all perfect, rule the world as His.

THAT it is not in any sense a "flowery beds of ease" existance, that of the "first lady of the land," one can easily infer. Still, it is a subject that the other women of the land do not think much about, unless it be some envious ones who would gladly take part in Washington social life if permitted to do so. The report is circulated that Mrs. Roosevelt is in danger of breaking down under the too great strenuosity of the social life at the White house. Since November 1, 200 guests have been kept over night, 36 dinner parties given, 275 guests entertained at luncheon, 50 at breakfast; there have been three state dinners, six musicales, five state receptions and three afternoon receptions by Mrs. Roosevelt.

In addition President and Mrs. Roosevelt have attended eight cabinet dinners and dined with Senators Hanna and Lodge. Commenting on the statistics just mentioned, the Woman's Journal says, "Our anti-suffrage ladies think a woman is too fragile to cast a ballot, yet any one of them would be delighted to assume the duties of the president's wife."

The "fine and sublime art of entertaining" is responsible for entirely too many cases of "nervous prostration" in fashionable life. It begins in the executive mansion and in its widening circles sweeps in every home, large or small. Still in the truly hospitable homes where liberal culture and broad views of life, with its manifold issues, receives the merited attention, affairs, social, are simply conducted. In those homes where the entertainers never try to be "elegant" it will be noted that the friends seem to enjoy coming again. Universally, too, such people are easy and delightful to entertain. They do not overrate externals; they look for, and find the heart of things.

With the gigantic struggle for money and high place, a number of things have crept into our lives unconsciously to ourselves. Not only is a point strained, but many points, more, every available point, in the effort to appear finer and richer than one really is. The simple, comfortable ways of life no longer satisfy and, forsooth, lest the "stranger within our gates" may catch a glimpse of our everyday life, for the sake of maintaining appearances the privilege of our "latch string" is denied. When housekeepers learn the fine art of entertaining thoroughly, there will be no more of the despicable trying to appear what one is not, in the home or out of it; it is the unpretentious people who do the best, be it in the line of hospitality or in a multitude of the little amenities of human existence.

WOMEN AND THE TRAPS.

Since the city council has tacitly ignored the lengthy petition signed by several hundred taxpayers protesting against the present mode of pruning the trees along our beautiful streets, the suggestion may not be amiss that the women of the city are actively interested in the matter.

The work of women's clubs in city and town betterment is attracting a great deal of attention throughout the country. The Woman's club of Lowell, Mass., is conducting a regular campaign against the Locks and Canal company in favor of a more attractive river front. In Lincoln, Ill., the club women have taken entire charge of the railway station park and the public school yards.

Boise, Idaho, has become an oasis of living green in the midst of that vast stretch of sage brush plain. DIRECTORY OF CLUB SPEAKERS.

Miss Helen A. Whittier, first vice president of the Massachusetts Federation of Women's clubs, writes that the fourth annual edition of the directory of club speakers and entertainers will be issued in time to be of service to club committees in arranging programs for the season of 1903-4.

Having received the indorsement of the board of directors of the General Federation of Women's clubs, the directory of club speakers will this year have a greatly extended circulation of a national character. It will be sent free to every club of 10 members or over, in the general federation, and to smaller clubs on application.

It will also be sent to all federated clubs of states, so it will virtually reach every federated club in the United States which requires the services of a lecturer, reader or musician.

The directory contains the names and announcements of those subscribers who desire to lecture, etc. It enjoys the patronage of Redpath's lyceum bureau, of several educational organizations and of many of the most eminent lecturers and musicians in the field.

As Colorado has so many talented women speakers, readers and musicians who are worthy of more than local fame, undoubtedly a list of names can be obtained to insert in this excellent medium for reaching all the clubs in the union. Those desiring information concerning space, etc., may obtain circulars by prompt application to Miss Helen A. Whittier, 50 Chelmsford street, Lowell, Mass.

KINDERGARTEN WORKERS.

What promises to be one of the largest conventions of kindergarten workers ever held in this country is set for April 15, 16 and 17, 1903, at Pittsburg, Pa. It is the meeting of the International Kindergarten union, which consists of all of the kindergarten associations in the country. A similar meeting held in Boston last year, resulted in much of profit and pleasure to those in attendance. Interest in the subject has been of rather slow growth, but that shows here in the Springs during the past few months is an augury of phenomenal advance in the direction of the establishment of free kindergartens within a comparatively short space of time. Altogether too long has this vitally important branch of our educational system been allowed to languish for lack of organized effort. Now that a fine working force has espoused the free kindergarten proposition, there should be no delay in pushing it along.

When the spring comes, the oak tree with its thousands upon thousands of leaves blossoms all over. The great heart of the oak tree remembers every remotest tip of every farthest branch, and sends to each the message and the power of new life. And yet we do not think of the heart of the oak tree as if it were burdened with such multitudinous remembrance, or as if it were any harder work for it to make a million leaves than it would be to make one. It is simply the thrill of the common life translated into these million forms. The great heart beats, and wherever the channels of a common life are standing open the rich blood flows, and out on every tip the green leaf springs. Somewhat in that way it seems to me that we may think of God's remembrance of His million children.—(Phillips Brooks.

Margery's cousin, Cecilia, was 18 and pretty, relates the New York Times. She was also devoted to music and spent hours practicing on a large pipe organ. This, together with the fact that she invariably wore a rapt expression when so engaged, earned for her the nickname of "Saint Cecilia."

It happened that Margery's mamma was called to town and left her 5-year-old daughter in charge of an obliging neighbor. This woman undertook to amuse her young guest by showing her a collection of prints, among which was a copy of the familiar presentation of the patron saint of music seated at the organ.

"This, my dear," said the obliging hostess, "is a picture of Saint Cecilia."

"It doesn't look a bit like her," spoke up the tiny visitor.

"Why, how do you know?" inquired the astonished owner of the print.

"How do I know?" returned the equally astonished Margery. "Why, 'Saint Cecilia' is my own first cousin. She teached me my prayers an' how to play jackstones."

There is always a possibility that the person whom we regard as a proper object for sympathy may look upon it in a different light. This interesting and instructive surprise often awaits the well-meaning bearer of condolence.

When Mrs. Hastings learned that her old friend, Mrs. Warren, had become "stun-deaf," she went, with a long face, to see her.

"It must be an awful cross, Lavinny," she wrote, on the slate which Mrs. Warren presented to her as she was seated.

"Tain't either!" snapped the afflicted one, who though deaf, was by no means dumb. "Folks that have got anything to say can write it on that slate. And Henry Warren, that's had to put a curb on his tongue for upwards o' thirty years on account of the high temper he took from his mother's folks, is now able to say anything he likes and no feelings hurt. I count my deafness a blessing. How's your rheumatism?"—(Youth's Companion.

Beauty for Ashes.

Now the work of my hands, it is lowly,
And the sight of my eyes is not fair;
But, oh bliss! my free thoughts need not tarry,
They fly swifter than swallow wings dare.

They're away to the gardens of beauty,
And they gather the lilies so pure,
Breathe the fragrance of life's orchard blossoms,
Dream dreams of a fruitage that's sure.

There are trips to the tops of the mountains,
Though my feet, they be hobbled so short,
There are flights to the far-away starland,
And swift sails to the heavenly port.

O, the work of my hands need not hinder,
And the sight for my eyes is a foil;
For my heart-life does revel in beauty,
Though my hands are so hardened with toil.

TESTIMONY FROM COLORADO.

UNDER the heading, "More Good Test many From Colorado," "F. M. A." writes in the Woman's Home Journal of February 28 in regard to one of the Springs' most highly respected citizens:

Mrs. Ella L. C. Dwinell, who was born, educated and married in Charlotte, Mich., has been a resident of Colorado for about 18 years. She is soon to return to her native place, and the Charlotte Tribune, in making note of the fact, gives a sketch of her life and work, and of her views with regard to the results of equal suffrage.

Mrs. Dwinell took an active part in the suffrage campaign in Colorado, being secretary for her county. She was the first woman in Colorado to be appointed a notary public, and she served for six years on the state board of trustees of the Deaf and Blind school. She has been department president of the Colorado and Wyoming Woman's Relief corps and is also a member of the Eastern Star.

She says: "I have voted for 10 years, never failing except when in Michigan, where women are not counted as voters. I sometimes hear it said there that equal citizenship is a failure, but Colorado men do not say so. Voting is by no means considered a disgrace to woman, neither is she, by so doing, any the less a true woman. I have yet to hear of domestic trouble growing out of the right of the women to vote. In Colorado it is just as much a matter of course for husband and wife, son and mother, brother and sister to go to the polls to vote as for them to attend the church together, or the theater and cases of starvation because dinner was late sometimes on election day have never been reported. It is by no means an uncommon thing for husband and wife to belong to different parties. Children are as plentiful and well cared for as in Michigan, and no dire calamity has befallen our commonwealth. No state has better laws and it has prospered no less because its women care for its honor as a state, and lend a hand in its upbuilding.

"In fact, in the pioneer full suffrage state of Wyoming, with a record covering over a third of a century, there is a less percentage of crime, of divorce of insanity, of pauperism than in most other states of the union.

"In Colorado the women do not care for the offices, except for the service they can render the state. Since suffrage was granted in Colorado, some woman has always been elected state superintendent of public instruction. The merely political offices are not wanted by women. Women are represented on nearly all the state boards."

When Mr. Dwinell's health began to fail, Mrs. Dwinell entered his real estate and insurance office and for several years was the main support of the family. He died in Colorado Springs in 1890. Of their four children, one died in infancy. The eldest son, Rolla Cushing Dwinell, was captain of company L, Roosevelt's rough riders, and was seriously wounded in the left shoulder in the famous charge at Santiago, July 2, 1898. He was mustered out at Montauk Point the September following. He re-enlisted in the Thirty-fourth United States volunteers as a first lieutenant in 1899, and served on General Funston's staff at San Isidro, Luzon, until June 30, 1901, when he was again mustered out, and appointed treasurer of the province at San Isidro. There he served until April 12, 1902, when he died of consumption caused by his wound.

There are "Daughters" of divers names who seek to foster pride of family and to perpetuate the memory of hardships endured by pioneers, and of service rendered by soldiers, and who, because of their affiliations and endeavor, are coming to have an influence in the life of today. This Daughter of Michigan, whose record as a woman, wife, mother and citizen is so worthy, will stand beside honored graves when she comes home. There lie her grandfather, a first settler, who fought in the war of 1812 and carried to his dying day a rifle ball received in battle; her grandmother, who in a community without a doctor was called upon in all cases of sickness and accident; her father, whose marriage was the first in the township and whose housekeeping began in a log house; and her husband, a veteran of the civil war. There, beside his father, will she lay the body of her soldier son when it comes across the sea and continent. Surely her testimony should carry weight.

To the Workers.

Shall you complain who feed the world?
Who clothe the world?
Who house the world?
Shall you complain who are the world
Of what the world may do?
"As from this hour
You use your power
The world must follow you.

The world's life hangs on your right hand,
See to it what you do!
Be dark or light,
Off wrong or right;
The world is made by you!
Then rise as you never rose before,
Nor hoped before,
Nor dared before,
And show as never was shown before,
The power that lies in you!
Stand all as one
'Till right is done,
Believe and dare to do!

"Is your husband a strong-willed man?" asked Mrs. Sampson of her neighbor, Mrs. Towne. After a moment's reflection Mrs. Towne replied:

"I don't know," she said, dubiously. "I always thought he was, but the other day he went into a department store to get a new rug for the sitting room, because he said he wouldn't go another day with our old shabby one.

"He happened to get off on the wrong floor, and he came home with four new fringed flat-irons and a porcelain kettle and no sign of the rug. So you see, I don't quite know what to say about him since then."

"All he told me was that you never knew just what you needed till you saw it right before you."—(Youth's Companion.

A Thought From the German.

Joy and Sorrow form a part
Of each pulsing human heart.
These two sisters side by side
In the soul's deep caverns' hide,
So near are they.

Hithsome, gladsome, gay is Joy
Ever seeking to decoy
Sorrow from the heart's dark aisles
To the light of her own smiles,
So bright are they.

Sometimes Sorrow falls asleep;
Joy on tiptoe watch doth keep,
Lest her footfall near Grief's door,
Rouse her ere her nap is o'er,
To sleep no more.

The Latest Fashions

ARTIFICIAL flowers have played an important part in the decorating of evening gowns this season, and have played it with distinct success. French dressmakers have used the dainty blossoms lavishly, and in a multitude of ways, in sprays, in lattice work, in stiff little pompadour bunches, in trailing garlands, in fringes, in appliques, in any and every way that the fertile French fancy could devise and American dressmakers have followed the lead.

But the clever girl who wants to freshen a frock that she has worn too often need not wait for the assistance of an expensive dressmaker. If she has taste and deft fingers she can change her old bodice miraculously with the help of carefully selected blossoms and a little time and patience.

Flower fringes are simple enough to be carried out by anyone who has a modicum of artistic taste. In one instance, the fringe is long and irregular, and is made of narrow, double-faced pink satin ribbons, to which tiny pink roses are fastened, while thickly clustered pink roses form a heading for the fringe and edge the decolletage.

For the other fringe, shaded violets were used, and were not allowed to fall far below the heading. This heading, instead of being formed of flowers, was made of satin ribbons shading from white to deepest violet and braided together, the ribbon and flower fringe coming out from beneath the heavy braiding.

Any other flowers may be used for such fringes, though the very small roses and the violets lend themselves particularly well to the effect. Buttercups, pink-tipped English daisies, and a long list of other flowers may be pressed into service, and almost any color scheme desired may be carried out.

Roses are to the fore again in the trimming which is adjusted in deep pointed garlands over a simple shirred bodice of white chiffon. The roses are the wide open tea roses this time and are fastened with a few of their leaves and stems upon a white satin ribbon that keeps them in place.

One loop of roses falls off the shoulder and over the arm. One falls on either side of the bodice front, and there are three in the back. Beneath the open points a soft scarf of chiffon folds round the decolletage and it fastens in a knot and long floating ends in the middle of the bodice front.

Graduated garlands of tiny pink roses hang in chain-like loops over the front of another corsage, the long loops falling quite to the waist line, and little garlands of the same flowers droop over the puffed sleeve.

A deep collar of lace, of lattice form, threaded by a scarf of blue tulle, has little blush roses appliqued at its angles, and a bertha of black net chenille edged over plaitings of rose color chiffon is showered with pink rose petals, in varying sizes, but each holding a dewdrop brilliant.

All sorts and conditions of floral corsage sprays and ornaments are in vogue, many of the bunches of flowers having a shower of tiny buds or blossoms dangling from them by narrow ribbons. Shower bouquets are used also to finish the girdle. Garlands, tiny bunches of flowers, floral fringes, head skirt flounces. Blossoms are sewn on the gown, in wreaths encircling lace medallions.

The new century girl goes shopping or to the matinee with a silver chain wound about her wrist or attached to her belt from which dangle a variety of silver implements. They include a lozenge-shaped case, a powder-box about the size and thickness of a dollar, a writing and pencil tablet, a penknife with three blades, a cylinder for a cigarette holder, a coin purse, and a cigarette case with monogram and an enameled clover leaf in one corner.

In place of the cigarette case and holder there may be a bonbonniere for the special comfits most affected, a vinaigrette, a dainty tube for holding the face cream that is a preventive against chapped or roughened lips.

For long automobile trips and similar excursions there are other appliances for the chatelaine which are made in wonderfully small compass. There are curling tongs of toy-like dimensions made of aluminium or silver, magic little dressing combs that shut away in cases which betray no evidence of their commonplace service, little vials just big enough to hold the dash of cordial drops that may be needed.

Among the repairing implements to be carried along in the club bag on excursions which may involve damage are needle books of leather or tapestry furnished with small-bodied large-eyed needles that admit of speedy threading and service; rubber-lined thimbles that can be flattened into small compass; the lightest of diminutive thread clippers and cunning little reels of sewing silk of various shades. The whole outfit is about one-quarter the ordinary size.

For a woman who is a health faddist come little gold and silver toilet cases for holding her chosen remedies. And if she is prejudiced in favor of one certain brand of soap or complexion cream it may be borne about with her in the dainty, gem-studded cases, each furnished with chain and monogram or emblem, which have much the character of match or cigarette cases.

Exquisite jewel boxes and portemonnaies are made of shark skin that has been bleached to extraordinary whiteness and glistens like flint or granite on which the sun is shining. Only lately have the artist craftsmen discovered the secret of doing this, and therefore these articles command high prices, says the Inter Ocean.

A jewel box of the exquisite substance will have cover and sides inlaid with the scales of a dolphin like, the Florida fish, which supplies a material preferred for inlaying to mother-of-pearl. The bone picks up scales bearing quaint markings, not unlike Chinese characters. They are put on in overlapping sections, and, being a brown and lusterless, are an interesting foil to the highly polished shark skin.

Fashion demands jewel holders of a light, cheerful hue, so many skins are being experimented with to produce light pearl or cream-tinted leathers of requisite strength and quality. The sea lion's skin is used for costly gilt- and gold-bound curio caskets. All the tanning, rubbing and polishing ever resorted to fail to obliterate those curious, wavy lines on the surface of a sea lion's skin, caused by the animal wiggling round over the ice. Hence it is stamped forever with an intrinsic decoration. However new the article, it always presents the aspect of an antique, because of these odd markings. And this distinction makes it sought after.

Other jewel cases and beautiful appurtenances in leather are derived from snake skin alum cured, a material so difficult to get in right condition that the manufacturers guard it jealously in locked compartments. The same snake skin, cured with a preparation of bark instead of alum, makes another variety of material, the one smooth and glossy, the other lusterless. Java snakes from 16 to 20 feet long contribute skins of this sort. The alum-cured skins have a unique, mottled appearance that makes up charmingly with borders of dull gold and corner designs of intertwining asps or lizards in shaded material and with fine emerald-studded heads.

Perfectly plain are backs of the bewitcher waists, the cuffs either the regulation shirt cuff or the turnover chalet cuff of last year.

In the way of colors a thing has come to the fore to usurp the throne of all white. The woman of fashion is and bids fair to continue to be the woman in white.

White cloth, white crepes, all the sheer white fabrics, white linen, white anything and everything are in high favor and apparently will be top notchers of the mode in July as they were in December.

Horizontal tucks lengthwise are one of the favorite trimmings for the full plain skirts and when laid so simulate a group of deep flat gems constituting the mode's plaits, which are so often mentioned in the Parisian fashion journals.

Turban shaped toques, with a very deep brim, carried out in soft mixed straws, are smartly trimmed with bunches of dark violets and chaux and draperies of soft turquoise blue Louisine silk ribbon. A large and very becoming toque, useful for almost any occasion, has a quaintly pretty drawn crown composed of three leaf-shaped pieces of soft black straw, arranged in the most becoming fashion possible. In front three small black ostrich tips curl prettily over the brim, which is composed of alternate frills of straw and tucked chiffon.

A charming spring hat is made in a mixed white and cream straw with the brim curving down on one side and up on the other. This hat is trimmed round the crown with bunches of Neapolitan violets, surrounded by very fine foliage, and secured in place by draperies of very fine cream lace. Under the brim, and resting on the hair are large clusters of shaded violets.

In the way of gloves the suede kid are much worn for dress, and glace or piqueskid for the street, using one large clasp on the latter; while even obtains for dress, although often a black evening gown is accompanied by white gloves. Tan, mode and pearl are the other shades, most of gold, with a fancy for two dark tints. Dressy suits tailored suits—dark red and brown with white buttons of a large size or eight clasps. Long gloves are no worn, less much wrinkled and the ordinary wolution length are of an easier fit than of yore.

Small empire fans obtain in white or black effects. Belts are prinkally with a "dip" and have odd, quaint brooches or clasps; black belts are worn with any color and jet designs are sure to obtain, as jet trimmings are "hit" again. The strap shoe outfids the colonial slipper, which has lost its hold. Umbrellas show pearl handles and horn, with scrolls of gold, carved ivory figures and fanciful front carvings of wood. Bead chatelaines and net fabric purses are styled varied so for another season.

Miss Rose Peterson, Secretary Parkdale Tennis Club, Chicago, from experience advises all young girls who have pains and sickness peculiar to their sex, to rely on Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

How many beautiful young girls develop into worn, listless and hopeless woman, simply because sufficient attention has not been paid to their physical development. No woman is exempt from physical weakness and periodic pain, and young girls just budding into womanhood should be carefully guided physically as well as morally.

If you know of any young lady who is sick, and needs motherly advice, ask her to write to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., who will give her advice free, from a source of knowledge which is unequaled in the country. Do not hesitate about stating details which one may not like to talk about, and which are essential for a full understanding of the case.

Miss Hannah E. Mershon, Collingswood, N. J., says:

"I thought I would write and tell you that, by following your kind advice, I feel like a new person. I was always thin and delicate, and so weak that I could hardly do anything. Menstruation was irregular.

"I tried a bottle of your Vegetable Compound and began to feel better right away. I continued its use, and am now well and strong, and menstruate regularly. I cannot say enough for what your medicine did for me."

How Mrs. Pinkham Helped Fannie Kumpe.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM: I feel it is my duty to write and tell you of the benefit I have derived from your advice and the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. The pains in my back and womb have all left me, and my menstrual trouble is corrected. I am very thankful for the good advice you gave me, and I shall recommend your medicine to all who suffer from female weakness."—MISS FANNIE KUMPE, 1922 Chester St., Little Rock, Ark. (Dec. 16, 1902.)

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will cure any woman in the land who suffers from womb troubles, inflammation of the ovaries, kidney troubles, nervous excitability, nervous prostration, and all forms of woman's special ills.

HOUSEHOLD NEWS

A NEW game of authors is proposed by a writer in the Christian Endeavor World. It has real educational value, assisting both children and grown people in familiarizing the great names of literature and impressing these upon their memories. It is adoptable to either large or small gatherings and will afford a very pleasant evening entertainment. Give each person a pencil and a list of the conundrums with spaces for the answers opposite. At the end of half an hour, or after a longer time, if desired, read a list of authors, and have the guests correct their papers. Papers can be exchanged while the list is being read, if desired, and special mention or an inexpensive prize can be awarded.

Another excellent way is to write the conundrums on small cards tied with narrow ribbon, and pin them on the guests. Then let them try to discover which author each represents. The list of conundrums is as follows:

Grace of motion and ease and dignity of pose are largely mental and depend a great deal upon one's conditions. Why or sensitive people cannot easily overcome awkwardness, because of their self-consciousness and sensitiveness to what others think. They imagine that everybody is watching them wondering why they never got rid of their clumsiness, or guessing where they were seated.

The first remedy is to get rid of self-consciousness, and to believe we are what we would like to be, when our awkwardness and ungainly bearing will gradually disappear. Archbishop Whately, who suffered untold agony from his natural shyness and sensitiveness and regard for what people might think of him, could not find a remedy until he made up his mind to utterly disregard people's opinions, to ignore entirely what they thought of him, and not to think that everybody was watching him, he then quickly overcame his handicap.—(March Success.

SOCIETY

Three Sevens.

"A cup for hope!" she said,
In springtime ere the bloom was old,
The crimson wine was poor and cold
By her mouth's richer red

"A cup for love! How low,
How soft the words, and all the while
Her blush was rippling with a smile
Like summer after snow

"A cup for memory!"
Cold cup that one must drain alone;
While autumn winds are up and moan
Across the barren sea

Hope, memory, love
Hope for fair morn, and love for day,
And memory for the evening gray
And solitary dove.

ENTER a quiet reigned the past week, as it always does, during the very beginning of the penitential season, only broken by a few larger parties given by those whose inclinations do not lead them to a strict observance of Lent

This did not preclude the enjoyment of small teas and informal luncheons together with a table or two at cards afterwards.

More than a ripple on the social sea was caused by the announcement of the engagement of Miss Geraldine Garrison and Mr. John Yule Clark, who have been busy receiving the congratulations of their numerous friends.

The marriage of Miss Mary Lockhart to Mr. Francis Daniel Pastorius, next Saturday at 7:45 o'clock, followed by a large reception from 8 until 10 in the evening, will be the most brilliant event of the early spring.

As Easter falls early this year, there will be abundance of time for much of social gaiety yet. Already authentic rumors are afloat of some elaborate functions for the days immediately after the Lenten season comes to an end Rehearsals are to be started very soon for private theatricals to be given under the supervision of Miss Everhart in aid of local philanthropy. Mrs. Gerald B. Webb and other prominent society people will assist.

Receptions—Teas

Since returning to the Springs Mrs. Chester Alan Arthur has been entertaining her friends very charmingly upon alternate Sunday afternoons at an informal musicale, followed by tea. Mrs. Cortlandt E. Palmer sang very beautifully last Sunday and will probably do so again next Sunday, when Mr. and Mrs. Arthur will entertain their friends for the last time before their departure for Europe.

It is the intention of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur to leave for the east on Saturday, March 21, their destination being Genoa, Italy. After their stay in that city they will next go to Paris for an indefinite period of time.

Wednesday, Mrs. Herbert Edward Packham's day at home was taken advantage of by quite a number of her friends. The hostess was assisted in the receiving of her guests by Mrs. Charles M. Williams. The refreshment table in the dining room was simply yet amply spread. Some of the handsome bridal gifts of Mrs. Packham, in cut glass and silver, with a pretty centerpiece of daybreak carnations and asparagus fern was much admired. Mrs. Gilbert McClurg poured the cocoa.

Mrs. Frederick Cajori and Mrs. Louis A. E. Ahlers were "at home" on Wednesday afternoon in honor of Miss Mary Lockhart. The decorations were fair-leaved clover and hydrangeas. One special object of the gathering was to unscramble the letters in a book of "Wee Willie Winkie" to be given Miss Lockhart.

Among those present were Mrs. Harry Heiner, Dr. H. Jackson, Dunham, Mrs. Vida Langston, Hemming, Mrs. Hirth, Mrs. Gaul, Rex Buchanan, Mrs. C. L. Hemming, Mrs. Thomas Urdahl, Mrs. Fullerton, Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Henry McAllister, Mrs. Harvey F. Noble, Mrs. Harry T. Lowe, Mrs. Robert W. Chapman.

The program included baritone solos by Mr J. The Warwick club members are laying plans for a dance to take place after Lent in the Antlers ball room, but the date has not yet been decided

Dinners—Luncheons

A farewell luncheon was tendered Mr. and Mrs. John G Shields on Friday at the Cheyenne Mountain Country club by Mr. and Mrs. William A Otis It was a rather impromptu affair, so there was no especial decoration, aside from a tasteful arrangement of palms and bananas, suggestive of the tropical journey about to be taken by Mr. and Mrs. Shields.

Besides the host and hostess and guests of honor, those present were Mr and Mrs. J. T. Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Chamberlain, Mr. and Mrs. J. A Connell, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Farnsworth, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bartlett, Mrs. P B. Stewart, and Mr. James P. Pomeroy.

In point of elegance of arrangements the card party of Friday night given by the Skinner residence, 1331 North Weber street, by Mrs. George Brown Tripp and Mrs Lewis Hurley Skinner, has rarely been equaled. A distinct novelty was the innumerable electric lights used for decorative purposes Strings of the lights appeared in the reception hall and in many places fairy electric lamps were ensconeed. Particularly effective was the glow emitting the large bowl, half concealed by smilax, holding ruby-hued fruit punch, which stood on the handsome sideboard in the dining room

American beauty roses were much in evidence in the apartments and the ladies each received one, and the gentlemen were decorated with a bud of that variety. The colors were carried out as far as possible in the refreshments, too in a very pretty fashion,

When the game of six-hundred high five was over the first ladies' prize was awarded to Mrs. A. J Bendle, a beautiful hand-painted vase, the second, a hand-painted tea sieve, to Mrs A. H. Whaite, and consolation, a candlestick in the form of a rose, to Mrs. T C MacDonald.

Gents' first prize fell to Dr. Gillett, a framed Christie picture, second Mr C J Heath, a book, and consolation, Mr. Hatch, a long German pipe.

During an absence of several months in the east Mrs Gilbert McClurg has had some most interesting and unique experiences Being very sure that they would prove entertaining to her wide circle of friends in the Springs Mrs McClurg was asked for a brief recital. She said

"I went to New York in October last to attend the International Congress of American Writers as a member of the council and a speaker There were nearly 500 delegates in attendance from all parts of the world to study the antiquities of America which seem valueless to most of those who live among them

"There were 20,000 pieces of carved turquoise there taken from the Bonito ruins and a superb collection of pottery The illustrated exhibition of the Pueblo pottery and the Navajo blanket are most instructive The mornings and evenings were devoted to papers speeches and discussions and the members of the congress were every day the guests of Morris K Jessup at luncheon served in the building

"The luncheon, which was supplied with the greatest liberality according to my ideas, consisted of coffee chocolate, sandwiches salads cold meats creams and jellies gave rise to some merriment to disinterested observers so different were the tastes of the polyglot assemblage The Germans wanted beer and some found the French dry sherry claret and unlimited dry bread and the Spanish speaking delegates had a hungry look as if they sought tortillas or chile or pulque

"Senor Don Leopoldo Lopez government inspector of antiquities for Mexico came to me to think the Cliff Dwelling association for the permission to open a mound at Mesa Verde and thus from association of ideas regarding ruins began that cross celebrate as to who deserved the credit for the finds made at Monte Alban in Mexico—Senor Batres or Marshall Saville

"The men indulged in a furious altercation with true Latin impetuosity which ended in the recall of Senor Batres by his government and threatened international complications

"President Jessup ordered struck off at Tiffany's beautiful art bronze souvenir medals with the head of an Indian for the members of the congress The congress was entertained at luncheon at Columbia university by president Butler and the faculty, and the meetings closed with a banquet at the St Denis Prof Putnam was toastmaster I had the honor to respond to the toast, 'The Colorado Cliff Dwellings Association' After the congress, the foreign delegates were taken by courtesy of the Pennsylvania railroad, to Philadelphia and Washington, for a banquet

"President Roosevelt received them at the national capital they went to Pittsburg as guests of the Carnegie museum, to the great mound builder ruins of Fort Ancient and to Chicago where they were entertained by the Field Columbian museum This international congress advices for spread zeal for pure American ethology and archaeology and marks a milestone in the new century"

Continuing, Mrs McClurg said "I went east for a rest after my severe illness of last autumn Nevertheless, I lectured eleven times a course of three lectures before the Brooklyn institute and in New York city, Madison, N J, two lectures in Morristown, Montclair, Washington, D C, St Paul and Chicago

"At the close of my Brooklyn course I was made corresponding member of the Brooklyn institute Through the courtesy of Mrs. Demies, S. The Floor of the Pacific Ocean

If the waters of the Pacific could be drained, there would be revealed a vast stretch of territory comprising enormous plateaus, great valleys for which no parallels exist on the land surface lofty mountains, beside which the Himalaya and the Andes would look like hillocks, and tremendous hollows or basins, only to be compared with those on the face of the moon

While there are great mountains and huge basins or "deeps" the plateau areas are by far the most extensive Relatively speaking, the floor of the Pacific as now at last revealed is as the plateau areas in level [illegible] undulations and depressions but the general area is about the same depth below the surface

Annual meeting Chapter C, P. E. O., afternoon, Misses Jordan, 1320 North Tejon street.

THAT the "Colorado Springs Federation of Women" is hereafter to be known as the "Colorado Springs Federation of Women's clubs," will be glad news to the many women who have hopefully anticipated the taking of just such a decided step—marking a distinct advance in the scope and importance of women's club work. This change was made at the meeting held Saturday afternoon.

The meeting of the Social Science department of the Woman's club next Wednesday will be held at the Alta Vista, beginning at 3 o'clock. The study of the industrial system will be continued. The chairman, Mrs. Alberta Garber Scott, will speak on "Theories in Reorganization," 1, "Communism," 2, "Socialism," 3, "Anarchy."

Milton's "Paradise Lost" will be the next book to be studied in the "Masterpiece" course of the Four O'Clock Progress club.

Mrs. Oscar Robert's "20" of the First Congregational church met at the residence of Mrs. Asa T. Jones, North Cascade avenue, at an afternoon tea last Thursday.

Chapter C, P. E. O. will hold the annual election of officers on Saturday, March 14, at the home of the Misses Jordan, 1320 North Tejon street.

The Centennial club met Monday with Mrs. J. A. Himebaugh at the Spaulding. The sentiment for the day was, "No entertainment is so cheap as reading nor any pleasure so lasting." The program included: "Early Poetry," by Mrs. J. C. Rundquist; "Magazine," Mrs. Frowine; "Some American Figure Painters," Mrs. W. H. Slayton.

The Woman's Literary club held yesterday's meeting with Mrs. Lula D. Cox, 1?? North Nevada avenue. The program followed read as follows:

"There Is No Little Thing in Nature, in a Rain-drop's Compass Lies a Panal's Elements."

"Turner," Mrs. E. F. Shepherd.

"Ruskin as an Art Critic," Miss Margaret Morgan.

Topic, "The Young Man's Supremacy in Business and Profession," Mrs. Joseph G. Palmer.

Tomorrow's cooking class will begin at 2:30 p. m., in the sample room of the Alta Vista. Interest runs high and seats are at a premium. Mrs. Snow, the instructor, has a rare gift of imparting the essentials of cooking without ever burdening the pupil with needless directions. This week's lesson is to be on the making of thin and stiffer batters. Tests of baking powder will be given. The demonstration includes waffles with lemon sauce; sponge corn cake; muffins; whole wheat puffs; sponge pudding with creamy sauce. Single tickets, or for the remainder of the course, can be obtained at the door.

The regular monthly meeting of the Colorado Springs Day Nursery association was held Wednesday morning. Mrs. Lawrence, the president, presided. Routine business only was transacted.

The department of art and literature of the Woman's club met as usual on Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. Minnie A. Eldredge had an excellently prepared paper on John Greenleaf Whittier. Mrs. Maude Price had the art paper—treating of "Landscape Painting and Painters, 1828-1860." Being unable to attend, Mrs. Price sent her paper and it was read by Mrs. E. A. Sawyer, the presiding officer.

A rare literary treat can be enjoyed next Thursday evening, March 12,—the lecture given in Perkins hall at 8 o'clock by Mrs. Gilbert McClurg on "Shakespeare in Warwickshire." The lecture is beautifully illustrated, Mrs. McClurg's slides being many of them imported from England. As an accident detained her nearly two months in Warwickshire, much of local color was gained in that time.

Mrs. John Speed Tucker will assist Mrs. McClurg, and a more entertaining or instructive evening could not be had. The lecture is under the auspices of the Washington school art committee, and the proceeds are to be applied toward their fund.

A very successful meeting of the Musical Study class of the Woman's club was held Thursday with the leader, Mrs. G. C. Dickey, 719 North Cascade avenue. Mrs. Dickey's most interesting and instructive lecture was regarding John Sebastian Bach. Mrs. H. H. Seldomridge sang Bach's "My Heart is Ever Faithful," with Mrs. E. C. Sharer at the piano and a violin obligato by Miss Beulah Whalte. The beautiful composition gave such pleasure that by special request Mrs. Seldomridge will repeat it at the musicale of the club in charge of the music committee, Saturday, March 28.

Mrs. Dickey will speak on the origin and evolution of the piano at the study class on March 19.

A special meeting of the executive board of the Colorado Federation of Women's clubs is announced for tomorrow, Monday, March 9, at 10:30 a. m., in the Woman's club building, Denver. Very important business will be discussed.

Tomorrow at 4 o'clock the Four O'clock Progress club has arranged to have their leader, Miss Flansburg, lecture at the Alta Vista. The reading of Dante's Divine comedy has just been completed, and Miss Flansburg will give a resume of the work done on the great poem, together with an interpretation and critical comments, with illustrative charts.

Miss Flansburg's superior ability in this direction has long been conceded. She is an entertaining, forceful and eloquent speaker; besides, she speaks authoritatively, having devoted her life to literary pursuits.

This open meeting will afford many an unparalleled opportunity, as it is intended to make the lecture of such a character as to interest those who have never read the poem or not read it as lately as have the club members, whose recent study has made it familiar.

For the purpose of defraying expenses a small admittance fee will be asked at the door.

Mr. Kew's Shakespeare class met Friday at the home of Mrs. A. B. Littlefield. There were present Miss Violet Gardner, Miss Lucy Hayes, Miss Mamie Hemming, Mrs. J. B. Hendrick, Miss Rose Hughes, Mrs. Jameson, Mrs. A. B. Littlefield, Miss Maud Taft, Mrs. Platt, Mrs. Gerald H. Webb, and Messrs. Grieve, Francis Hill and Tom Robinson. The character of Iago was the subject of a short lecture, and those present generally agreed that he was one of the most remarkable even of Shakespeare's characters, being such a consummate villain. The reading by the members of the class was very good, especially that by Mrs. Webb and Mr. Hill. During the reading and discussion of the fourth act, the characters of Desdemona and Emilia were contrasted, much to the disadvantage of the latter. This week the character of Othello is to be the subject of a lecture, and it is hoped that members of the class will bring papers concerning the Moor. The meeting takes place on Friday at the Antlers hotel.

A Song of the New South.

A song of the South; in new glory fronting a day that is bright;
The shadows fall back from her forehead; she stands in the Light! in the Light
She heard, in the tempest's wild warning, the prophets that prated of doom,
But fared, with her face to the morning, to starred heights of beauty and bloom.

To beautiful valleys enchanted, she passed from the thrall of the night;
By the dust of her graves, all undaunted, she lifted her brows to the Light;
On seas of the thundercloud riven, and tossed of the wind and the foam,
She saw, where the black wrecks were driven, the glimmering shoreline of home.

She stands, with fair Faith for her helmet, in the strength of high purpose and trust;
Dead Hopes to the dead past forever, and she red sword of Hate to the rust.
Strong-sinewed, unscarrying, and loyal, she fearlessly faces the years;
In the white path of Peace and of Progress, o'er landway and seaway she fares.

From her fields in the flowering valleys, all strifes and all discords retreat;
The summers sing to her; the harvests reel golden and rich at her feet.
White-risen from the wrath and the ruin, an anthem exultingly swells;
The dream is the deed as she listens to the chime of the liberty bells.

Onward! to highest endeavor, crowned of the sisterly states!
Onward! and, faltering never,—the world at her welcoming gates!
Onward! in grace and in glory, swelling the past and its scars;
Onward! till splendid her story is writ in the rolls of the stars.

—Frank L. Stanton, in March Success.

Limericks.

Miss Carolyn Wells, in an amusing article on the history of that form of verse known as limericks, in Leslie's Monthly for March quotes examples of these rhymes from the early ones by Edward Lear to those in recent magazines.

Among them are:

There was an Old Man who said, "Do
Tell me how I'm to add two and two."
I am not quite sure
That it doesn't make four,
But I fear that is almost too few."

There was once an Old Man of Lyme
Who married three wives at a time.
When asked, "Why the third?"
He replied, "One's absurd,"
And bigamy, sir, is a crime."

There was an old fellow of Me.
Who was fond of the works of Hall Ce.,
With a wide vacant smile,
He said, "They're good style."
Alas! the poor man was insane.

There was a young man of Ostend
Who vowed he'd hold out to the end.
But when halfway over
From Calais to Dover,
He done what he didn't intend.—

The Matter With South Carolina.

The calm people of South Carolina are entitled to the sympathy of the country for the unwelcome notoriety that the state again suffers in the murder of Editor Gonzales.

Now there are many good men in South Carolina—men whose standards of civilization and of personal conduct are the same as that of good men elsewhere. The state is not a frontier community. It is one of the Original Thirteen. It has long been the home of cultivated society. Why is it, then, that the bully has survived—that men take the law in their own hands, and that murderers are not punished there?

The argument in detail would lead far and would reach over a long stretch of history. But the general fact that explains the state's degradation is that human life is held, and has by a large part of the population, always been held, cheap; and it is held cheap because all men are not considered to have the same rights and privileges. An individual assumes that he and not the organized community is dominant; and the organized community has not asserted itself strongly enough against such an individual assumption. In plain English, the democratic theory of society is not in favor. It is not accepted in the daily life of the people of South Carolina. Such a community is as far off from modern American ideals as a community that existed a century ago.

An aristocracy in a democracy means a group of a few privileged persons; outside this group, the bully; behind the bully an ignorant populace that will elect the bully to office, will hold him in honor and will acquit him of crime. There is yet something structurally wrong in South Carolina, and the many good people of the state have the sympathy of the country in their efforts to reform their social structure. They can do it only by building up all the ignorant and neglected classes. Then B. Tillman could not be a hero, he could not be elected lieutenant governor, he would not even be tolerated, not to say admired and acquitted. No state can rise higher than its average man, no matter how high the personal conduct or how gracious the civilization of some of its individuals.—(From the World's Work.

We [illegible] Year.

Even the most sanguine among the women who attended the meeting held in the Alamo ball room, February 16, last, when, amid some trepidation, the Colorado Springs Federation of Women came into being, could hardly have dared to hope for the equally momentous step taken yesterday—that of metamorphosing the "Colorado Springs Federation of Women" into the "Colorado Springs Federation of Women's Clubs"—in a little over a year's space of time, nor that the Woman's club organized from the open department of the federation the following Thursday, at the residence of Mrs. George Wallace, would be the numerically strong club of the city—one with which the older sister clubs join to form the Colorado Springs Federation of Women's Clubs.

Miss Flansburg, president of the federation, presided at the March meeting of the federation yesterday afternoon at the Alta Vista. Mrs. Ida M. Hamilton, secretary, announced that the following clubs had agreed to federate, namely: Woman's club of Colorado Springs, North End W. C. T. U., Four O'clock Progress club, Monday Progress club, Centennial club, Bay View Reading club.

After several amendments had been offered the resolution prevailed that the "Colorado Springs Federation of Women" be changed to "The Colorado Springs Federation of Women's Clubs."

On motion the annual fee was made $1 for each member of the open department. Each club of 50 members or less shall pay an annual fee of 20 cents for each of its members and each club of over 50 members shall pay an annual fee of $10.

Motion carried that upon payment of dues the president of each federated club be furnished with tickets good until September, 1904, except the Woman's club, whose members shall be admitted upon the presentation of the Woman's club tickets.

Also, motion carried that an executive board be formed to appoint committees to arrange for the entertainment of the state federation next fall, to consist of the board of directors of the federation and the presidents of all the federated clubs, or their representatives; said board to continue to act until the annual meeting of the federation is over. This board will meet Tuesday, March 10, at 4 p. m. with Mrs. Hawks, 420 North Weber street.

The announcement was made that the next meeting of the federation would probably be held in the new Y. M. C. A. building.

The regular program prepared for the afternoon then ensued. The Centennial club had charge and its president, Mrs. W. H. Slayton, took the chair. The subject, "Mexico" was ably handled, as follows: "Mythology," Mrs. M. A. Carter; "History," Mrs. W. H. Slayton; "Architecture," Mrs. J. L. Hay[illegible]ough; "Literature," Mrs. J. W. Garrett. Mrs. Rose Morris Ritchie recited, inimitably, the very humorous "Scene in a Railway Station in the North of England" also as an encore, "A Woman's No."

While the members of the Centennial club served tea in the reception room of the hotel, Miss Strong's Mandolin club played the Mexican ode and other selections.

During the business meeting a letter was read that had been received from Mrs. M. A. B. Coulter, chairman of the legislative committee, C. F. W. C. of the social science department, Woman's club of Denver. Mrs. Coulter urged the co-operation of club women in furthering the passage of the teachers' pension bill, now pending in the legislature.

Boston, March 7.—The annual product of raw sugar is reckoned at approximately 8,000,000 tons, more than half of which is used in the United States. Of this vast amount, practically every pound has to be tested before it goes to the sugar refiners who eventually prepare it for domestic consumption. This test determines the grade of the sugar and therefore the price which will be paid for it and is conducted in a chemical laboratory. But the curious thing is that the sugar is not tested by subjecting it to chemical agents but merely by looking at solutions of it through what at first sight appears very like a small telescope with an incandescent light at one end.

It is only of late years that the importance of these tests has been fully realized. And of the technical schools in this country, the Massachusetts Institute of Technology here in Boston has perhaps the only school laboratory especially devoted to sugar analysis. Indeed, the question which was discussed at the last international meeting of sugar experts, in Paris—of bringing all such tests, the world over, to a uniform standard has not yet been worked out to a satisfactory conclusion.

Grading sugar, as it comes from the sugar plantation to any one of the four Atlantic ports of entry—Boston, New York, Philadelphia, or New Orleans—is a rapid and interesting process. When the sugar is subject to duty the government itself grades it and both consignor and consignee are usually content to accept the verdict of the government's experts. But, since a considerable amount of sugar now comes in without any duty at all, the parties interested appoint their own experts who work independently on either side, but whose tests must agree within three-tenths of one per cent before they are accepted as final. Except for a certain amount of "open kettle" sugar, so called—the "brown" sugar of our grandmothers—from Porto Rico and Cuba, and another variety that comes from Java, our sugar now arrives in 100 or 300 pound bags. Into each bag or hogshead from Porto Rico, or each wicker crate from Java, a long tin tube is pushed diagonally from corner to corner. When this "tier," as it is called, is withdrawn, its contents thus represent every part of the bag or crate. The next bag is sampled in the same way, and the next; and so on until every bag in the cargo has contributed and a big composite sample of the whole consignment has been got together for the test. This is boxed, and the box closed, sealed, and labeled for the chemist.

Only a small part of the contents of the box—thoroughly mixed, of course, so as to be representative of the whole cargo—is however, used for the test, the remainder being sent to the refinery. This small sample is very carefully transformed into a solution which is examined with the polariscope, a piece of laboratory apparatus extremely easy to operate and extremely difficult to explain. Comparatively few men who use the polariscope know the principles upon which it is constructed, the main and important fact being the action of a solution of sugar on a polarized ray of light—a beam of light, that is, that has been already passed through a peculiarly constructed prism of Iceland spar and has, to quote the theoretical explanation, "been reduced to the condition of light vibrating in a single plane of direction." In the polariscope, before the sugar solution enters into the problem, a single ray or pencil of light passes through several prisms of different shapes and thicknesses. And by the mechanical manipulation of the prisms nearest the eyepiece, the ray of light definitely records the changes which it undergoes in transmission.

Now these changes are known and reduced to a scale as are the further changes produced by the passage of light through a solution of pure sugar. After the instrument has been put in working order, a tube of standard length filled with a solution of the sugar to be tested is introduced between the prisms. Here it causes certain changes in the ray of light now passing through it and the operator must immediately change the position of the optical parts of the instrument in order to restore the original conditions on the field of vision. These changes are registered on the scale of the polariscope. If the sugar, for example, is only 10 per cent pure, that fact will be read on the dial at the moment that the original appearance of the field of vision is perfectly restored. If the sugar is of standard purity, the reading will be 100.

Grading brown sugar, practically all of which, nowadays, goes to the refineries, is of course, only a small fraction of the work of sugar analysis—a department of applied science that plays so large a part in modern commerce that hundreds of thousands of dollars may at any time depend upon the exact knowledge of the sugar expert. Many of the students in the sugar laboratory of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology are sent to Cuba, Louisiana, Michigan, and other centers of raw sugar production, both beet and cane, to study their growth and learn at first hand the series of operations by which the sugar houses prepare their product for the refineries.

The samples used in the Institute laboratory are taken from raw sugar that comes to Boston after a portion of the original sample has been graded in the big Boston refinery. And these tests are carried out as carefully as the actual tests upon which the refinery bases its price and usually agree with the work of the professional chemists. Sometimes, too, the students are engaged upon work that has a direct bearing upon the legal controversies of the sugar, glucose and starch interests, starch and glucose being among the allied industries that are part of the studies of the sugar laboratory. Last year, for example, every known commercial form of starch, which is obtained from sugar, was analyzed by students working under the head of the laboratory, who had himself been retained as an expert in a trial involving the right to manufacture a certain kind of starch. The purpose of the analysis was to decide whether two kinds of starch then on the market were so similar that one of them must have been produced by the use of certain chemical "secrets" belonging to the maker of the other. Meanwhile another expert was making a series of investigations to prove that the chemist of the defendant company could have produced the starch in question by an analysis of other starches and that the "secret" was therefore no secret at all, since it could be found out without suborning any of the chemists of the plaintiff company.

Washington Was the Greatest of Rulers.

Never did a country begin its new enterprise with so wise a ruler. An indifferable polity had been adopted but much depended upon getting first work, and the man who was selected to start the government was the most of all men for the task. Histories many and from different points of view have been written of Washington's administration, all are interesting, and the subject seems to ennoble the writers. Statesmen meeting with students to discuss the character and political acts of Washington marvel at his wisdom in great things and his patience in small things, at the dignity and good sense with which he established the etiquette of his office, at the tact which retained in his service two such irreconcilable men as Jefferson and Hamilton. The importance of a good start for an infant government is well understood. But for our little state of four million people so hard a start was difficult to secure. The contentions which grew out of the ratification of the Constitution in the different states had left bitter feelings behind them, and these domestic troubles were heightened by our intimate relations with foreign countries. We touched England, France and Spain at delicate points, and the infancy of our nation was passed during the turmoil of the French Revolution and the Reign of Terror. In our midst there was an English, and a French party. Moreover, in the judgment of the world the experiment of a new government was foredoomed to failure. Wrote Sir Henry Maine: "It is not at all easy to bring home to the men of the present day how low the credit of republics had sunk before the establishment of the United States." Hardly were success to be won but we fallen upon quiet times; but with free governments discredited, and the word liberty made a reproach by the course of the French Revolution, it would seem impossible.—(From "The Presidential Office," by James Ford Rhodes, in the February Scribner's.

The ring is intact, alert and hopeful. They are "playing for time." The convicts sitting in the municipal assembly, the convicts appealing to the higher courts, the rich men, through the bankers down town—all are waiting for something. What are they waiting for? Charles Kratz, the ex-president of the council, was asked this question in Mexico.

"I am waiting for Joe Folk's term to expire," he answered. "Then I am going home to run for governor of Missouri and vindication."—(Lincoln Steffens, in March McClure's.

Other New Books

"Lady Rose's Daughter," new book by Mrs. Humphrey Ward, illustrated by Howard Chandler Christy. The critics of England and America unite in saying that in "Lady Rose's Daughter" Mrs Humphrey Ward has written a novel that will live among the masterpieces of English literature.

"The Star Dreamer," by Egerton Castle, author of "The Pride of Jennico," "Light of Scarthy," etc., is another good book just published. It is not a historical novel, a sex novel or a problem novel, but the most romantic love story that has been written by this novelist.

Its plot is unusual, absorbing and at times thrilling.

LADY EN EDITORIAL STAFF OF LEADING PERIODICALS WEEKLY

Sends the Following Grand Testimonial to the Merits of Cuticura Remedies in the Treatment of Humours of the Blood, Skin and Scalp.

"I wish to give my testimony to the efficiency of the Cuticura Remedies in what seems to me two somewhat remarkable cases. I had a number of skin tumours—small ones—on my arm which had never given me serious trouble; but about two years ago one came on my throat. At first it was only about the size of a pinhead, but, as it was in a position where my collar, if not just right, would irritate it, it soon became very painful and began to grow rapidly. Last spring it was as large, if not larger, than a bean. A little unusual irritation of my collar started it to swelling, and in a day or two it was as large as half an orange. I was very much alarmed, and was at a loss to determine whether it was a carbuncle or a malignant tumour.

"My friends tried to persuade me to consult my physician; but dreading that he would insist on using the knife, I would not consent to it. Instead I got a small bottle of Cuticura Resolvent and a box of Cuticura Ointment. I took the former according to directions, and spread a thick layer of the Ointment on a linen cloth and placed it on the swelling. On renewing it I would bathe my neck in very warm water with Cuticura Soap. In a few days the Cuticura Ointment had drawn the swelling to a head, when it broke. Every evening it was opened with a large sterilized needle, squeezed and bathed, and fresh Ointment put on. Pus and blood, and a yellow, cheesy, tumorous matter came out. In about three or four weeks' time this treatment completely eliminated both the tumour. The scrofulous that had extended down into my chest was all gone, and my neck now seemed to be perfectly well.

"About five or six years ago my sister had a similar experience. She had two large lumps come under her right arm, the result of a sprain. They grew rapidly, and our physician wanted to cut them out. I would not listen to it, and she tried the Cuticura Remedies (as I did a few months ago) with magical effect. In six weeks' time the lumps had entirely disappeared, and have never returned.

"I have great faith in the Cuticura Remedies, and I believe they might be as efficacious in similar cases with other people, and thus save much suffering, and perhaps life. I have derived so much benefit from the use of them myself that I am constantly advising others to use them. Recently I recommended them to an office boy for his father, who was disabled with salt rheum. The man's feet were swollen to an enormous size, and he had not worked for six weeks. Two bottles of Cuticura Resolvent and two boxes of Cuticura Ointment worked a perfect cure. You never saw a more grateful man in your life.

"I am very much interested in another case where I have recommended Cuticura just now. My housemaid's mother has a tumour which had reached a very dangerous point. The doctors told her that nothing could be done; that she could live only two or three weeks, and that she would die of strangulation. She was confined to her bed, and was unable to speak, when her daughter, at my suggestion, tried the effect of the Cuticura Ointment and Cuticura Resolvent. Strange to say, she was very shortly relieved of the most distressing symptoms. The swelling ceased to be exteriorized, and she is now able to be around her house, and can talk as well as ever.

"It seems to me that I have pretty good grounds for believing that Cuticura Remedies will prove successful in the most distressing forms of blood and skin humours, and if you wish to use my testimonial, as herein indicated, I am willing that you should do so, with the further privilege of revealing my name and address to such persons as may wish to substantiate the above statements by personal letter to me."

Good Angel of Cabbage Patch

On a terrace, a little back from the street, in the handsome residence portion of Fourth avenue, Louisville, is a commodious red-brick house standing by itself in pleasant grounds, beneath whose hospitable roof there assembles periodically during the winter months a little coterie of clever women who read aloud original short stories, poems, and sketches which they afterwards discuss and frankly criticise. The hostess on these occasions is a young lady who, ever since she left school about ten years ago, has not been content to give all her energies to social pastime, but has had a constant ambition to write. Slightly above the medium height, with dark hair and eyes, animated in conversation and intensely interested in almost every phase of life, Miss Alice Caldwell Hegan is one of the leading spirits of this southern literary club, because of her charmingly vivacious personality, her social tact, and her cleverness with the pen. Until about a year ago she considered herself merely an amateur, and had tried various kinds of story and sketch writing with varying success. It was not easy for her to find time for regular work because the members of her family were shining exponents of southern hospitality.

We in the north can hardly realize what the Kentucky idea of "open house" means. The Hegan home was the city rendezvous of a large group of friends and relatives who lived in the neighboring but lesser towns of Lexington, Covington, and Shelbyville, and in the country round about. These people, with delightful ingenuousness, would drop in, singly or in groups, for a few days' visit at any time, seldom thinking of giving notice beforehand. Consequently the Fourth avenue home was in its normal condition when overflowing with guests, and as the daughter of the house is of practical as well as literary turn of mind, her writing could be done only at odd moments and when there happened to be a quiet household.

Then, too, there were the week-end parties "out at the cabin" which interfered with work and which from early spring till late autumn were a family institution. This cabin was built of logs chinked in with plaster, built in the forest a few miles out of town, a forest which the Hegans owned and loved. It had a giant porch running entirely around it with a "dog-trot" or open passageway through the center, with an outside stairway in it rising to the bedrooms. On one side of this "dog-trot" was the large dining room on the other a living room, and the kitchen was a "lean-to" at the rear. The countryside had been scoured for quaint old furniture, and the cabin had four-post bedsteads, old pewter and engravings, rag carpet, splint-bottom chairs, raised a few inches and designed to hold the vegetable dishes, so that one could secure some viand on the other side by turning this central part of the table around. Between meals one quenched his thirst from the water gourd and bucket of spring water in the kitchen, and here, far from town, with the leafy Kentucky forests shutting out the world on all sides the merriest of house parties assembled almost every week for a day or two of pioneer life for tramping and riding, for lazy hours in the hammocks swung on the porches, and for companionship with congenial friends. Over the dining room fireplace, just under the Revolutionary musket is painted this motto:

"He who a cheerful nature owns
A palace rears from hovel stones."

And this is the very spirit and idea of this little log cabin in the woods.

The longing to accomplish something grew stronger each year, and, after dipping into Kentucky history and trying various themes more or less historical, Miss Hegan suddenly realized that what she could probably do best was that which lay nearest at hand. It lay, in fact, so near at hand that she had been steadily over-looking it. The Cabbage Patch. For years she had been executing unobserved acts of charity in this forlorn and unbeautiful part of Louisville. Here, "where ramshackle cottages played hop-scotch over the railroad tracks," she had been a regular and welcome visitor. All doors were opened to her, and to her sympathetic ears the woes of the neighborhood were poured out. Winter after winter she had done much to relieve the stress of poverty, and the incident in her book of the letter to the newspaper, and the instant responses in money, clothes, and food it brought to a stricken family, was founded on an actual occurrence.

Curiously enough, that which probably made her such a welcome visitor among these people of the Cabbage Patch was what has been the chief element in her success—her strong love of humor. She has to a remarkable degree a quick and acute sense of humor—humor, that is, which is funny and humor which is pathetic, she sees the pathos in life as sensitively and appreciatively as she does the incongruous and the absurd. So she thoroughly understood the various phases of lowly human nature in this squalid part of Louisville and established among its people a strongly human understanding with them.

And so when the idea came to her of writing up her own experiences she had but to add a thread of fiction to change a few names and concentrate the innumerable episodes, and the book seemed actually to write itself. It seemed absolutely spontaneous. Yet when it was written she mistrusted it and worked over it with painstaking care, and even when she felt she could do no more with it she had the gravest doubts over this little record of some of her own experiences. Of course the introduction of the love episode was the fiction which strung the scenes in the story together and it was with many misgivings that "Mrs Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch" was offered for publication.

About a year ago Miss Hegan, while in New York, had the pleasure of calling upon her publishers and receiving in her hands the first copy of a modest little green-covered book of about one hundred and fifty pages. She turned the leaves with shy but intense interest and wondered if it would ever be noticed among all the large and beautiful books which were coming out. This was her first real venture in the field of letters she had looked into from afar for so long. Almost at once the little tale began to be read and talked about, soon a thousand copies were sold then five, ten, fifteen thousand! Her picture was sought after for publication new editions were quickly exhausted twenty, thirty forty, fifty, sixty thousand copies went and still the new editions are quickly disposed of, and within the year this Louisville girl has emerged as the writer of one of the most popular most wholesome and human books of recent years.

What is the secret of its success? It is full of human love and sympathy. It was written from the heart, without self-consciousness or false motives but with simplicity and sincerity. It shows a subtle earnestness of purpose which shines behind all its mirth. It is deliciously humorous because the humor is perfectly natural, it is pathetic without being sentimental, and with all its pathos it is never sad because there is not a note of despondency in it. Its optimism is constant, and it is a perfectly true and convincing picture of life.

Another book by Miss Hegan is about to appear. It is called "Lovey Mary," and the scenes are laid in the same Cabbage Patch. The question naturally arises. Can she repeat her success? There is no reason in this case why she should not. As she herself has remarked "The Cabbage Patch is full of stories." And no one will doubt that if they are to be found the author of "Mrs Wiggs" will find them for success has not robbed her of her freedom from self-consciousness and any of the charity deserving residents of that part of the town will tell you that she herself is still the good angel of the Cabbage Patch. (William Frederick Dix in the Outlook.

A Century of Transatlantic Steaming Crowned by the Launching of the Giant Cedric

New York, March 7.—With the coming and going of the big transatlantic liners, the arrival of even the greatest vessel in the world creates comparatively little interest nowadays. Perhaps no merchant ship, that is, will ever have again have the long celebrity that crowned the career of the Great Eastern. Yet merely as a ship, she was a melancholy failure. She stuck on the ways and would not launch for six months, she bankrupted several of owners, and her designer, the brilliant engineer Brunel, died of a broken heart. Only as a museum with an admission to the crowd at so much a head was the Great Eastern profitable, only as a slow layer of ocean telegraph cables did she ever succeed in any maritime undertaking. Yet a feeling of real regret encircled the whole English-speaking world when the colossal iron hull, which had patiently borne the stress of the sea and the buffetings of fortune, was at last condemned to the scrap heap and broken up for junk.

The recent arrival of the White Star liner, Cedric, however—the largest "leviathan of the seas," and the biggest and the staunchest of them all—is more or less of an exception to the above generalization. The Cedric, too, has other claims to general interest than size. For one thing, she is the newest liner in the great fleet of seven-score steamers lately united by the much talked of shipping merger, whereby American, Belgian and British lines having an international reputation and owing allegiance to their respective governments, have been brought together by the financial diplomacy of an American financier, under one common, gigantic control. Despite the alarm in the combination by no means moribund among the ocean traffic of the 20th century, but it is at least highly significant of the fact that American capital, within half a century of railroad development and accompanying neglect of the seas, has turned its attention to the ocean as a field of investment.

And the "why?" want? How will it pay—financially speaking? What is the history of the Inman? Merchants have long sought way to give the "combine" its full title and its convenient name? A part of the answer is given in the big new liner which has just left the Mersey. The Cedric is at once the latest and the best of modern ocean liners, but not the biggest. That is to say, she is not the biggest of modern ocean liners, but she is the biggest of a class of steamers which, by the building of the American liners St Louis and St Paul apparently marking the swing of the pendulum towards steadiness and regularity and away from mere record breaking.

The Cedric, virtually a somewhat bigger twin to the White Star liner Celtic, built two years ago, is a wider and larger vessel than the Oceanic, her increased width making her unusually steady—"steady as a church" her captain called her on her arrival from Liverpool. Moreover her increased size means, under certain conditions increased speed into the bargain, for she can be driven into head seas more safely and successfully, and can lift above a heavy wave instead of plunging deep into it. Her two quadruple expansion engines develop a moderate but sufficient speed of 17 knots an hour, and this rate can be far more successfully maintained from land to land than if it were 20 knots or over. It is significant, therefore, that the Cedric is a sane and wholesome type of vessel large, graceful, powerful and swift, but all within the limits of common-sense safety.

In all these points there is a tremendous difference between the new ocean giant and the famous Great Eastern—a difference that is worth stopping a moment to note, to see how far we have come. Brunel anticipated wonderful things of the speed performance of his vessel. In those experiments years just before the Civil war, marine engineering was anything but the fine exact science which it has since become; and it was not positively known whether side-wheel or screw-propeller was superior for deep sea navigation. As a matter of fact, the most successful ocean steamers of that day were side-wheelers in both the American and British services; but Brunel determined to take no chances and gave his ship colossus both side wheel and screw.

In smooth water and light winds the Great Eastern was successful, but when she met the—sterly gales and long gathering seas of the open Atlantic, her topsides quite, with the vast width of its front, was like a battlack in a cyclone. Once she—twice—by beaten to a standstill by the hurricanes was worst of Atlantic, and struggled to return to England with her freight and passengers she abandon her voyage altogether. That was before the days of the great bulk heads and power to drive it through the gale, over the long steep Atlantic rollers. But no—to that evil Vesta can stop the Cedric. It would be a rash jumper that can pass down by even two or three days of blowing if knots an hour. The "steady" qualities of the mammoth of the sea, in a word, are those upon which depend her success of safety-catching or the immediate—[illegible] in the hand affliction with us.

describing a big ship is to tell how big she is. Perhaps it does not signify very much to landsmen that the Cedric is of 21,000 tons of gross register or 38,000 displacement, for to them such nautical figures are vague at best. If not absolutely unintelligible. But it gives a vivid idea of the magnitude of this greater than the Great Eastern to say that the 800,000 bushels of wheat which the Cedric could carry if necessary represents the yield of 400 average 160-acre western farms—enough to require 480 large freight cars, or 20 trains of 24 cars each to transport it from the wheat fields to the ocean.

A CHANGE FOR THE BETTER.

The Way Physicians Now Treat Catarrh

Physicians who formerly depended upon inhalers sprays and local washes or ointments now use Stuart's Catarrh Tablets because as one of the most prominent stated, these tablets contain in pleasant, convenient form all of the really efficient and reliable catarrh remedies, such as red gum, blood root and Hydrastin.

They contain no cocaine or opiate (so common in liquid catarrh medicines and cough syrups) and they are given to little children with entire safety and benefit.

Dr J. J. Reitinger says: I suffered from catarrh in my head and throat every winter and it would hang on clear into summer, with stoppage of the nose and irritation in the throat affecting my voice so that was continually clearing my throat before I could speak plainly; it finally extended to the stomach, causing catarrh of the stomach.

I bought a fifty cent box of Stuart's Catarrh Tablets at my druggists, carried them in my pocket and used them regularly several times a day and the way in which they cleared my head and throat and improved my hearing and general health I consider little short of remarkable. I had no catarrh last winter and spring and know I am entirely free from any catarrhal trouble whatever.

Mrs Jerome Allison of Wheeling writes: I suffered from catarrh nearly my whole life, and last winter my two children also suffered from catarrhal croup and sore throat so much they were out of school a large part of the winter. My brother, who was cured of catarrhal deafness by using Stuart's Catarrh Tablets, urged me so much to try them that I sent to the drug store and bought a package, and I am truly thankful for what they have done for me and my children. I always keep a box of the tablets in the house and at the first appearance of a cold or sore throat one or two of the catarrh tablets nips it in the bud and catarrh is so far a trifling affliction with us.

WOMEN SHOULD HAVE MONEY TO SPEND.

It's the Little Things That Men Enjoy That the Fair Sex Needs

Having the bills paid is all very well. It's much better than not having them paid. But women like the handling of money as well as do men. They like to pay for their own purchases and open their own parcels. If you men cannot sympathize with this eccentricity consider how well you like to clip the coupons from your own cigars and open your own mail with a favorite knife to Collier's Household number for March. Consider how well you'd have liked going through college with all your bills paid, but not a cent in your pocket. Maybe while you are considering, how you would like being asked to a banquet and having somebody else pay for you. I have known women whose fathers were millionaires and whose bills were paid without question, who were compelled to wait for the carriage whatever their errand or its distance because they never had carfare. Invariably these women were reckless in extravagance. They rarely asked the prices of things they ordered as it was a matter of no concern to them. Yet with the rare and precious cash dollars that came their way they were economical to the verge of stinginess. The moral whereof is plain.

If you would have your womenfolk economical, let them handle money and learn to respect its value. There may be women who have not sufficient womanliness to honor the confidence this trust implies but they are exceptions. If such be your daughters, it is your business to teach them otherwise. If they be your wives it is your own fault for having married them.

When a father gives his son an allowance he should do the same for his daughter, not as a matter of material favor—for the daughter's bills might double the son's allowance—but as a matter of discipline, of financial experience and education. The girls who dress and keep themselves within the limits of a stipulated allowance are usually the best-dressed, yet their bills are invariably smaller. It is to their interest to get all they can for their money, and their dollars go twice as far as the girls' whose bills are paid. And these are the girls whose training is fitting them to be good wives and helpmates of men provided the men they marry have sufficient shrewdness to share their confidences and their incomes, and to trust their wives to aid in making the family fortunes solid. In the humbler walks of life, where the husband's earnings are so scant it is incredible that they can cover the mean necessities of life, these households are uniformly more thrifty where the husband turns over his entire earnings to the wife. His days are full of toil and his evenings of fatigue. He has neither the time nor the energy to figure and plan to make "both ends meet." But she—she manages to supply their needs and pay the bills paid; she ma-

Office Hours 10 to 5 daily; Sundays 10 to 12; Wednesday and Saturday Evenings, 7 to 8.

The Ludan Physicians are the oldest specialists in Colorado today. They are the most remarkable physicians of this or any other American city. Dr. L. D. Campbell is still retained as Resident Physician. They are true specialists. They treat each patient with the utmost care. Their relations with their patients are always sacredly confidential. They will cure you after all drug store treatments have proved ineffective. Consult them today, free of cost. It is their mission to bring back the hopeless to hope and [illegible]

Are always reasonable and within the financial reach of all. In fact the Ludan Medical Institute was originally intended to render the cure of the unfortunate less cruelly expensive. It was found, however, that in addition to its inherent excellency it afforded a higher degree of skill and general medical ability than people of the largest means were heretofore able to obtain. The splendid support we are receiving is not only from the poor but from all classes, rich, poor, educated, ignorant and cultured. Newspaper writers are not fools, they are not ignorant or unintelligent. They are alert, sharp, shrewd. They soon discover that they can save money and time by dealing with honest advertisers.

The Institute is organized to treat venereal and sexual diseases with their complications. We cure these diseases. It is capable a man to banish forever the skeleton of weakness, blood taint, all the diseases which might otherwise prevent a happy married life.

No man wishes to be weak or deficient, but it is only through a course of treatment by trained experts that deficiency can be overcome, and functional strength restored. With the development also comes happiness which is inseparable from the consciousness of a perfected and harmonious organism.

Our treatment for nervous debility, neurasthenia, weakness and impotency is a rational and common sense one, founded upon hygienic and physiological laws. Science has demonstrated that development depends on cell formation and that these cells are supplied from the "haemoglobin," a component part of the blood.

Our treatment acts as a tonic to the nutritional function of cells, increasing degree of activity of and proper

We refer with pleasure to the thousands in Colorado whom we have brought back to health, happiness, hope and a full enjoyment of those powers with which nature endowed them.

We have no single remedy which cures everything, no appliance which drives away disease, but we study with care each individual case and overcome each disorder and its complications by the rational method, step by step. Fish Ejected by Volcanoes.

The stories of dead fish thrown up by volcanoes have been revived by the recent West India catastrophes. In particular, great quantities of them are reported to have been cast into the sea from the island of St. Vincent. It is pointed out by a French expert, M. Giraudin, that these fish are simply the denizens of the lakes formed in the craters during their long periods of inactivity. A crater first becomes clogged, then fills with water, and the water is in time peopled with fish that find access to it through subterranean channels. POLICE ATTORNEY MAKES MOVE

(By Associated Press Exclusively to the Gazette in Colorado Springs.)

Buffalo, N. Y., March 7.—In their eagerness to solve the mystery surrounding the assassination of Edward L. Burdick, the police today made a false move. They immediately retraced their steps when it was found that the district attorney considered their case to be entirely flimsy.

Marion M. Hutchinson, a young woman, formerly employed in Burdick's office, was taken to police headquarters by detectives at an early hour. She was not under arrest, the police say. Her attorneys says she was. After being detained for five hours she was relieved because the police could find absolutely nothing against her.

The result of the day's work brings the authorities no nearer a solution of the mystery than they were a week ago. Miss Hutchinson, who is a very attractive young woman in appearance, came here about a year ago with her mother and sister Florence, from London, Ont. Soon after arriving in this city, Miss Hutchinson secured a position on a monthly paper printed by Edwin L. Burdick at his envelope factory. Last January she left his employ. Since then she has been singing in a church choir, but has not been employed at any kind of work.

Phillip V. Fennelly the attorney who is acting for Seth Paine set about to secure Miss Hutchinson's release, obtaining from Justice White of the supreme court a writ of habeas corpus directing the police to bring Marion Hutchinson before that court. After serving the writ, the attorney, accompanied by Miss Florence Hutchinson returned to Justice White's chamber where the writ was to be argued. Soon afterward Marion Hutchinson left headquarters accompanied by a detective. The detective however did not place any restraint upon her movements. Mr. Fennelly telephoned to Justice White who was at the Elliott club asking if the girl could be brought before him there.

"Is the young woman under arrest?" asked Justice White.

The attorney informed Judge White that the officers said the girl was not under arrest.

"Tell them to release her at once," said Judge White.

Then Mr. Fennelly was told by the police that the girl was not under arrest at all, that she had never been under arrest and that she was at liberty to go wherever she pleased.

The two sisters and their attorney then left the building.

It soon became evident that the police and the district attorney's office had worked in conjunction in taking Miss Hutchinson into custody. Later the following statement was given out:

"What seemed to be reliable information having reached the police department last evening that a certain young woman living in the city might have some valuable information regarding the murder of Edwin L. Burdick we requested this woman to come to police headquarters this morning and give any information she might have. She came and made a statement. She was at no time under arrest.

"The foregoing statement was given out by the district attorney's stenographer." He said the statement was from the police department. Mr. Coatsworth also stated that the statement emanated from the police department and not from the district attorney's office. Superintendent Bull was then seen.

"Did the police issue this statement?" he was asked.

"The statement was issued by the district attorney," replied Mr. Bull. "The district attorney wrote the statement."

"And you did not issue the statement?"

"No, sir."

"But the district attorney says the police gave it out?"

"That does not make any difference. It did not come from me."

Superintendent Bull then issued the following statement:

"Miss Hutchinson was brought to police headquarters as a result of an identification by a hackman whose name I cannot recall who said that the woman was one whom he took to Dagmar street and Ashland avenue on the Thursday night of the murder. That identification was positive. The further reasons were that a woman answering the description of this woman was seen by Patrolman Meyer at about 1 10 o'clock Friday morning at Bryant and Ashland avenue near the Burdick home. A further statement made to the authorities was that a young woman answering Miss Hutchinson's description was seen in the upper part of the city by a well-known citizen who says the woman told him she had lost her way and that she wanted to get to Main and Tupper streets. Miss Hutchinson lives on Tupper near Main street."

"And why was the woman released?"

"I was not present when the woman made statements to the district attorney. I have been informed however that the woman convinced her interrogators that she could prove an alibi by her mother, her sister and Mrs. Coghlan who runs a boarding house where she lives also by a woman friend. The woman was released because she convinced the authorities that she was not the one they wanted."

Exploded theories and vanishing clews do not discourage the authorities. They have turned with determination to establish the identity of the lone woman met on Ashland avenue by Patrolman Meyer and to establish if possible some connection between her and the woman taken to the vicinity of the Burdick house by Cabman Joy on the night of the murder. If they can prove that they are one and the same person they believe they will have the woman who killed Burdick. If it turns out that they were different persons they believe one of them will be the right person.

Chief Gooack tonight is said to be working on a new clew said to have been furnished by Charles Merrill a private watchman who covered several blocks on Summer street. Merrill claims to have seen a man and woman on Summer street near Elmwood about 1:45 o'clock on the night of the murder. He stepped into an alley and the couple stopped under a light. He heard the man say:

"Well, you can go as far as the stoop with me anyway." The woman hesitated and then they started towards Elmwood avenue in the direction of Ashland avenue. About 2 o'clock he met the man again on Summer street. Merrill did not see the woman. He says he can recognize the man, who spoke with a German accent.

SEVEN YEARS FOR FORTY-FIVE MEN

(By Associated Press Exclusively to the Gazette in Colorado Springs.)

Glens Falls, N. Y., March 7.—Nineteen men are dead as the result of the capsizing of the boat used by the workmen at the Spire falls about 10 miles west of Glens Falls on the Hudson river. More than 1,000 men are employed there at present in the construction of the power dam of the Hudson River Power company. The laborers and many of the masons are Italians who live in shanties on the north side of the river. The main portion of the work is carried on at present from the opposite side of the river. The men have been in the habit of crossing a small bridge where the river flows through the unfinished portion of the dam, but the river has been rising for several days and the company, fearing the bridge was unsafe, destroyed it with dynamite.

Below the work about a half mile is a ferry. The boat is a scow-shaped affair 30 feet long and 13 feet wide, and is operated by means of cables. It is large enough to carry a heavy load and as many as 150 men have been taken across at one time. Yesterday when the men were being carried across, an Italian boy became frightened and fell overboard. He was rescued however. This morning 70 or 80 men got aboard and the boat started, leaving a big crowd on the bank waiting for the next trip. When a few feet from shore the water splashed against the rail, and the boy who had fallen over the previous day, seized one of the tackle ropes which ran from the overhead cable to the stern of the boat. Some of the men started toward him and instantly the boat careened and filled. The Hudson, swollen by the fresh rains, bore a score or more of the struggling men down the stream. Many others succeeded in catching hold of the boat which had righted and they clung there until they were pulled ashore.

The wildest excitement prevailed but the current carried many of the men toward shore where they were rescued. Teams were quickly harnessed and loaded with skilled log drivers and sent down along the river to points where the bodies would likely be found. Dozens of dinner pails, hats and coats were fished out, but it was nearly 6 o'clock before the first body was found. This was found in a log jam two miles below the dam and was recognized as that of an Italian interpreter.

The river for miles is being watched and dragged in hope of finding the bodies of the other victims. There were but two or three English-speaking men on the boat, the Italians being all designated by number. The rolls of the men were called and tonight everybody has been accounted for but 16 men and it is certain these men were drowned. Those known to be dead are:

Michael Kennedy, married, leaving a wife and four children.

Fred Forran, married, Italian.

Cigarette, the Italian boy who started the panic.

Sixteen others are missing. It is unlikely that all the bodies will be recovered. The river is full of logs and at the high boom five miles down the river there are many thousands of them.

CLARK'S APPOINTMENT IS INDORSED BY DEMOCRATS

(By Associated Press Exclusively to the Gazette in Colorado Springs.)

Washington, March 7.—The Democratic steering committee of the senate held a session today for the purpose of considering the question of filling vacancies on the senate committee. After the committee adjourned Senator Gorman said that the committee had been indirectly informed that it is the policy of the Republican senators not to fill the committee vacancies during the called session and that if this policy should be adhered to, the Democrats could do nothing in that direction. He added that at any rate the Democratic managers would wait upon the Republicans and would necessarily conform to their wishes in the matter.

The committee decided to recognize the propriety of Senator Clark's appointment as a member of the committee on foreign relations to succeed Mr. Bailey. It was stated that Mr. Bailey, before withdrawing from the committee and suggesting Mr. Clark as his successor, consulted individual members of the steering committee. The committee had Senator Clark in mind two years ago for the place and would have put him on the committee then had there been a vacancy.

SCHLEY DODGED RUNAWAY.

(By Associated Press Exclusively to the Gazette in Colorado Springs.)

Riverside, Cala., March 7.—Admiral Schley and party were the guests of citizens of Riverside today. The party was taken for a ride over the city in auto cars. The admiral and party narrowly escaped a collision with a runaway team on Hawarden drive. It was averted only by the skill of the chauffeurs who backed the machines up the hill out of danger just as the runaway dashed past them.

MORGAN PLEADS FOR AMENDMENT OF TREATY

(By Associated Press Exclusively to the Gazette in Colorado Springs.)

Washington, March 7.—The senate committee on foreign relations was in session for an hour and a half today. During most of this time the Panama canal treaty was under discussion but the committee adjourned until Monday without taking action on it. The greater part of today's session was consumed by Senator Morgan, who renewed his plea for the amendment of the canal treaty in many particulars.

(By Associated Press Exclusively to the Gazette in Colorado Springs.)

Topeka, Kas., March 7.—A complete program for the international Railroad Y. M. C. A. conference to be held here from April 30 to May 4 has been given out. The list of speakers includes the following: President Theodore Roosevelt, Governor W. J. Bailey of Kansas, Joseph Ramsey, Jr., president of the Wabash railroad, H. H. Mudge, general manager of the Santa Fe, Rev. Charles M. Sheldon of Topeka, Rev. P. S. Henderson, D. D. of Brooklyn and Rev. Elmore Harris, D. D. of Toronto. Miss Helen Gould will also be present.

CATTLE RAISERS' CONVENTION.

(By Associated Press Exclusively to the Gazette in Colorado Springs.)

Topeka, Kas., March 7.—The Rock Island road announces a rate of $32.05 from Missouri river points for the round trip to El Paso, for the Cattle Raisers' convention. Today was the first day of the sale and the large number of tickets disposed of indicates that the attendance from Kansas at the convention will be large.

JOINTISTS SCORE A POINT.

(By Associated Press Exclusively to the Gazette in Colorado Springs.)

Topeka, Kas., March 7.—The supreme court today decided that the clause in the Kansas prohibitory law allowing the closing of joints by injunction was invalid. The court held that the Hurrel law, passed two years ago, repealed the old statute. Many of the prosecutions against jointists have been carried on by means of injunction proceedings.

NAVY YARD COMMANDS.

(By Associated Press Exclusively to the Gazette in Colorado Springs.)

Washington, March 7.—Captain G. F. Wilde has been detached from the Portsmouth navy yard and made captain of the Boston yard. Captain Thomas Berry has been detached from the Iowa and made captain of the New York yard. He will be succeeded in command of the Iowa by Captain Henry B. Mansfield, who has been detached from recruiting duty at the New York yard.

PREFERENCE IN NAMES SUSPICIOUS IN RUSSIA

Washington, March 7.—No information has been received at the state department or at the Russian embassy here regarding the report from Boston that William Millar alias Vincente Milleklwicz, claiming to be an American citizen, has been arrested in St. Petersburg and sentenced to exile in Siberia for his activity among the Poles in Russia.

It is known however that agitators are not welcomed in Russia and the fact that the man on his return to Russia from this country saw fit to assume an American name would in the opinion of the officials here seem to indicate sinister designs.

TRANPORT SAILED

(By Associated Press Exclusively to the Gazette in Colorado Spring.)

Washington, March 7.—Adjutant General Corbin has received a cable message from General Davis commanding the troops in the Philippines saying that the transport Thomas sailed from Manila on the 6th inst. and San Francisco with Brigadier General Frank Baldwin, Brigadier General [illegible], his staff, 82 enlisted men of the twenty fifth, twenty seventh, twenty first and thirty sixth companies coast artillery and the Fourteenth and Twenty-fourth batteries of field artillery, 95 sick, 118 casuals, three insane and 83 discharged soldiers.

The Value of Charcoal.

Few People Know How Useful It Is in Preserving Health and Beauty.

Nearly everybody knows that charcoal is the safest and most efficient disinfectant and purifier in nature, but few realize its value when taken into the human system for the same cleansing purpose.

Charcoal is a remedy that the more you take of it the better. It is not a drug at all, but simply absorbs the gases and impurities always present in the stomach and intestines and carries them out of the system.

Charcoal sweetens the breath after smoking, drinking or after eating onions and other odorous vegetables.

It absorbs the injurious gases which collect in the stomach and bowels, it disinfects the mouth and throat from the poison of catarrh.

All druggists sell charcoal in one form or another, but probably the best charcoal and the most for the money is in Stuart's Absorbent Lozenges, they are composed of the finest powdered Willow charcoal, and other harmless antiseptics in tablet form or rather in the form of large pleasant tasting lozenges, the charcoal being mixed with honey.

The daily use of these lozenges will soon tell in a much improved condition of the general health, better complexion, sweeter breath and purer blood, and the beauty of it is that no possible harm can result from their continued use, but on the contrary, great benefit.

A Buffalo physician in speaking of the benefits of charcoal, says: "I advise Stuart's Absorbent Lozenges to all patients suffering from gas in stomach and bowels, and to clear the complexion and purify the breath, mouth and throat. I also believe the liver is greatly benefited by the daily use of them; they cost but 25 cents a box at drug stores, and although in some sense a patent preparation, yet I believe I get more and better charcoal in Stuart's Absorbent Lozenges than in any of the ordinary charcoal tablets."

St. Louis, March 7.—"We are working on the answer to the injunction," said Judge Irwin, chief counsel for the Wabash employes, tonight.

"We are waiting on the answer to the injunction," said President Ramsey of the Wabash. This epitomizes one situation and covers the two centers of interest in the present difficulty between the grievance committees representing the firemen and trainmen employes and the Wabash railroad. President Ramsey stated tonight that notwithstanding the injunction he is perfectly willing to meet any employes and consider any grievances they may have to present to him and come to an amicable settlement. Counsel for the firemen and trainmen spent today busily at work upon a voluminous answer to the writ of injunction.

A corps of stenographers rapidly clicked their machines and nothing transpired to vary the monotony from early in the morning until late at night. At the different hotel rooms which are for the time being the headquarters of officials representing the railroad employes, conferences were held, numerous cigars were smoked and the time was passed in simply waiting for the answer to be prepared by the legal counsel. Just when this answer will be finished cannot be stated, but it is probable that it will be at least two days more. All this is the pending calm before the storm, as it is generally conceded that, in case the action of the court dissolves the injunction, a strike will be declared. As to the magnitude of the strike, both sides are noncommittal in their opinion. As to just when it will be declared, in case the injunction is dissolved, no statement is made.

In an interview with President Ramsey, he was asked by the Associated Press tonight:

"Suppose that pending the final decision of the court on this injunction there are any matters connected with the question at issue between the company and their employes which they want to settle, are you willing to meet them regardless of the injunction?"

"Certainly," replied Mr. Ramsey. "As I have stated before, I do not consider the injunction proceedings as interposing any obstacle between the company and its employes in the way of settling the questions now at issue, or any other question, and I am ready at any time to meet any committee of employes and settle supposed grievances that can be adjusted between us."

"What will be your next move in case the injunction is dissolved and a strike is ordered?"

"Then there will be but one thing to do in such an event," he replied, "and that will be to fill or endeavor to fill all places made vacant by strikers and go on with the conduct of the traffic of the Wabash railroad."

John Hopkins, chairman of the general committee of the Railway Conductors has made a written statement detailing the grievances held by the Wabash employes. He states that the real grievance is not a case of wages but is a violation of the old schedule.

John Hopkins, chairman general committee, Order of Railway Conductors, has made a statement detailing the grievances existing on the Wabash system, as follows:

"The real grievance is not a case of wages. A violation of the old schedule is one of the causes of complaint. This is done by the company putting on preferred runs with regular crews that get a monthly salary.

"This cuts the pay for brakemen from 2 cents a mile to about 1¼c, conductors from 3 cents to 2 cents while engineers and firemen receive the same for working on these trains as for any other freight train. But this is not the worst feature of the arrangement. After the company had these runs well established the managers commenced to pile on the abuses so fast that one could hardly believe the orders posted in the bulletin books.

"The first of these was that crews on Detroit and Chicago runs after running 270 miles, switch out the merchandise and take it down town without additional pay. The next was 104 miles each way, added to the St. Louis merchandise run, making 202 miles in the round trip additional with an increase of about $3 per month. This additional mileage alone would make a brakeman $60.60 per month, as it is a daily run, saying nothing of the 200 miles he had already made.

"The next was the Detroit and Chicago crews, after making 270 miles, would wait at Delray until cars are received and take them down town before being relieved.

"But this is the straw that broke the camel's back.

"Not satisfied with all this for nothing, they put two engines on and make them handle a dead freight train outside of the high class, and now they wonder what we are kicking about. After we work like slaves all winter in all kinds of weather without rest, often for 60 hours at a stretch, we are told we have nothing to complain of.

"In the spring, when navigation opens, and business drops off these preferred crews, with the big engines and double-headers, can handle about half of the business and the rest of us can eat dried snowballs or wait until nice cold, stormy winter comes around again with its sleet and ice on the running boards on top of the cars.

"The Adams injunction even takes away the right to quit the company's service, and if made permanent they can hold men as bonded slaves. Now, I for one, as O. R. C. man, and one who voted against a strike, believe in upholding the B. of R. T. and B. of L. F. to the last ditch.

(Signed) "John Hopkins
"Chairman Gen. Committee O. R. C."

The statement of Chairman Hopkins was shown to President Ramsey tonight. He said:

"I do not wish to discuss the matter more than to say that the alleged grievances mentioned by Chairman Hopkins were not referred to or brought up by the committees in their meetings with the Wabash officials. The trouble with Mr. Hopkins is that he is not a "preferred run," a position they are all after. These runs are part meat and high-class freight trains, which practically make passenger train time."

DEMONSTRATION OF FRANCO-AMERICAN SOCIAL FEELING

(By Associated Press Exclusively to the Gazette in Colorado Springs)

Paris, March 7.—A remarkable demonstration of Franco-American cordial feeling occurred at the banquet given at 11 o'clock this morning in the Hotel Continental, to President Francis of the St. Louis exposition. It was under the presidency of Minister of Commerce Troyillot and was attended by 500 of the foremost officials, including a personal representative of President Loubet and practically the entire ministry, and representatives of the state senate, chamber of deputies, judiciary and the army and navy.

Mr. Francis arrived here from Madrid late last night, and, owing to his intention to leave for Berlin at 1 o'clock, the banquet was arranged for an unusually early hour. The corridors leading to the banquet hall were lined on either side by long lines of republican guards in brilliant uniforms, with burnished helmets and flowing red plumes. On the upper landing was stationed the famous band of the 104th regiment of infantry, which played the "Marseillaise," as the distinguished officials assembled.

When President Francis appeared he was enthusiastically greeted and the band played "The Star Spangled Banner." During a prolonged demonstration, Mr. Francis was escorted to the post of honor, with Colonel Meaux St. Marie, of President Loubet's personal staff, at his right, and the minister of commerce at his left. The full capacity of the spacious banquet hall was taxed by the guests, who were seated at 17 long tables flanking the table occupied by the guests of honor.

Among others who sat near Mr. Francis were, Minister of Instruction Chaumie, Minister of the Colonies Doumergue, Minister of Public Works Mirajoles, M. Deroulede, director general of the Paris exposition of 1900, former Ministers Krantz, Mesureur, Domer, Boucher and Lebon, the commissioner of France to the St. Louis exposition, M. La Grave, the presidents of the leading commercial, industrial and financial organizations of the country, and representatives of the United States embassy and Consul General Gowdy. Seldom had such a notable gathering of officials and representative men been seen here.

The decorations of the hall were significant of Franco-American fraternity, the central place being a sunburst of tri-colors and Stars and Stripes. On the artistic menu card was an engraving typifying American energy and the card was embellished and entwined with the flags of France and America. After an elaborate meal, speeches of welcome were made by M. Ancelot, president of the French foreign expositions committee, and the minister of commerce. M. Ancelot closed his remarks by presenting to Mr. Francis a superb miniature painting representative of French art. The minister of commerce, in behalf of President Loubet and the ministry presented Mr. Francis with a magnificent Sevres vase, and to Mrs. Francis he presented an exquisite fan of ivory lace and silk.

Mr. Francis made a feeling response, saying he recognized that his reception was chiefly a tribute to cordiality of French sentiment toward the sister republic. He closed with a speech in French, which evoked great applause.

The banquet was ended with the playing of the "Star Spangled Banner," and, amid a scene of much enthusiasm, Mr. Francis hurried away to catch the train for Berlin.

During the banquet an autograph letter from President Loubet was read, designating Colonel Meaux St. Marie to be present in his behalf, and expressing the heartiest sentiments towards Mr. Francis and the St. Louis exposition.

In the course of M. Troyillot's speech he said France and the United States were bound together by the bonds of a historical association, commercial life and similarity of political institutions. These were bonds of the heart as well as of interest. Moreover, he added, France recognized that the time had come when she would give a fitting recognition and return for the magnificent part the United States had taken in the exposition of 1900. His toast—To the United States and France, the Two First Republics on Earth—was drunk standing and amid cheering and the waving of handkerchiefs.

Mr. Troyillot devoted considerable attention to the growth of commerce between France and America, saying in part:

"Not only are the two countries bound together by the ties which were formed during the revolutionary struggle, by Washington, Lafayette and Rochambeau, but they are bound also by the strong ties of commercial relations. Day by day the movements of exchange between France and the United States are becoming greater in spite of all the barriers placed in the way. We see with satisfaction that our exports to the United States have increased daily; they were 512,000,000 francs in 1894 and 765,000,000 francs in 1900. It is quality, however, rather than quantity of our exports which gives France the third place among the nations in Europe in their relations with the United States. There is a vast difference between exporting millions of crude products and exporting millions of finished products and luxuries. As an exporter of articles of the highest grade our position is pre-eminent and our American friends are our best customers in the world.

"The French republic considers the American republic not only as a friend but as a sister. French love of liberty is so profound that France has no need to look elsewhere for examples, yet surely the example of the United States has been useful in pointing out how to establish and how to maintain the true spirit of liberty."

Mr. Francis in the course of his response said his reception would have the effect of further showing to the American people the friendliness felt for them by the people of the sister republic.

President Richards of the American chamber of commerce also spoke. He referred to the growing prospect of closer commercial relations between France and the United States and in behalf of the American chamber presented Mr. Francis with a large loving cup of silver lined with gold.

ILLINOIS COAL MINERS AGREED TO COMPROMISE

(By Associated Press Exclusively to the Gazette in Colorado Springs)

Springfield, Ill., March 7.—A strike of 40,000 coal miners in Illinois was averted this afternoon when the operators and miners of the state in joint conference signed an agreement for the year commencing April 19, 1903. The miners receded from their demand of nine cents over the Indianapolis scale in the third district or in the northern thin vein and 10 cents over the same scale in Williamson county. The agreement signed is for a six-cent raise over last year's prices all over the state, the raise agreed on in the joint national conference of operators and miners at Indianapolis. The operators wanted to charge $1.85 per keg for powder and the miners were willing to pay but $1.75. The latter figure was finally agreed upon.

SOME LIGHT THROWN ON NEW YORK MURDER MYSTERY

(By Associated Press Exclusively to the Gazette in Colorado Springs)

New York, March 7.—The man who last Sunday night accompanied Nellie Fletcher to the boarding house of Mrs. Farrell in West Thirty-seventh street where she was found dead on Thursday was arrested tonight. The police say that he is a well-known shoplifter known as Edward Stewart. Stewart, the police say, has made a statement that he met the woman in a saloon on Sunday night and that she told him that she had run away from her home in New Haven with a Yale student and had gone to Chicago. She was then, she said, on her way to New Haven, but wished to remain a few days in New York and wanted to find a boarding house. Stewart, he says, recommended Mrs. Farrell's house where he said he left her after she had engaged a room for a week.

Captain Langdon, chief of the detective bureau, said tonight that it was his opinion that the woman had died from the effects of knockout drops. He thought she had been robbed as no money was found in the room, and if she had contemplated a trip to New Haven, she would have had enough money to buy her ticket.

NEW YORK COMMISSION FIRM MADE ASSIGNMENT

(By Associated Press Exclusively to the Gazette in Colorado Springs)

New York, March 7.—D. Le Roy Dresser and Charles Riess, doing business as commission merchants, under the firm name of Dresser & Co., No. 15 Green street, made an assignment today for the benefit of creditors to Charles McKenzie. Mr. Dresser was until a few days ago president of the Trust company of the republic.

A mercantile agency estimated the pecuniary strength of the firm at from $200,000 to $300,000.

This is the house concerning which there have been rumors on Wall street throughout the week. Large bank interests conferred yesterday in the effort to extend assistance necessary to save the firm, but the suspension was not averted. Two million dollars in the firm's paper is said to be outstanding. A considerable amount is held in this city.

A banker said:

"The firm's paper is largely held. I think by brokerage houses. Some of it is in New York. How this will be adjusted I do not know, but efforts will of course be made to avoid disturbance."

There are no preferences. Attorneys for the assignee said that the liabilities as nearly as they can be approximated amount to about $1,250,000, and that about half of this indebtedness is secured. The nominal assets as nearly as can be estimated in the absence of a statement according to the attorneys are about $750,000, and consist of cash, accounts receivable and merchandise. The creditors will be called together as soon as possible and a settlement offered to them in hope of being able to re-establish the firm of Dresser & Co. in business.

NEW ENGLAND RAILWAY SYSTEM MAY BE TIED UP

(By Associated Press Exclusively to the Gazette in Colorado Springs)

New Haven, Conn., March 7.—The grievance committees of the conductors and trainmen of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad system held an all night session last night, at which Val Fitzpatrick of Cleveland, Ohio, vice grand master of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, and C. W. Wilkins of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, senior grand conductor of the railway conductor organization were present. Nothing concerning the conference was given out except that the deliberations had not been concluded and that another meeting of the committees and national officers would be held today.

It is said that the grievance committees represent 40 per cent of the trainmen and conductors of the system.

BRIDGE WORKERS' STRIKE

(By Associated Press Exclusively to the Gazette in Colorado Springs)

Philadelphia, March 7.—President Buchanan of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Workers, today issued a statement giving as the reasons for the general strike against the American Bridge company that the work in the various cities had been sublet to non union men contrary to the established working rules.

The statement has been forwarded to all subordinate unions of the International association. In addition to the causes leading to the strike it gives instructions to officials of local unions as to their conduct during the progress of the contest.

President Buchanan, discussing the strike, said:

"It has come to the stage where we must either quit the business or fight. It is absolutely untrue that the strike was ordered because of the hoisting engineers union. While it is true that the lockout of engineers affected us in New York there had been no strike of the bridgemen's union in that city."

According to reports received today by President Buchanan, there are 1,500 men idle in New York; 1,000 in Pittsburg, 200 in Marietta, 300 in Toledo, 300 in Albany and 200 in Philadelphia. Reports are yet to be received from Harrisburg, Pa., Buffalo, Syracuse and other points in the United States and Canada.

STEWART NOMINATED FOR MAYOR OF CHICAGO

(By Associated Press Exclusively to the Gazette in Colorado Springs)

Chicago, March 7.—Graeme Stewart was nominated for mayor today by the Republican city convention. On the first ballot he received 708 votes out of 940, or 12 more than necessary to a choice.

John N. Harlan, his only competitor, received the votes of 42 delegates. The Harlan support in made a gallant fight and valiantly endeavored to stampede the convention but were hopelessly outmanoeuvered.

Just as the result of the vote was about to be announced Mr. Harlan entered the hall. He was greeted with cheers and after the nomination announcement of the vote addressed the convention, declaring his intention following the election of Stewart. The declaration allayed apprehension of an independent Republican ticket in the field and leaves Stewart the only candidate of his party.

Rome, March 7.—Queen Margherita received in private audience today United States Consul General Lancaster and Mrs. De Lancey. CROWN PRINCESS' SON PRAYS FOR MOTHER'S RETURN

(By Associated Press Exclusively to the Gazette in Colorado Springs)

Dresden, March 7.—Prince Georg, eldest son of Crown Prince Frederick, was missing from his palace yesterday and for several hours his tutors and the house officials were in consternation. The youth's absence was due to the fact that the prince had been abducted by friends of his mother, the former Crown Princess Louise. The boy was found praying in the cathedral that his mother might return.

The Socialists are doing their own prince episode for political agitation and the unpopularity of the Saxony monarchy appears to have been considerably heightened. The coming of Princess Mathilde, sister of the crown prince, was surrounded by a crowd in Wilsdruffer street, one of the principal shopping streets of Dresden, one day last week. The cries of "Give us our Louise" were heard. Princess Mathilde was so frightened that when the police cleared the street she was escorted into a shop and eventually went out by the rear door. It took another carriage home. Several similar incidents showing the unpopularity of the royal house have been noticed since the agitation caused by the elopement of the Princess Louise, but none of them has been mentioned in the newspapers of Dresden.

REFORMS INSTITUTED BY AMEER OF AFGHANISTAN

(By Associated Press Exclusively to the Gazette in Colorado Springs)

London, March 7.—Mail advices received here from Kabul say the Ameer of Afghanistan has divided his harem of his wives. The divorced women are allowed to remain in the palace and the ameer has promised a liberal support to those who do not marry again. He has also decreed a reform of harem dress of his subjects. Half hereafter have more than four wives and that all excess of this number must be divorced.

The ameer is also erecting well docks with an iron hand. By a recent proclamation he ordered that anyone convicted of quarrelling, whether on account of his religion shall be blown from a cannon's mouth. The punishment has already been inflicted. Robbers are placed in sacks and then being promiscuously in the shot, dashing as a warning to others. Another proclamation of the ameer orders hanging against those who attempt to impose guilds decreed that everybody, in excess of what is absolutely necessary for the support of his family for four months shall serve. If he fails to do so, his whole property will be taken by force.

The Depot's Work

The date for the national encampment of the Grand Army has been determined. During the week beginning March 27 the men who fought to uphold the union will tramp the streets of San Francisco and gather together once more to tell of the old army days.

Notice of the decision on a date has been received by the local Grand Army post. No. 22, from Thomas J. Stewart, commander in chief, who has just been in San Francisco to make the preliminary arrangements for the encampment.

Commander Stewart is now en route from the coast to his home in Philadelphia, accompanied by the members of his staff. Commander Stewart passed through Denver the middle of last month on his way to the coast and it was hoped by the local veterans that he would be able to visit this city on his return trip. He is taking the southern route home, however, and will not pass through the state. The delegates to the national encampment from this department, four in number, will be selected at the encampment of the Colorado-Wyoming department to be held in Cheyenne next July. In addition to these four delegates all post department commanders will be entitled to the national encampment.

San Antonio Wants It

The contract for the new $50,000 bank block at the corner of Tejon and Huerfano streets will be let some time tomorrow unless further delays occur. It was expected that the contracts would be awarded yesterday afternoon, but the entire matter went over until this week. However, these delays are not interfering with the reservations which are being made by tenants for quarters, for as Mr. N. E. Gundy, who has these matters in hand, says, there is a veritable rush for the new building.

"The people want to get into the new bank building and I can safely say that this is the best renting proposition there is at this time."

Brick Work Resumed

The bricklayers strike is practically ended. The men employed on the new Arcade hotel have been ordered to report for work tomorrow morning. According to all indications the strike which began with a walk-out of the men employed on the Arcade hotel and the Elks new club house last Monday morning, is over and work on these buildings will no longer be delayed. It is understood that the contractors have been meeting and talking the situation over and finally decided to grant the demands of the men.

"77" FOR GRIP

Grip is epidemic—the hospitals crowded—the suffering intense the death list appalling—yet ninety cases in every hundred could be prevented or cured, with little cost and no inconvenience, by the use of Dr. Humphreys' "Seventy-Seven." It not alone breaks up the Grip, but its tonicity sustains the system, and you can keep about your business. It can be carried in the pocket and taken from the hand without trouble.

The indications of a severe attack of Grip or Influenza are headache, chilliness, general muscular pains, fever, sore throat, cough and systematic lassitude.

At the first chill or shiver, take "Seventy-Seven." It will restore the checked circulation, start the blood coursing through the veins and break up the Grip or a Cold. At Druggists, 25c, or mailed.

Humphreys' Med. Co., Cor. Wms. & John Sts., New York.

Bids for Dormitory to Be Received Tomorrow

Bids for the erection of the new dormitory for ladies at Colorado college will be received at 9:30 tomorrow morning and it is thought that the contract for the construction will be let later than tomorrow evening. There are about 10 local contractors figuring on the work and competition on prices promises to be very keen. The stakes for the new building were driven yesterday and it is thought that the ground will be broken either Tuesday or Wednesday. The dormitory is to be located just west of Tickner hall and overlooking Monument creek. The foundation will be 110x40 and the building will be three stories high, containing 60 rooms. Greeley stone found in Manitou, will be used in construction. Douglas & Hetherington are the architects. The building will cost about $26,000.

FIRST CASE—The first case to be tried in the new court house did not come to trial yesterday as was scheduled. It was the case of the people vs. Ben Buck and was to come up before Justice McClelland. The complaining witness, J. W. McCoughly, who alleges that Buck assaulted him, did not appear and the case was dismissed. An arbitrary settlement was made between the parties concerned.

The new addition and the many improvements at the Glockner sanatorium are about finished. When finished, a formal opening will be held, and preparations are now being made to that end.

The new sun-parlors are a beautiful and excellent addition to the home. These parlors are so arranged that the patients can derive the sunshine without being unduly exposed. The sun-parlors are situated between the old and the new building and can be reached from either one. They are built almost entirely of glass and open on the east, north and west and a little way on the south, so that they receive some sun at any time in the day. The parlors are finished in green, white and oak. The floor and ceilings are polished oak and the walls are painted green, while the woodwork is white.

The parlors are beautifully furnished with cane furniture and beautiful rugs, all the gifts of General Palmer. The furniture is finished in green, red, and the natural color, and in a great variety of styles: settees, lounges, easy chairs and everything that an invalid could wish. It is the intention of the sisters to procure a library for the sun-parlors. They already have several palms and will get as many more palms and flowers as can be secured for the place. A fine telescope is provided, and many interesting views of the city and surrounding country can be had.

Another late addition is what is known as the "throat room," the gift of Mrs. Gildea, where full apparatus for the treatment of the throat, nose and ears will be provided, and when completed it will be one of the most complete operating rooms in the west.

WORK ON CRAGMOR SANATORIUM [illegible] STATE IMPROVEMENTS

Work upon the Cragmor sanatorium will be commenced within the next three months and [illegible] with such vigor that within a year's time patients will be received by that institution. Dr. Solly, who has been the chief promoter of the enterprise, made an announcement to that effect last evening. He said: "The plans for the main building and in fact for the entire structure have been completed and accepted, and it is our intention to build the central block as soon as Architect MacLaren can draw the specific plans, bids and contracts may be let. All of this should be effected within three months at the outside.

"The central building will be 200 feet long by perhaps 45 feet deep and will cost about $100,000. The building material will, in all probability, be cement blocks of a patent make, with tile roof; so that the entire building will be entirely fire proof. I may add that there will be no wood used in the building other than is necessary for door jambs and window frames, so the building besides being fire proof will be germ proof, a feature of considerable importance.

"The building will be so erected that it will have a southern exposure, thus permitting the patients to enjoy as much sunlight as possible. Only a single tier of patients' rooms will be put in on the second, third and fourth stories, and each room will be provided with an inclosed porch so that the patient may sleep out doors, if desired. This is a decided improvement over every sanatorium in the world that I have ever visited and is an added advantage in favor of Cragmor. Besides this feature, each room will be provided with a private bath and the space allotted to each person will be 20x14 feet. All rooms will be single, although certain ones will be so built that they may be thrown en suite. The plans have been so drawn that there will be but a very small number of rooms on the north side of the building, as sunlight is required in abundant quantities."

Entrance to the sanatorium will be made through the porte cochere at the northeast corner of the building, from which a hallway will lead into the center of the first story. On the north side of the hall will be the main offices and elevators, together with the assembly hall, dining room and kitchen. On the south side will be the library, billiard room, covered porch, and sunk gardens. The sunk gardens are an interesting feature and is a space 200 by 150 feet opening out over a terrace to the south and cloisters on three sides. Everything has been done to insure the comfort and well-being of the patients, and the institution will be first class and thoroughly scientific in every respect.

The building when completed will cost $300,000 and will accommodate between 80 and 100 patients, although it is not planned to care for more than 40 in the main building.

The plan is to use the profits derived from running Cragmor to erect and maintain a similar institution for the poor, and to do this it will be necessary to enlarge the main edifice, or adding two wings which will make it possible to care for enough rich patients to obtain the desired revenue. The project is wholly philanthropic, as there is no stock for sale and the funds for the erection of Cragmor must be raised by voluntary contributions.

The location of the sanatorium is about two miles northeast of the north end of Tejon street at the foot of the west knoll of what is now known as Cragmor. The Cragmor association owns 100 acres taking in the hill and a considerable area of prairie. The site of the sanatorium will be about a mile north of the big power house on the Garden Ranch road. Two good drives are to be built from town, so that access to the city will be speedy. A station on the Santa Fe will be established within about a mile of the sanatorium.

MEN WANTED for the United States navy, machinists, firemen, coal passers, electricians, shipwrights, seamen, ordinary seamen, musicians, apprentices, and messmen; unmarried men at the American born, able to read and write, able-bodied, legal declaration of intention to become citizens. [illegible] New Y. M. [illegible]

F. W. Kurie, the well-known mining broker, yesterday signified his intention of furnishing a room in the new Y. M. C. A. building. Mr. Kurie will select one of the rooms on the second floor of the building and will fit it up at once. The members of the association announce that they are getting more of their rooms furnished every day but that there are still a number that are without furniture. About a dozen young men moved into the building yesterday and as many more will move in tomorrow. The association now has about all of the 50 rooms in the building taken.

The association will hold its regular weekly meeting in the basement of the new building tomorrow evening at 7:30 o'clock. In addition to the debate, several items of business will be transacted among them being the constitution. At a meeting of the officers of the congress held yesterday it was decided to allow all young men, whether members or not, to attend the sessions of the congress.

The subject for debate is, "Resolved, That the Vast Concentration of Capital in Single Private Manufacturing Concerns is Inimical to the Public Welfare." A bill for the admission of New Mexico, Arizona and Oklahoma into the union will also be discussed.

[illegible] Pottery [illegible]

A new discovery in the pottery world that will have a tendency to revolutionize the manufacture and sale of fancy tile has been made by a local man. Artus Van Briggle, who is at the head of the Van Briggle Pottery works of this city, has been experimenting on a new sized tile, which bids fair to attract the eyes of all the pottery-manufacturing world to this city. Heretofore the largest sized tile that has been known to manufacturers has been about two inches wide and three inches long, but Mr. Van Briggle has succeeded in making a tile that is over four inches wide and nine inches long. This tile will not warp with use and will stand glazing, two facts which will have a great importance, as it has always been supposed that a tile larger than the size now in use would warp and would not stand glazing. Mr. Van Briggle finished his investigations on the new tile last week and has now gone beyond the experimental stage. So important is his discovery that a meeting of the Van Briggle Pottery company was held yesterday to discuss the matter and to consider the advisability of immediately installing the necessary machinery to manufacture the tile for the trade. Mr. Van Briggle believes that he can make this large tile and give it all the colorings for which his other kinds of pottery are noted. Mr. Van Briggle's work has already won praise from all the art critics of the country and he has received many flattering notices in the art publications of Europe.

In all probability articles of incorporation of another reservoir company for the storing of waters of Fountain creek will be filed within the next few days. H. I. Reid the civil engineer, has just finished the survey and is now working on the plans for a large ditch and reservoir that are to be built in the Fountain valley in the near future by a party of eastern and local capitalists. It is understood the new company will compete with the company recently organized by Dr. H. I. Richardson.

The company will tap the waters of the Fountain, but will have its head gate further down the valley than the other company, and its reservoir will be built about two miles east of the town of Fountain. On account of the fact that the arrangements for the work have not been entirely completed, those at the head of the enterprise will not give out any information in regard to the proposed venture. It is understood, however, that several hundred thousand dollars will be expended in furnishing the means for irrigating the country adjoining the Fountain valley and that the stockholders are confident of making the venture a success.

Mr. Reid has had a corps of engineers at work for several weeks, and the lines for the ditches have all been determined. The company has all the necessary water rights and is expecting to begin work as soon as Engineer Reid finishes his plans.

A man and woman who gave their names as Myers, and stated that they lived at 801 East River street, Pueblo, were arrested yesterday at Manzanola on a warrant sworn out by M. C. Bleiker of the Palace stables at Pueblo. They are the same couple that left Littleton on Wednesday, after the woman had hired a horse and buggy which she stated she would use about two hours.

She drove around a corner and was joined by a young man, the two driving off together. That evening the proprietor of the stable became worried and notified the police of the different towns surrounding Littleton that the couple had driven off with his team.

The liverymen of this city were notified, but when the woman called at the Antlers livery for a horse and buggy on last Friday, she got a horse. She was seen no more here and yesterday morning she got in rig at Pueblo and started on her way again, but was arrested at Manzanola yesterday afternoon, in the company of the young man.

It is not known what became of the rigs taken from Littleton and this city.

[illegible] Meetings [illegible] Week

Dr. James E. Gregg of the First Congregational church, will address the regular Sunday afternoon meeting of the Y. M. C. A. at 4 o'clock this afternoon. Today's meeting will be the first to be held in the new building and an unusually large attendance is expected on that account. The Congress hall will be used. In view of the fact that Dr. Gregg was present at the organization of the Y. M. C. A. in this city, those in charge of these meetings thought it proper to ask Dr. Gregg to address the meeting today.

Special music will be rendered by the Baptist octet during this afternoon. The regular Sunday evening Stranger's tea will be held at 5 o'clock and this morning at 9:30 the Yoke Fellows band will meet.

The residence of F. M. Pherson at 710 West Hiscrano street, was entered Friday night by robbers, in the absence of the family, who were at a card party, and the house was thoroughly ransacked. Upon returning home at midnight the family found the front door open and the lights all burning. A search upstairs revealed the contents of all the drawers scattered about the room. A pair of bracelets and a valuable ring were missing, but the burglars had evidently been frightened away before they completed their work, since several valuable articles were not taken. Entrance was evidently effected through the front door by means of a skeleton key. The case is now in the hands of the police.

Mr. Artus van Briggle has consented to submit a sketch for the official medallion of Colorado Springs and is now preparing the same, which will be in the hands of Secretary Wray in a few days.

FOR YOUR INFORMATION.

The Lackawanna Railroad intends to equip its entire rolling stock with new high speed power brakes, and the change will be made as rapidly as practicable. The new brake it is claimed will stop a train in a third less time than the appliance now in general use on American railways and experiments already conducted by Lackawanna officials indicate the immense superiority over the one now in use. The Lackawanna railroad is one of the first to place this high speed brake on its equipment. Thus far eight coaches have been fitted with the necessary appliances and eight locomotives recently ordered will be equipped in the same way, until ultimately the entire rolling stock of the road will carry the new high speed brake.

GILLETT SECTION

Work Still Progressing on Many Properties but Deep Snow Has Interfered to Some Extent—Good Returns on Recent Shipment on the Vindicator.

Special to the Gazette.

Cripple Creek, March 7.—In the Gillett section, work is still progressing on many of the properties, while on Cow and Sheep mountains, snow is so deep that quite a few have quit work until the snow is melted.

Manager Lynch is now crosscutting at the 300-foot point in the Rupp tunnel. This property is located north of the railroad tunnel, about three and one-half miles from Gillett.

Walter Hughes is also pushing development on his tunnel near Midland, the rock in the breast of the tunnel is heavily stained with iron, and he believes he is nearing the large porphyry vein which was exposed on the surface.

An air pipe is being laid from the Lincoln property to the Hawkeye shaft. When this is completed, air-drills will be used in sinking the shaft on the Hawkeye. The showing on this proprty at the present time is exceedingly good.

On account of the severity of the weather and depth of snow on Sheep mountain, the Streator & Cripple Creek Gold Mining company has decided to postpone the starting up of the Snowshoe until later in the season, while several other prospectors in this section have also had to quit work on account of the deep snow.

Anderson and others, operating the LaBelle claim of the Golden Cycle company, sent out a shipment of 30 tons of screenings today that is expected to return about $50 in gold to the ton. The ore values on this property have been much better of late, and the lessees have considerable good ore in sight, which insures regular shipments for some weeks, without further development operations.

Connors and others today sent out another small shipment from their lease on the Burns of the Acacia company. Today's shipment consisted of about 18 tons of screenings which will run in the neighborhood of $60 to the ton. The lessees are contemplating the erection of a steam hoister in the near future, and will then work on a much larger scale.

J. T. Bauer, operating on block 7 of the Vindicator company, received returns from a shipment of two carloads which were sent out a few days ago, which gave values of $25 per ton for the screenings, while a lot of eight tons went at the rate of $140 to the ton.

Doubrawsky and others who are operating on the Prince Albert property today sent out a carload shipment from their surface workings, which will run in the neighborhood of $30 to the ton.

The Jo Dandy property is making regular shipments on an average of one carload a day. Yesterday two carloads of ore left the property, which is expected to return about $30 values.

IMPROVED OUTLOOK FOR BUTTERFLY TERRIBLE

Word just received from Ophir states that the Butterfly Terrible mine is making a much better showing at this time than has been the case for many months past. The property is being thoroughly developed through the lower tunnel, which is in about 2,000 feet opening the famous Ida ore shoot at great depth, and with much improved values. The company is prevented from making a big showing at this time only by the severe weather which has prevailed in that section of the state this season. Francis J. Hobbs said today, "The company is working about 25 men at the present time and will increase the number as soon as the weather is such as we can start up the mill, when we will begin handling from 50 to 75 tons a day. We are at the present time driving on the Ida vein and are into the shoot about 380 feet and have about the same distance ahead of us before the shoot is exhausted. I do not mean to say that this is all high grade ore, for such is not true; there are rich sections and then lean sections, but on the whole the entire mass can in all probability be milled. There was a rich shoot about two feet wide and a good many feet long that ran quite high, but we are past that now and at present our breasts are in low grade ore, but this will improve shortly, judging from the shoot in the level above."

VINDICATOR SHOWING INCREASED FROM LEVELS

General Manager Frank J. Campbell of the Vindicator Consolidated Gold Mining company was in the city yesterday and stated that the best values ever found in the mine are coming from the bottom levels at this time. In speaking of the property he said:

"In the 1,200-foot level we have drifted north on the main vein 500 feet and are in ore 200 feet of the way, the vein ranging from one to 20 feet wide. Sometimes the values will run up into the thousands when the vein is narrow, and again will average but a few ounces to the ton where it bulges. There is good ore all the way, however. We are not doing anything but drifting in the 1,200-foot level, as these workings are making between 400 and 500 gallons of water a minute, so that we will drive ahead to about 700 feet and upraise to connect with the winze from the 1,000-foot level. Here is the best showing yet, for in sinking a winze 80 feet we have opened a big body of ore that is averaging five ounces to the ton across its width. This, with the other showings in this level, proves to us that the mine was never so good as now. This winze was sunk at a point 680 feet north of the shaft, and as soon as connected with the upraise from the 1,200-foot level will permit us to open up 200 feet of virgin stoping ground. The vein at the winze is 20 feet wide in the 1,000-foot level, and how wide below we cannot tell. The ore shoot in the 1,200-foot level looks as if it will be even richer above, as it is better now than where it was first encountered in the 1,000-foot level."

The Vindicator has been making a search in the southwest portion of the property in the expectation of opening and developing the extension of some of the Christmas and related veins. Operations were carried on some time ago in the 1,200-foot level but were suspended on account of the heavy flow of water which was encountered. The search was then transferred to the eighth level, where several veins containing some ore have been opened and since that time the 1,000-foot level has been pushed out to intersect the same veins again above the water level.

THE MINES OF CRIPPLE CREEK

The several properties of the United Gold Mines company are making a good production, all of which is running into money in short order and adding to the treasury considerable money. From the Wild Horse mine a production of 50 tons a day is being maintained, coming principally from the eighth and ninth levels where the ore is being opened in good shape. South of the big ore shoot opened last October another shoot has been opened in the ninth level which, while not so sensational as the former shoot, is making good money for the company. The several facing on ore are being pushed out in good shape.

From the Trachyte property an average daily production of 25 tons is being maintained while from the Deadwood 15 tons are being sent out so that from the three properties 90 tons a day are being sent out.

It is also officially stated that A. M. Stevenson and associates, of Denver, who recently secured a lease on the south end of the Gold Coin in Victor, must commence mining operations there next week or forfeit the lease.

As the lease is a very flattering one, offering good inducements for systematic development, it is not likely that a forfeit will ensue.

THE WEEK'S MARKET REPORT

A summary of the annual report of the Golden Cycle company was given to the public yesterday from which it is learned that the mine's production for 1902 was 40,772 tons, which yielded a gross values of $882,632. Out of this the company shipped 38,736 tons of ore which yielded $777,051.60 and 2,036 tons was shipped by lessees, returning $45,578.40, making in all 40,772 tons of a gross value of $822,623, from which total net returns of $498,801.23. The operating expenses were $287,612.23, property account, $23,176.67, taxes, $3,891.25, and dividends, $67,500, making total disbursements of $384,680.15. The surplus earnings over dividends were $114,121.08. The treasurer's report shows that on January 1, 1902, there was cash on hand amounting to $7,587.67 and a year later, that is on January 1, 1903, the cash was $121,708.75. This is a splendid record.

President John T. Milliken, who has just arrived in the city, issued an official statement regarding the report that Senator W. E. Reynolds has secured an option on the control of the stock, in which he said:

"There is an option expiring this month on 775,000 shares of Golden Cycle at 85 cents, 719,000 shares of Theresa at above 45 cents and 38 acres of Gold Knob ground to go at the same price paid for it. Mr. Reynolds has completed his examination of the property and has until some time this month to take up the option. He gets 78 acres in a compact group and I will say that I think he will take up the option and that he is getting a bargain."

The Legal Tender vein has just been opened in the 1,000-foot level east of the shaft.

The question of why one man succeeds and another fails, is a problem that has puzzled philosophers for centuries. One man attains riches and position, while his neighbor who started with seemingly the same, and better opportunities, exists in poverty and obscurity. No man can win success who is suffering from an irritating and nerve racking disease and the man who has the qualities of success within him, would be quick to recognize this fact and seize the best remedy to eradicate the trouble.

A person afflicted with a serious case of hemmorrhoids or piles is handicapped in the race for power and advancement. It is impossible to concentrate the mental energies when this dreadful trouble is sapping the vital forces. To show how easily this success destroying trouble can be overcome, we publish the following letter, from a prominent Indiana man:

"When I received the former letter and booklet on 'Piles, Their Nature, Cause and Cure,' I was in a critical condition. Ulcers to the number of seven had formed on the inside of the rectum culminating in a large tumor on the outside, resembling fistula. I suffered the most excruciating pain, could get no rest day or night. After reading the booklet I sent to my druggist but he happened to be out of Pyramid Pile Cure just at that time. However, I obtained a part of a box from my brother-in-law and began their use. Five pyramids completely cured me. I procured a box later but have had no occasion to use them. I have been waiting to see that the cure was permanent before writing you of its success. I believe Pyramid Pile Cure to be the greatest and best pile cure on the market, and ask you to please accept of my grateful thanks for this invaluable remedy. I take great pleasure in recommending its use to any sufferer along this line. You may use my name if you wish for reference to anyone afflicted with this disease." J. O. Littell, Arthur, Ind.

You can obtain a free sample of this wonderful remedy, also the booklet described above by writing your name and address plainly on a postal card and mailing it to the Pyramid Drug Co., Marshall, Mich.

ORATORICAL CONTEST WILL BE HELD APRIL 10

April 10 is the date that has been decided upon by those in charge of the annual declamation contest among the young men of the High school for the Edward F. Wright medal. The preliminaries for the contest were held last Wednesday afternoon and at that time eight speakers were chosen for the final contest. Principal Meyers is now selecting the judges for the contest. Meanwhile the candidates themselves are putting in all their spare time rehearsing their declamations and the halls of the High school building are ringing with oratory. The annual contest is one of the chief events of the school year in High school circles.

COLORADO SPRINGS MINING STOCK EXCHANGE

The leading feature of the market yesterday was the raid on El Paso, which was handled about for a smart quarter of an hour, during which time quite lively trading was done. The stock opened selling at 18¼ and 3,000 changed hands before the quotation changed to 57¼. It at once became apparent that a bear raid was in operation and the usual backers of this stock withdrew their support and let things take their course, which resulted in the stock declining to 18¼. The raid was occasioned by the report that there was some forced stock to be disposed of with a stop quotation of 58¼, so the bears pushed the price down to that point and secured some cheap El Paso. The stock market rallied, selling up to 58 after 11,000 had changed hands. Elkton was inconspicuous, selling at 38. Golden Cycle sold at 70 for 1,000 shares. Isabella was weak, selling down from 20 to 19¾ and back to 19⅞. Vindicator was fractionally stronger and sold at $1.00 and Portland at 1.30. The prospect department was quite active and lower in some instances.

EASTERN MARKETS

STOCK LETTER.

Report of J. S. Bache & Co. to Otis & Hough.

New York, March 7.—In spite of our comparatively strong close yesterday London came irregular and in most cases lower than here and in sympathy with them the local market opened irregular with declines and thereafter trading ruled dull. There was an absence of buying power and from the trifling rallies which the market had during the first hour declines took place. After the appearance of the bank statement further liquidation on larger transactions took place. The decrease in reserve of over $5,000,000 and the loss in cash of $10,000,000 were items which took with bad grace. The selling was quite heavy and especially in such issues as B. & O., U. P., St. Paul, Atchison and Missouri Pacific, which later lost its early advance. Copper which was strong in morning on the splendid trade outlook was likewise a sufferer. Market closed at low prices of the day.

McIntyre & Marshall—Bank statement today was so bad that there was only one way which it could be interpreted and that was that the banks must now strengthen their resources and this can only be accomplished by the rather wholesale calling of loans which must be clear to every one to be at the expense of stock market liquidation, especially by the various pools and syndicates which have been operating on borrowed capital. From the latest preliminary estimates made by experts it was thought that the bank statement would show a loss in cash of only $5,000,000 to $6,000,000, and this would be offset in the surplus reserve by a decrease in loans from $13,000,000 to $20,000,000. It therefore proved a disagreeable surprise and was the signal for general liquidation and selling by the traders and commission houses. The surplus reserve the banks now hold on all deposits may be said to be practically wiped out, they only hold $1,675,000, which is the smallest on record in 10 years. Under these conditions we cannot see how there can be any bullish speculation until banks again accumulate sufficient surplus to extend renewed accommodations to the stock market for speculative purposes.

GRAIN LETTER.

Report of Logan & Bryan (by Private Wire), to Otis & Hough.

—Chicago, March 7.—Wheat—Liverpool, unchanged to ¼ higher. Paris, unchanged to ¼ lower. Reports from the winter wheat belt all of a favorable character. Speculative market opened steady to a shade firmer, influenced by strength in corn. There was, however, a good deal of long wheat pressing for sale and the market soon turned heavy. The selling pressure kept up pretty well during the day and numerous stop orders were reached all the way down. After hesitating at 75 cents, fresh selling movement carried the price quickly to 74⅞ from which figure there was a fractional rally. It was simply a day of liquidation. The cash situation on all sides was not such as to encourage the bulls and export demand at the seaboard was reported as flat. It still looks to us as though a crop scare is the only thing that can bring about bull market at this time and we doubt the wisdom of speculating on a possible calamity. The market, however, has had a sharp decline and in the natural order of things some rally is in order. We think, in the absence of thawing and freezing weather in the wheat belt that sales are in order. Cars tomorrow, 30.

Corn—Liverpool, 5s to 5¾ higher. Market strong early on higher cables and general rains but weakened later on selling which was said to be for Patten. The weakness in nearby futures in New York, also had something to do with the decline. It was also said that a large lot of corn was for re-sale at the seaboard. The cash market was irregular and shipping business light. Fair weather is predicted for the corn belt. During the closing hour there was considerable corn thrown on the market by commission houses which was quietly absorbed without materially affecting the price. There seems to be a little mystery as to where the property landed, but we are inclined to think it was taken in by leading packing concerns. Think we would stick to the long side of May corn on the weak spots as we believe the possibilities on the bull side of this option are more than ordinary. Estimated cars for Monday, 250.

Oats—There was a good deal of commission house selling following the opening strength, the decline in wheat had a depressing effect on the market, the tone of the cash market strong and the western offerings light with a good eastern demand. Market likely to be influenced by wheat and corn, but we are disposed to favor the bull side around present prices. Estimated cars for Monday, 210.

Provisions—Market was very strong early, the entire list sold at about top prices so far, the falling off in the hog receipts and higher market at the yards stimulated the market, when grain turned weak the rally was lost. There was further profit taking by the stock yards contingent. The heavy buying of lard and ribs by Schwartz was the feature. Hog receipts, 28,000, against 48,000.

The Crowing of the Cock.

I contend that as a murderer of repose there is nothing can compare with the "song" of chanticleer—not bells, not steam whistles, not the rumble of wagons, not the sound of revelry, not the cry of the milkman nor yet of Thomas cat. Country ears, of course, are impervious to it, but to the average city ear it is a very sword.

I have had some tragical experience of it, the which if I attempted to record, I might, I fear, fall into the use of language that would certainly bar my article from Forest and Stream. But my last experience was so thrilling that I cannot resist the temptation of recording it, even at the risk of forgetting myself. Being on an outing not a hundred miles from New York, but in a section which has remained primitive in spite of the surrounding march of civilization (that is the way they express it, I believe), I put up at a little hostelry, half hotel and half farm house. It was evening when I arrived, and to amuse myself before dinner (or supper, as they called it there) I went for a stroll about the premises. Among other things, I observed that the henhouse was a considerable distance in the rear of the dwelling house. This afforded me the liveliest satisfaction, which was not dismissed by the appearance of the "roosters"—great lusty looking fellows, suggesting a chillope—who with their harem began to seek the seclusion of the hen-house. If I hear them at sight in the morning, I told myself, it will be only fatality, so I shall not be seriously disturbed. I took the precaution, however, to inform my landlord that if he enlarged the biped before 7 o'clock I would leave without paying my bill. At any rate, I thought, they will be kept prisoners.

Well, I got to bed, though not with decidedly late for those parts having sat up over an old local history which smelt of Indians—figuratively speaking, let me hasten to add), and, immediately fell asleep, lulled by the solemn sough of the elms above the roof. I could not have been asleep more than a couple of hours when I started up with fear and amazement. "Cock-a-doodle-doo" had sounded so close to my ears that it seemed the author of it must have roosted on the top of the old canopied bedstead. I listened intently for a few minutes and then the reveille was repeated, but this time it seemed a little more remote. I got up and struck a light and proceeded to investigate. Presently I found that my enemy (I use the term advisedly and not with special reference to the present occasion) had perched himself on the branch of a tree directly outside my window. I looked at my watch. It was exactly 2:30 a. m.

If the reader pleases, I will leave to his imagination the rest of the history of that eventful night and return to the question of the origin of the habit of crowing.—(Forest and Stream.

Vast Expenditures of American Methodism.

The exact amount received from all sources cannot be ascertained until after the assembling of the spring conferences, but up to January 15 of the present year, $20,897,270 was duly accounted for and certified to by the secretary.

In addition to this, the regular fixed charges and more than twenty million dollars per annum, showed an advance rather than a decrease. This means that in the last four years this one denomination of evangelical Christians has, without aid from the state, under the influence only of personal interest and personal argument, expended above one hundred million dollars for its faith.

The primary work of Methodism was to revive and spread spiritual religion. For some decades its energies were devoted chiefly to this end. Awakened religious interest, however, created a strong desire for education among the common people, hence the extraordinary progress made by the church in the establishment of civilization. Houses for the aged, hospitals, orphanage and almost naturally come later. Temperance means, by the united abstinence from intoxicating liquor, has been strenuously insisted upon as well as abstinence from all amusements tending to make the youth of our generation indifferent to the ideals made of them by parents, pastors and teachers for a higher life than the world chiefly delicious enjoyment for material prosperity, or forgets in the life which now is that which is to come. Whether, on the financial achievement of the denomination will permanently attract the attention from its primary, and still, objects of vital importance, remains to Methodism, but to America it is a matter of Twenty-Million-Dollar Importance.—The Methodist Episcopal Church, by J. M. Buckley, in the American Review of Reviews for March.

WRITTEN CONFESSION OF W. C. MUNSELL

Former Confidential Clerk Under Auditor Crouter and Takes Upon Himself Entire Blame for Shortage—Some Startling Revelations.

Denver Bureau
Colorado Springs Gazette.

Denver, March 7.—It was the old, old story that caused the downfall of William C. Munsell, former chief clerk in the state auditor's office. The curse that made him a fugitive from justice was not drink, hankering for high life or gambling, at least not gambling according to law, but nevertheless the curse. The whole wretched story can be summed up in one word, and that is, speculation. This caused him to desert wife and boy and decamp to avoid arrest. The total of Munsell's embezzlement is something like $5,000, and the irregularities occurred when former Auditor C. W. Crouter was in charge of the flat tax department. The story can be best told in Munsell's letter of confession to Mr. Crouter, which was written on the letter paper of the state auditor's office and is as follows:

"To Whom It May Concern:

"This is to certify that I, W. C. Munsell, have been in full charge and control of the license tax department of the state auditor's office for ex-Auditor C. W. Crouter, from the time of the starting of said department until the closing of his administration, upon the 13th day of January, 1903; that I have had full charge of all money collected by said department, and have had the full confidence of Mr. Crouter at all times. I have, at his request, upon different occasions, rendered him statements of the business and affairs of the department, all of which were false. I falsified the books to correspond with said statement, and Mr. Crouter is wholly ignorant of there being anything wrong at this time or any other, and will not be aware of it until he receives this. Neither is anyone else aware of it, or has anything to do with the same, the entire fraud being mine, not even my own family dreaming of my guilt. The money has been lost by me, speculating in mining, and I am entirely without means to support my family, who will be compelled to seek the charity of their relatives. I make this confession so that Mr. Crouter or anyone else may not suffer for a wrong that is entirely my own, and for which I alone must suffer. Knowing the full meaning and penalty of the above, I subscribe my name, in order that justice may be done.

"W. C. Munsell."

Inclosed with the letter was the following note:

"Charley:—See Schwanbeck, the governor and Attorney-General Miller, and protect yourself. I cannot. It necessary publish the inclosed slip, but not unless necessary to clear yourself. Things came up different from what I anticipated, and I have lost out. I do not ask your forgiveness, for I cannot forgive myself. Good by, Carey."

The shortage is not thought to be more than the sum stated, as the flat tax department has been in existence only since May, 1901, and, being a new department, no bond was required of the clerk holding the responsible position. Mr. Crouter's bond covered everything. It is probable that hereafter the clerk will be put under bond. When Mr. Charles W. Crouter was seen today at his office in the Quincy building, and interviewed regarding this matter, he showed no animosity toward Munsell. He spoke no harsh word against the defaulter, and his whole manner was one of sympathy for his former clerk. Munsell at one time was assessor of Mineral county, candidate for secretary of state board of equalization, and also ran for representative in the state legislature. Attorney-General Miller has called on Mr. Crouter to make good his deficiency, and this will be done Monday morning, when Crouter will pay $6,200 to the state treasury, this amount including about $1,000 which has been tied up in court by an injunction, which prevented him from paying over the money due. Mr. Crouter still holds, however, the amount paid to him by corporations under protest, and he cannot let this money go out of his possession until the court so orders. Mr. Post, former attorney-general, is his attorney. The American Bonding & Trust company of Baltimore, Md., is Mr. Crouter's bondsman, in the sum of $30,000.

EIGHT-HOUR LEG SLATION IS PRACTICALLY DOOMED.

The assembly chambers of the state legislature today presented quite a contrast compared with yesterday, there being no session of either body, an adjournment until Monday having been decided on last night. A few members turned up, however, to talk over bills and map out plans for the coming week. Clerks were on hand as usual, but in the senate even the clock had stopped, a silent reminder and mute evidence that matters under consideration would not be acted on today. Mr. Dolph's civil service bill, which is house bill No. 197, promises to kick up a rumpus this week, the bill being similar to Senator Lewis' bill now before the senate. The eight-hour bill is as good as dead. Under existing conditions no one would dare to predict its passage. The fact that there are two eight-hour bills, one introduced in the house, the other in the senate, is an additional reason why there will be no action taken. The two legislative bodies are at loggerheads. Senator Moore said: "The house eight-hour bill is unconstitutional and has been declared defective by every lawyer who has read it." Senator Moore introduced the eight-hour bill in the senate. It passed the senate and was sent to the house, which promptly framed a bill of its own. The house will not pass the senate bill, and the senate says nay to the house bill. Therefore both bills are doomed.

CHILD INSURANCE IS TO BE INVESTIGATED.

Child insurance companies are to have some litigation to fight, particularly the Harrison Mutual Burial association, whose home offices are in Pueblo, and which has branches throughout the state. Assistant Attorney-General Hersey wrote an opinion that this company is violating the law because it will insure the life of children under 10 years of age. The National Co-operative Burial company is in the same business, but claims to be doing a legal business, and has accordingly that a test case be made in order to have it decided that there is no violation of the law. Representatives of this company called at the attorney-general's office today and made arrangements that a test case be begun in Pueblo soon.

ROUND-UP COMMISSIONERS APPOINTED BY GOVERNOR.

The following persons have been appointed round-up commissioners by the governor: W. H. Stone, Las Animas, J. L. Mayfield, Granada, and W. A. Towers, Prowers, all for round-up district No. 31; and Montie Blevins Weldon, A. J. Munroe, Spicer, and Andrew Peterson, Hebron for district No. 28.

CRIPPLE CREEK MAN SUES BECAUSE OF A LOST EYE

Special to the Gazette.

Cripple Creek, March 7.—A damage suit was filed in the district court today by Joseph Souza versus the Cripple Creek Sampling & Ore company. The complaint recites that on August 27, 1902, plaintiff was employed repairing rolls in the above company's sampling works, and while another workman was chipping out pieces of the steel with a hammer and chisel, a piece of the metal flew up in plaintiff's left eye, causing him to lose the sight of same. He now asks for $10,000 damages.

U. S. MARINES WILL PASS THROUGH THE CITY TODAY

Fourteen carloads of United States marines are expected to pass through this city about 7 o'clock this morning. A special train will bring the 400 officers and enlisted men in the detachment into this city from the west over the Denver and Rio Grande, and after making a short stop for breakfast, the journey east will be continued over the Rock Island. The men are bound for the eastern coast stations and have been stationed for several months at the Mare Island Navy yard at San Francisco.

SOCIALISTS PARTY WANTS RECOGNITION

This is Avowed Object of Nominating Full Municipal Tickets in Cripple Creek.

Victor Bureau
Colorado Springs Gazette.

Victor, March 7.—A prominent member of the Socialist party stated today that the object of the Socialist party in placing a full ticket in the field for municipal officers in the Cripple Creek district, was solely for the purpose of establishing official recognition of the party. When asked if he thought that the action of the Socialists would change the political complexions of any of the towns of the district, he readily replied that he did not think it would, but even if it did, he would not care as the Socialists were opposed alike to the Republican and Democratic parties. He thought, however, that the major portion of their strength would come from the men who have formerly been Populists.

NEIGHBORHOOD AMENITIES—On complaint of Ben F. Rice, Mrs. Helen Hayes was arrested today on charge of assault. Both parties live in this city and it seems were mixed in a little neighborly fracas. She gave bond to appear tonight in the court, and after the trial the judge severely lectured both of the parties and then dismissed the case.

DIED—Patrick Maroney, aged 50 years, died about 2 o'clock this morning at the Sisters hospital in Cripple Creek, pneumonia being the cause of death. The remains were brought to this city and funeral services will be held Sunday, under the auspices of the Catholic Knights and Ladies and Miners union No. 40, of which deceased was a member. Interment will take place at Sunnyside cemetery. Deceased leaves a brother and four children residing in this city.

"Rome, March 7.—The holy father accepts with special satisfaction your congratulations and grants with fatherly love his apostolic blessing to your eminence, the American hierarchy and to the clergy and laity.

FRANK P. LANNON NOMINATED FOR MAYOR AT MEETING CALLED BY LABORING MEN.

Pueblo Bureau
Colorado Springs Gazette.

Pueblo, March 7.—Frank P. Lannon, proprietor of the Lannon foundry, was placed in nomination for mayor tonight at a mass meeting called by the laboring men, upon what will be known as the Citizens ticket. The meeting was largely attended by laboring men and the action is the result of the refusal by the Central Trades and Labor assembly to place an independent labor candidate in the field or to take any part in the approaching spring campaign. Harry Harter, president of the Central Trades and Labor assembly, placed Mr. Lannon in nomination and his name was enthusiastically received. No other candidate was voted upon. Mr. Lannon was called upon for an address and responded briefly, promising if elected, a clean and honest administration.

FOUL PLAY SUSPECTED—Benjamin Brooks, husband of a colored woman who died at the Pueblo hospital Wednesday night, after lying there unconscious for one week, arrived in the city today and gave the police information which leads them to believe that there was foul play connected with the woman's death. She was taken from a Santa Fe train in this city February 25, suffering with hysteria, and was unable to give any account of herself. The husband states that she did not reach the city from Palmora, her starting point until 48 hours later than she should have arrived, and that she had $80 in money when she left home, while but $16.15 was in her possession at the time she was taken to the hospital. The police will make a thorough investigation of the matter.

STRIKE THREATENED—It is expected that the bridge men employed by the American Bridge company, on construction work at the Minnequa steel works, will go on a sympathetic strike within the next day or two, unless the troubles of the company in the east, with the workmen are settled at once. Business Agent Blair of the structural iron men's union, stated today that he expected advices at any moment from the headquarters of the union to order out all the men working for the American Bridge company in this city. Most of the bridgemen now employed are working for other contractors and but few would be affected by an order to refuse to work for the American Bridge company. The superintendents of construction at the steel works state that the order to strike would not seriously embarrass them.

NO EXPLANATION—Responsibility for the wreck yesterday on the Missouri Pacific passenger train No. 2 at Boone, cannot be fixed, as the closest investigation has failed to reveal the cause of the open switch. It is presumed that some persons opened the switch for revenge on the company, or to profit by the wreck that was sure to follow.

The wonderful potency of this peculiar form of electro-magnetic force, individual, or animal, magnetism, or whatever it may properly be termed, in curing certain forms of human maladies has been demonstrated beyond the possibility of doubt.

Whether ELECTRO-MAGNETINE is actually charged with electro-magnetic properties infused into it in the process of manufacture or whether it serves merely as a medium through which electro-magnetic forces are developed by active vitality and which are, through it, transmitted or applied to the parts operated upon, we are not yet quite prepared to say, but of one thing we are certain, viz.: That the combination of ELECTRO-MAGNETINE with active rubbing is much more efficient in a curative way than either of these agencies employed separately.

The free application of ELECTRO-MAGNETINE to Swollen Joints, accompanied with vigorous rubbing with the bare hands, sets up in the affected parts such an active electro-magnetic action as greatly promotes the circulation of the blood through the swollen parts and thereby hasten absorption and consequent reduction of swelling, stiffness, soreness and pain.

IMPORTANCE OF THOROUGH RUBBING.

Too much stress cannot be laid upon the importance of thorough and vigorous rubbing of the affected parts in order to get a full application of the ELECTRO-MAGNETINE and, in fact, every [illegible] rubbing should be kept up until the surface to which the ELECTRO MAGNETINE has been applied has become quite dry and wholly free from the lubricated feel and glossy look due to the application of the Cream Liniment. In all Chronic, or long standing, Swollen, or Enlarged Joints, the thorough course of treatment above directed should be applied two or three times a day.

WEAK BACKS MADE STRONG.

By a somewhat protracted use of ELECTRO-MAGNETINE, accompanied with thorough rubbing, or massage, weak backs are made strong. Sore Muscles and Lame Backs, whether arising from strains, over exertion or Rheumatic Conditions of the system, are relieved, as if by magic, by the thorough application of this remedy. Foot-ball and base-ball players are amongst those loudest in their praises of it as giving most prompt relief from Muscle pains, Lameness and Soreness caused by over-exertion and strains.

Especially has ELECTRO-MAGNETINE proven its power to cure Obstinate Cases of Swollen or Enlarged and Stiffened Joints, whether arising from Rheumatic, Gouty or other conditions of the system, which cause inflammation, effusion and consequent enlargement of the joints.

IN ALL CHRONIC OR LINGERING AFFECTIONS.

For the cure of which ELECTRO-MAGNETINE is recommended, it should be thoroughly applied two or three times daily, as above directed, not omitting thorough rubbing with the bare hands.

OWNERS OF LIVE STOCK

Should know that ELECTRO-MAGNETINE is quite as effective, in a curative way, when applied to horses and cattle suffering from Sprains, Bruises, Lameness, Swollen or Stiffened Joints and kindred affections, as when applied to human flesh.

Sold by druggists and dealers in medicines throughout the United States and Canada, at 50 cents or sent postpaid by the manufacturers on receipt of this price in postage stamps or postal order.

Manufactured at the Chemical Laboratory of the WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, 663 Main Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

ELECTRO MAGNETINE is believed to be the only preparation yet devised for curative purposes endowed with such peculiar properties that when applied to any part of the human body, accompanied with brisk rubbing with the naked hands, it causes an active and energetic electro-magnetic action to be set up in the parts to which it is applied.

THE FEAR OF HUMBUG

Prevents Many People From Trying a Good Medicine

Stomach troubles are so common and in most cases so obstinate to cure that people are apt to look with suspicion on any remedy claiming to be a radical, permanent cure for dyspepsia and indigestion. Many such pride themselves on their acuteness in never being humbugged, especially in medicines.

This fear of being humbugged can be carried too far, so far, in fact, that many people suffer for years with weak digestion rather than risk a little time and money in faithfully testing the claims made of a preparation so reliable and universally used as Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

Now Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are vastly different in one important respect from ordinary proprietary medicines for the reason that they are not a secret patent medicine, no secret is made of their ingredients, but analysis shows them to contain the natural digestive ferments, pure aseptic pepsin, the digestive acids Golden Seal, bismuth, hydrastis and nux. They are not cathartic, neither do they act powerfully on any organ, but they cure indigestion on the common sense plan of digesting the food eaten thoroughly before it has time to ferment, sour and cause mischief. This is the only secret of their success.

Cathartic pills never have and never can cure indigestion and stomach troubles because they act entirely on the bowels, whereas the whole trouble is usually in the stomach.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets taken after meals digest the food. That is all there is to it. Food not digested or half digested is poison as it creates gas, acidity, headaches, palpitation of the heart, loss of flesh and appetite and many other troubles which are often called by some other name.

They are sold by druggists everywhere at 50 cents per package.

Anti-Pain Pills

(Dr. Miles') prevent as well as cure headache, the commonest affliction of mankind. Carry in your pocket. No opiates. Non-habit forming. There are no substitutes. Sold and guaranteed by all druggists. 25 doses 25 cents. Never sold in bulk.

The largest automatic telephone Exchange in the United States is at Fall River, Massachusetts. It was established in 1898 and offered service to the public at less than half the Bell Company's rates, but at the present time after four years trial—the Bell Company has more than double the number of subscribers of the Automatic Company, and three-fourths of the Automatic Company's subscribers are paying for the Bell system phones as well, and the Bell Company did not cut its rates. That doesn't look as though the Automatic scheme of opposition telephony was much of a success, does it?

Contrary to the representations now being made to you, the Colorado Telephone Company takes this means of stating publicly that it cannot and will not cut its rates one cent to meet the figures of the Citizen's Telephone Company.

Mr. Business Man—if you encourage the Citizen's Company you will surely "pay the freight" by being obliged to continue the Bell service in order to reach the people and by binding yourself to the Citizen's Company for five years. If you don't believe this, ask the people of Greeley—they have tried it and they know.

Very respectfully,

THE COLORADO TELEPHONE COMPANY.

N. B.—The Automatic people never built a toll line into Fall River, though they promised they would do so.

LATE HAPPENINGS IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

W... May ... Meeting ...

There is a possibility that no meeting of the Western league will be held in place of the postponed meeting scheduled for March 2 in Denver. It is probable that the playing schedule will be sent by President Sexton around to the different magnates on the circuit and they will make their suggestions, if they have any, to him in writing. From the way in which the schedule has been prepared this year it is doubtful if there will be much objection to the schedule as first prepared as each club has to take just about what it can get. The Kansas City and Milwaukee dates of course cannot be changed and the other towns in the league will have to conform to the conditions with as much grace as possible. The season will open in both the Western and American April 23. The Milwaukee Western teams will open at Peoria and then go to St Joseph while the American association team will open at home with St Paul, followed by Minneapolis. Des Moines in the Western will probably open with St Joseph and then play Peoria. Kansas City will probably come to Colorado with Omaha and either one of these two teams may open the season in this city with the Millionaires, the other one going to Denver. This management will allow the American association teams to open at home in both of the disputed towns.

...W... Bowling W... Bowl... W... Denver ...

One week from next Saturday the Town and Gown bowling team will go to Denver to play the bowling team of the Denver Country club the first of a series of inter-city matches that will extend throughout the spring and summer. These matches which are to be five in number will not all be bowling matches however. Baseball, golf, polo, and tennis will be played in addition to bowling.

Several weeks ago the members of the two clubs decided upon a series of games in different sports to determine the superiority of the two organizations along this line. A system of points has been arranged whereby the playing of all matches will be taken into account and an interesting series is anticipated. The bowling team which is to meet the Denver five has not as yet been selected but it will probably be the regular Town and Gown bowling team consisting of Messrs. Tolin, Wright, Singer, Scott and Gemmer. The team for the other games of course will not be determined for some time. Following is the schedule of the different games as it has been arranged: March 21 bowling in Denver; May 11 golf in this city; July 18 baseball in Denver; August 1 tennis in this city and September polo in Denver.

... Shooter ...

John W. Garrett the local shooter has received copies of the program for the Grand American handicap to be shot in Kansas City April 14, 15 16 and 17. The Grand American handicap will be attended by over 400 shooters and it is expected that it will be the greatest shooting event ever held in the country. Crack shots from all over the globe will assemble at Kansas City park to win the honors at the trap. Among the shooters who will go from Colorado Springs this year will be in addition to Mr Garrett, D. C. Sander son, A. G. Fisher and possibly Fred Lawton.

Mr Garrett will attend the Missouri state shoot to be held at Kansas City April 7, 8 and 9 and will leave a week earlier than that so as to have a better work out this year than he did last when he took high average for the three days shooting at the Grand American handicap.

The prizes in the Grand American handicap will amount to about $[illegible] and will be divided among the different winners.

Threw 16-Pound Shot 45 Feet, Two Inches in Annual Indoor Championship Meet in Milwaukee—First Regiment of Chicago Wins Most.

(By Associated Press Exclusively to the Gazette in Colorado Springs.)

Milwaukee March 7.—The First Regiment Athletic association of Chicago captured the honors at the annual indoor championship meet at the Exposition building tonight before a crowd of 5000 people. This crack athletic organization was credited with 5 points at the finish, the Milwaukee Athletic club being second with 31 points to its credit and the University of Chicago third with 17 points. Many good athletic sport while the Y. M. C. A. of Chicago failed to score a point. As a side issue George L. Gray of the Illinois athletic club broke the world record for putting the 16 pound shot, but broke the world record by throwing the weight 45 feet two inches. This was not allowed to compete at this meeting because he had not qualified in the central association long enough to make him eligible. He is a member of the First Regiment Athletic association, Chicago.

THE MILLIONAIRE PLAYERS REPORT TOMORROW

Just two weeks from tomorrow, March 23, the Millionaire band will assemble and begin training for the season's work. Mr Burns will send out transportation tomorrow or next day and judging from the numerous inquiries that have been received from players during the past few weeks as to when they should report every man will be here on time. At the present time the men are scattered all over the country and it will be rather a cosmopolitan crowd that gathers at Boulevard park for the first days practice in another fortnight.

Captain Big Bill Everitt has been restlessly stomping the ground in the vicinity of Bert Davis' cigar store in Denver for the past two months and as he cannot stand it any longer without coming down and seeing the town he will probably blow in tomorrow or next day. He will bring with him Harry Newnoyer and Sid Bassett. O'Brien who has also been hibernating in Denver. THE GAMES THAT ARE POPULAR THESE DAYS

Sports like a great many other things are subject to changes and a game that may be popular today may not be so tomorrow, excepting of course baseball which is likely to remain in public favor on this side of the Atlantic for a great many years. There are four new games being played in Europe at the present time and they are achieving such popularity that they must soon be accorded some attention in this country. Just how these four games will be received is a matter of considerable doubt but one or three of them will probably soon succeed ping pong in the way of fad and occupy the attention of the American sport and athletic loving public. The success of any new game depends largely upon whether it shows to be more interesting in its way than some old game of similar character but as each one of the new games mentioned is popular abroad it will undoubtedly be popular over here for a time at least. One of these games is push ball. Push ball originated in this country in 1897 and was afterwards introduced into England but in both countries did not prove to be much of a success.

Push ball has lately been revived in England sportsmen however and may more with equal favor than when the substitute of the game was introduced. In the first place push ball is played with a large inflated sphere about eight to ten diameter and weighing about 150 pounds. The Story of a Day at Camp Peabody

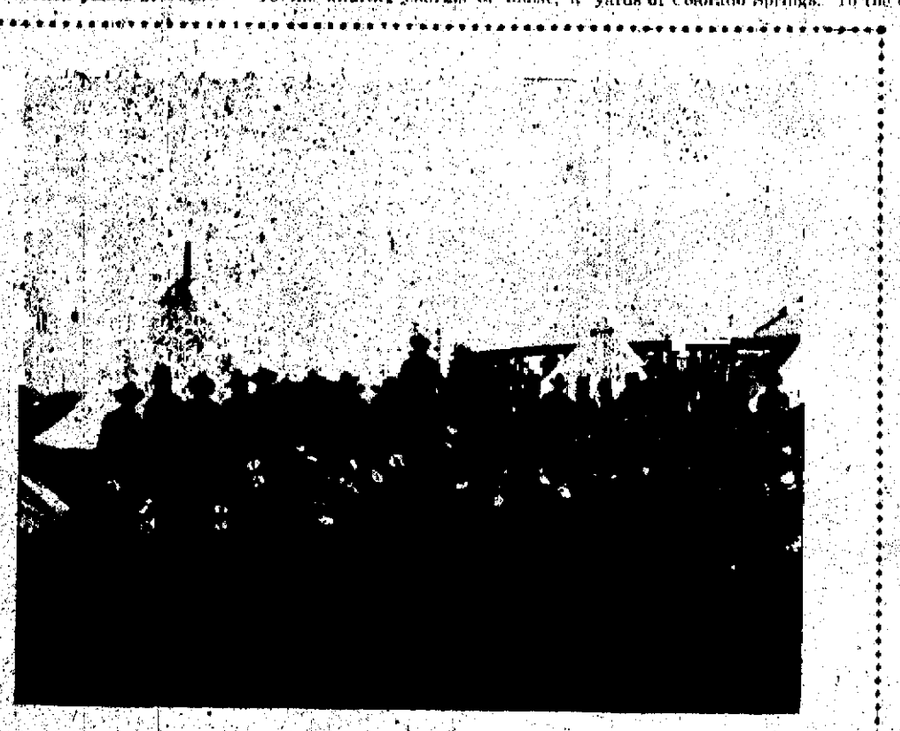
By J. EMERSON SMITH

A BUGLER stood on the cliffs, his blue cape in the stiff wind a streamer of black against the white snow on the hill side and faced the tents of camp Peabody, already astir in the gray dawn, for reveille had sounded and the stillness following the storm of Friday night was beginning to be broken by the neighing of horses, a locomotive whistle, and the sounds of bustle attending the rattling of side-arms, the buckling of belts and the clang of the Sibley stove doors. There was a sharp command to halt and a group of laborers stopped on the railroad tracks on the other side of the long stretch of brown waste bounding the camp on the east. They satisfied the sentry and were allowed to proceed.

It was the beginning of another day in the camp of troops guarding the three great reduction plants at Colorado City and the bugler, as the headquarters flag flashed crimson for a moment down in the cluster of snow-covered tents, put the brightly polished instrument to his lips and blew "assembly."



COMPANY AND I.

I have said the air was clear and the notes rang silvery, distinct, joyful over the black mill buildings still lighted by the electric arcs; they beat against the ghostly chimneys and echoed from hillside to bluff, from bluff to mountain. Then from the tents occupied by the signal corps pitched in a straight line against the high stone foundation of the furnace-stack, came the words of the assembly call, words that every soldier knows and delights in singing:

"Oh, the Dutch compan-ee
Is the best comp-an-ee
That ever crossed the ocean from old German-ee;
And you'd better stay at home.
With the ones you love so much
Than around the world to roam
With your comp-an-ee of Dutch."

This is the story of what camp Peabody is, what it consists of, how the men are fed, what they do during the day and is for the benefit of the crowds who have come to Colorado City to "see the soldiers." Guests from the Antlers, the Alamo, Alta Vista and the other hotels have driven over and joined the curious who have occupied the dry places on the sidewalks.

"All the world loves a soldier," it has been written.

There is another saying, also as old as the hills: "Woman is fascinated by the brass button." The truth of these statements has been exemplified ever since the cavalry, resplendent with yellow-lined capes, rattled through the streets Wednesday morning, sabers clanking and a battling gun and artillery bringing up the rear.

The sight-seers do not see much. Three men, guards, patrol the crest of the land leading across the merry little stream known as la Fontaine qui Bouille since the days of the French trappers. From the pagoda-like station where the electric cars stop, they pace a distance on each side of the road, stopping all who come, for "brass tacks," as they call it, apply here as well as at the plants, and no one is permitted to enter the lines unless he has a pass reading:

"Headquarters First brigade, National guard Colorado, Camp Peabody. To all sentinels: Pass ——— day and night until further orders.

"(Signed) A. H. Williams,
"Assistant Adjutant General."

As these passes are very limited in number, the curious must content themselves with a panoramic view. Two more cathedrals pace to and fro on the road leading from the depot, the second one at the bridge. Under protection of the trees, in a grove of great cottonwoods by the bank of the "boiling Fountain," a tent gleams white. This is a Cossack post. A camp fire of ties, brushwood and logs burns bright, and a kettle may be heard to bubble as it sways in the wind from the wire held by the three poles placed in Indian fashion.

As I passed the "Cossacks," as they are called, just before the snow began blotting out the landscape Friday evening, I felt something soft and insistent beating against my face, too large for snow flakes. The bugler at this post was softly blowing a song with some gay refrain that I had heard rendered by an orchestra, when the violins took it up with a sweep very different from the throaty gurgle of the bugle. The musician was accompanied by a mandolin and the two managed to get through the song in a very cred table manner. Back of the fire sat a blue-caped "non-com," and from his hands, industriously weaving, as I took it, came the shower of fine projectiles the wind was scattering in my direction.

To the alluring charms of music, a rooster, a large, fat, once-proud rooster was being plucked, shorn of his brilliant feathers and the cook was red in the face.

"Not a bit tough," he observed.

"What are you doing?"

"Soup," was the answer, with military brevity. I could put two and two together. The boiling pot, the boiling fountain, and a large, nicely plucked rooster. It may be added parenthetically, that the boiling fountain cooked the feathers.

But that is another story.

The curious line up on Colorado avenue see small, black figures marching all the time, constantly in motion, on the sky line back of the Standard mills. They hear bugle calls and see patrols moving here and there. They see reports of cavalry and the guards present arms. They see the wagons of supplies come in from the city and return empty.

"Corporal of the guard!" rings out. From the tent where chicken soup is being concocted, the corporal comes on double-quick up the road and hears the explanation of a man who wants to enter the lines. The man's explanation is long and animated; besides he does not appear to be a suspicious character. But the young man who is corporal of the guard is firm.

"Can't let you in without a pass—orders," he says, and goes back to the boiling soup.

CHAPTER I.

I can't get 'em up,
I can't get 'em up,
I CAN'T get 'em up in the morning,
I can't get 'em up,
I can't get 'em up,
I can't get 'em up at ALL,
Corporal's worse than the private,
Sergeant's worse than the corporal,
Lieutenant's worse than the sergeant,
sergeant,
An' the cap'n is worse than them all.

REVEILLE CALL.

These are the words to reveille which at Camp Peabody is sent thrilling with its command to the sleepy at 5:45 a. m. It means that the day has begun and five minutes later the bugler on the bluffs has blown the assembly.

These 500 men guarding the Standard, Portland and Telluride mills are not here with the idea of a vacation. Had they had any such idea, it would have been dissipated the first day by field orders No. 2, which read as follows:

"The following list of calls and camp routine will be observed in Camp Peabody and all outposts until further orders:

First call for reveille, 5:45 a. m.

Taps, 10:00.

By command Brigadier General Chase,
A. H. Williams,
Assistant Adjutant General.

The camp was laid out by Captain Sommick, formerly of the regular army, and engineer in charge. The 44 tents are admirably placed and offer a position of defense, shielded as they are by the large buildings of the Standard plant, yet commanding a view of all the approaches. To the west are the high bluffs where, against the horizon on a clear day, the smallest moving object may be seen in the wonderful air that brings Pike's Peak to the very back yards of Colorado Springs. To the east a quarter of a mile, is of a deep brown, divided in the center by a brown stream, carrying off the waste from the mills. The character of the bed is almost that of very wet clay, and ere a charge could be made across it, excellent target practice would be afforded.

To the north of the lane of tents stands a small two-room building which heretofore, has been used as a foreman's office. This, as denoted by the silk flag waving from a hastily-constructed flag pole, is the headquarters. It contains a desk, a cot, a stove and a long table. A telephone is near at hand and a stack of arms in the corner gives the otherwise peaceful office room an appearance denoting the existence of a siege.

Assistant Adjutant General Williams occupies the desk. He is at the head of the clerical force; directs the post-office—for at headquarters all mail to the men in camp is received, assorted and distributed to the various companies, the troop of cavalry and the signal and hospital corps—and is one of the busiest men in the state of Colorado. Major Williams is surrounded by orderlies, messengers and two obelisks, in the shape of two very lengthy, dirtied boards, on which are tacked the orders.

Like others of this men at Colorado City he has seen long and some exciting service with the National guard of Colorado. He was with Colonel James H. Brown, Colonel Verdeckberg, Captain H. D. Smith and other officers at Lake City, during the Italian miners' strike, a campaign which, by the way, has to this day an element of mystery surrounding it. It will be recalled that when the Italians dynamited buildings at Henson, 1,000 feet or so above the needle-like Henson creek, and threatened to blow up the dam—a fact that would have swept the little mining town of Lake City to sudden and horrible destruction, it was discovered that the state armory had been broken into "by parties unknown," and the arms and ammunition of the Lake City company of militia had disappeared. The stolen articles have never been recovered. Colonel Brown convened a court of inquiry and the matter was thoroughly sifted, evidence was obtained of the alleged conspiracy to force the Italians to leave that mining district, but still the mystery remained unsolved: where were the stolen arms? Lawsuits have been brought, supposedly good cases have been followed religiously, yet the state has never recovered what was taken from the Lake City armory.

General John Chase, who, in private life is an oculist in Denver, and who, because of his long connection with things military, and the deep interest he has in everything pertaining to the National guard of the country and the regular establishment, and his constant study, has been paid the compliment of being one of the most efficient of general commanders, is usually found at the office of the United States Reduction company, the brick cottage-like building that is perched on the Rifle hillside, overlooking the camp. On the long, strange telephone, Denver is called up and here the war conferences with the commander-in-chief of the guard, Governor Peabody, and others, are held. In the adjoining office Superintendent Hawkins, of the company, works away at the piles of correspondence and other matters on his desk, for the Standard is operating as if there was not the slightest breath of trouble.

The general brought down from Denver his own horse, a coal black charger named Hector, and one of the most intelligent and handsome of animals. The great horse carries him from mill to mill, and through the city, towering above the smaller steeds of the commander's escort.

Of the general's staff, Colonel James H. Brown is probably the best known. Tall and dark and of a prosecutor military in every particular it would not be suspected that he is legal adviser to the guard, yet it has been his counsel and assistance that has aided the state in more than one instance, when it has been called upon to interfere between contending parties of its citizens. Colonel Brown is an attorney of Denver, and is said to be the best versed man on international law in the state. It was due to his presence at Lake City that the state was extricated from a position that threatened international complications, when the telegrams of Dr. Joseph Cuneo, Italian consul at Denver, the direct representative of Baron Fava, then Italian ambassador at Washington, were held up at the telegraph office and the government of his majesty, Humbert of Italy, was kept in ignorance of the conditions at Lake City. A self-constituted censor had tied up Consul Cuneo's messages.

So typical a soldier in appearance is the colonel that he is the object of kodaks and cameras in the hands of the few fortunate women who have penetrated into the White city, and who, if they cannot cut the hard on off the army overcoats, rely upon the picture machines for souvenirs.

Coffee, coffee, coffee,

MISS CALL.

It is 6:30 by the watch of Orderly-sergeant adjutant general and the men are being seated for and will soon be the tubated breakfast. The words the soldiers give to it, lively, plunk at with its rhythmical dip, are not fit for time, for they will tell you themselves that "they never had better living in civil life." "Good morning" is the cheerful greeting.

Sherman Bell, who takes a trip as adjutant general in April, on a low the pathway to headquarters, a the swinging step brought to mind during his service in Cuba with Theodore Roosevelt, then colonel of the Rough Riders. He shakes hands with a slight, dark man muffled in an army overcoat the navy blue with cords and tassels—for the morning is sharp. It is the meeting between the outgoing incumbent of the office, lieutenant General Gardiner and incoming adjutant general.

The officers' mess is served in headquarters building. The fire roaring with a mighty draught and the comfortable aroma of coffee and steak in the air.

From General Chase down, there is no distinction in the life of the camp, officers and privates alike. The staff officers have a tent and sleep, wrapped in their kots on beds of straw, just as do any soldier. The general takes his cot in the tent stove and "bakes down" his own couch. This is placed beside the headquarters.

Mess, thus is the home of the soldiering. So strict has been the order of things, the "brass tacks" have been so evident in the good discipline maintained that the men have had no chance for the usual playing of jokes and pranks. There is a laxity at night, however, and every tent echoes to talk and laughter, letters are read and pack debts of the duties of the night or day before are discussed. There are seven cooks at Camp Peabody, negroes and whites. Every company provides own mess, and each takes care of its own commissary. Major George M. Lee, brigade quartermaster, is assisted by Lieutenant Burt R. Bloom, commissary quartermaster, and their work is no light probably to the men who look to them for bodily comfort, as the most important transacted at headquarters.

The approximate ration allowed each soldier per day is: One pound of meat, one pound of bread, one pound of vegetables and all the coffee they can drink. In addition to this a soldier receives a money allowance of 50 cents per day, which he can use for the purchase of food, which is sold to him at cost by the commissary department. The quartermaster's department has a large amount of money at its disposal, which is based on the strength of the troops, or three times as much for breakfast, 400 pounds of vegetables, 50 quarts of coffee. Milk is also purchased. Thursday and Friday have been the best days for the commissary department. Each brigade has its own mess kit, consisting of a set of ingenious contrivances of tin of two sections, one section folding over the other. On one side is a kettle for boiling the meat or the potatoes, and the other side is a skillet. Then, the soldier carries a knife, fork and spoon and a quart tin cup. These are disposed of in his haversack, with the exception of the cup, which hooks on to the outside. The food is served by marching under personal supervision of the company officers, and everyone, whether it be coffee, butter, meat or potatoes, receives an equal share.

When the mess call rings out each man goes to his company kitchen, draws his mess and takes it to his tent. Each of the several tents is in charge of a non-commissioned officer who is responsible for the discipline and order and aids the policing. Each tent is policed by the eight or 12 men occupying the tent. Each tent is policed by the company. The general policing of the camp is effected by a detail under the direction of the officer of the day in his presence, should there be a sufficient number in the guard house.

The men officers in charge of the quartermaster's department have been praised by the regular army officers. Major Lee has been in the service since 1886. As a lad he was cadet of the High school cadet corps, and later joined the guards of Nebraska, Wyoming and Colorado. When he joined the Colorado guard in 1896 he served in the battery and rose through the non-commissioned officers. Shortly after joining Troop C, cavalry, he was made brigade quartermaster, in November, 1898, which position he has held continuously since that time. He looked out for the comfort of the Colorado troops at Lake City, Boulder and Fort Riley, Kan., and saw service in the Kansas city hall war in Denver during Governor Waite's administration.

Lieutenant Bloom entered the army in Troop G, First infantry in 1898, and was soon promoted to quartermaster sergeant. During this time he was also clerk in the office of Adjutant General Livermore. In 1900 he was promoted to regimental quartermaster sergeant, and served in Boulder, Fort Riley and Colorado City in that capacity.

During the maneuvers at Fort Riley of the militia of the western states in connection with the regular troops he acted as commissary officer to the Colorado battalion and was praised by the United States army officers. With Major Lee, the two have handled all the quartermaster and commissary work for the Colorado guard. When at Fort Riley the Colorado battalion was the only one that had all returns and reports correct. At Fort Riley the camp was made in a shading cottonwood, the ground resembled a shallow lake. Major Lee and Bloom reached the ground at 6 o'clock in the afternoon and served supper at 8 p. m., nearly on time, and had the men in warm, dry beds due to using all the screw mess hay they could get, and so well taken care of that not a man reported to the hospital the next morning.

Friday evening, during the heavy snow storm at Camp Peabody there was no complaint of cold or wet, due to the matter on which the officers had been doing, around the tents, a precaution taken only to the work.

NOTEWORTHY PAINTING NOW ON EXHIBITION HERE

Foltz & Hardy have for sale a painting which deserves the attention of every person who is interested in art. It is the property of Mrs. F. M. English, wife of the late organist of St. Stephen's church, whose sad death is fresh in the minds of all, and is now offered for sale by her agents here. The subject is the Crucifixion, and the painter is, according to the best opinion, the old master Durer. While absolute authentication is lacking, yet local artists are one and all united in proclaiming the painting as typical of the master's best style. The picture shows the end. The darkness is lifting and light appears behind the cross. The figure of the Virgin on the left of the painting is an exquisite piece of work, surpassed only by the expression of the face. To the right of the picture is the figure of St. John and at the base of the cross is the Magdalene. Each of these is brought out in the master's strongest vein, but the serene sorrow shown on the face of the Virgin and the doffed expression of the central figure are the striking features of the painting.

In the background is Jerusalem, seen in the dissolving darkness, and the boldness of delineation, which is Durer's characteristic, is nowhere more evident than in this part of the work.

It bears date of 1530 A. D. That it is of that time all experts who have seen it admit.

There are many institutions in the city to which this painting would be a welcome gift, and it is hoped it will be retained here.

THE COMING of Effie Ellsler in "When Knighthood Was in Flower," next Tuesday evening, has occasioned much interest, and theater-goers will no doubt be afforded one of the big treats of the season. Following Miss Ellsler, the next night Dan Sully will present "The Old Mill Stream," and later, next week, Rose Coghlan will be here. Altogether some good engagements are promised for the next few weeks.

The "Duchess-Queen, Princess Mary Tudor of England," who was described by the chroniclers of her time as the only good woman in the court of Henry VIII., will be introduced to the playgoers of Colorado Springs at the Opera house Tuesday evening by Effie Ellsler, in Paul Kester's dramatization of Charles Major's novel, "When Knighthood Was in Flower." Miss Ellsler is said to have a play which gives satisfying opportunities for the display of her comedy style and of that emotionalism which has often lifted her work to heights of artistry.

The incidental music of Effie Ellsler's production of "When Knighthood Was in Flower" is an interesting feature of the play. The songs have been resurrected from obscure sources bearing on the manners and customs of sixteenth century life. The air to which the Princess Mary Tudor dances in the first act, when she takes a lesson in "the new step from France," with Charles Brandon as her instructor, is "The Sailor Lass," a song popular among people of high and low degree during the opening years of Henry VIII.'s reign. Another quaint ballad, written after the marriage of Charles Brandon, duke of Suffolk, to Mary Tudor, has a refrain running,

Though you be matched with cloth of frieze."

It is sung by Will Sommers, postjester to King Henry, as the curtain falls on the last act.

Another interesting piece of music is that sung by priests who in the first scene of the last act chant a requiem for the repose of the soul of Louis XII., king of France, who has just died amid the revelries of a ball in the Palais de Tournelles. The original manuscript of this chant is among the treasures of the Vatican library, and was transcribed for Miss Ellsler by a member of the American college at Rome, to whom she expressed a desire for a requiem dating about 1513. The care for historical detail displayed upon such a matter has been maintained as regards every point in this production. Days were spent in studying heraldic devices and insignia used on furniture and draperies. Knotty problems were come upon. Often reference was made to half a dozen volumes before it could be decided whether the arms of the House of Tudor or the garter and its accompanying motto of "Honi soit qui y pense" should be embroidered on the tapestries of the palace interiors, the idea being that the year 1513, in which the scene is supposed to transpire, might have been a little subservient to the use of the Tudor rose as an official royal emblem, or perhaps the "Honi soit" motto had not been adopted for decorative purposes at that time.

Dan'l Sully, the well known actor, has fitted himself and his beautiful farm in the heart of the Catskills dramatic people a three-act play entitled "The Old Mill Stream," from the pen of Fitzgerald Murphy. The play and the player will be seen here at the Opera house next Wednesday evening. It has been the dream of Mr. Sully's life for several years to show the theater-going public a perfect picture of the idyllic spot where he lives in summer time. Aside from this natural desire he had a story to tell, so last June the dramatist and himself gave forth to the story, and "The Old Mill Stream" is the product of their joint efforts. Back of Mr. Sully's house in Mink Hollow, Ulster county, New York, there is a beautiful stream that has been the subject of litigation for years between an old Irishman named Ryan who runs a flour mill and the farmers of the vicinity along the banks of whose land runs the stream. He wanted a sort of perpetual franchise to dam up the stream and run his mill and the shrewd farmers who had an equity interest in the water, prepared to make him pay dearly for the privilege. This litigation involved the heart affairs of the Irishman's daughter, and her many suitors, who were sons of the farmers who were fighting him. The mill stream divided several loving hearts and eventually became the source of all the romances that have idealized the little community. This condition of affairs suggested to Mr. Sully beautiful possibilities of a rural play based upon actual life. He arranged with Mr. Murphy, the playwright, to spend the summer on his farm last June and study conditions and characters, with the result that he has a new play this season that has been built around the scenes with which he is so familiar. The scenes of the new play are laid in the general country store that combines both postoffice, justice's court and office of the flour mill. Through the window of the rear may be seen a glimpse of the Catskills where old Rip Van Winkle had his famous snooze. The play is in three acts and deals with three distinctive love stories whose course does not run quite as smooth as "The Old Mill Stream." Popular prices will be charged for this engagement, 50c, 75c and $1.

One of America's foremost emotional actresses, Rose Coghlan, will be seen at the Opera house next week in Pinero's most valued play, "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray."

"The Second Mrs. Tanqueray" has only been played by Mrs. Kendal, Olga Nethersole, Mrs. Patrick Campbell and Eleanor Duse, and the assumption of this role by so clever an actress as Rose Coghlan will be watched with great interest by local theater-goers.

Miss Coghlan's superb costumes, regal stage presence and knowledge of her art are too well known to need dilating upon. Her performance of Paula is so virile, magnetic and finished that it is hard to determine her place among the other great actresses that have essayed the role. Miss Coghlan has made the bit of her career in the part, and theatergoers may expect to see a performance that lacks nothing as regards completeness of details, correct costumes and elaborate stage accessories.

The Atlanta Constitution, one of the most critical and conservative papers of the south, says of this attraction: "Atlanta has suffered artistic loss several times during the present season from being rated as a 'one-night stand' by the very best theatrical productions, and no stronger instance of the loss to theatergoers will be afforded than the appearance last night at the Grand of Miss Rose Coghlan in 'The Second Mrs. Tanqueray.' It is fair to assume that had Miss Coghlan given us two nights the theater would not have been large enough to hold her auditors. However, it is gratifying to chronicle the fact that a large and representative audience was present and recorded Miss Coghlan numerous curtain calls. The beauty and richness of Miss Coghlan's costumes was a subject of universal comment among the feminine portion of the audience. The play is probably the cleanest that has come from Pinero's pen, and, briefly summarized, teaches in unmistakable terms the inevitable misery and torture that comes to the woman with a past. With this as the text, the author preaches what might well be termed a 'sermon,' clothed with brilliant conversation and pungent epigrams. Miss Coghlan has long been a favorite in Atlanta, and she has never portrayed any character more artistically or more naturally than Paula Tanqueray. The part is a trying one and, in the hands of any but as thorough an artist, might prove revolting. Her support is well nigh perfect, the 'Aubrey' of Franklin Ritchie and the 'Cayley Drummle' of David Elmer being especially well portrayed. The play was beautifully staged, and altogether was one of the dramatic treats that Atlanta too seldom receives."
